

It's slim pickin's for area apple producers

by BETTY LEE

It's slim pickin's this year for apples — mackintosh, jonathan, red and golden delicious.

Last year the Midwest harvest provided tons of apples for people to take home from markets. Families drove out to orchards for a day of plucking apples from trees. Roadside stands bulged with bushel baskets of the fruit and there was plenty of cider, apple butter and other apple products.

But due to the poorest season in years, there is an apple shortage and prices have zoomed as much as 25 per cent.

HILL WEBBE owns the Mossley Hill

Farms Inc. in Lake Zurich. This year he managed to harvest 30 to 35 per cent of the crop for his retail business, compared to last year's 90 per cent.

"There are a number of reasons why we have the shortage," said Webbe. "The mild frost we had in spring killed some of the blossoms. The frost sterilizes the pollen."

"And with the rain and cool weather, the bees don't come out and pollinate the trees. This year we had only one or two good days."

Webbe added that poor pollination and a continuous damp spring caused a fungus growth called "scab" which affects the leaves and the fruit of the tree. The fruit may eventually rot or fall from branches before maturity.

LIKE OTHER neighboring orchards, Mossley Hill Farms was open to the public for apple picking in mid-September. Thousands of people from the city as well as from the suburbs came to spend an afternoon picking their own apples for $5 a bushel. Last season it cost $4.25.

But this year something different happened at the Webbe farm. The rolling hills of the orchard were littered with thousands of fallen apples and debris left by people who came. Most of the fruit was picked early last week and what remained were rows of barren trees. There will be no more apple picking this season.

"It's the shortage," said Lee Logan, manager. "With the shortage and crowds that size, people get out of control. They left a mess and destroyed tree limbs."

Theft increased this year with the larger crowd of pickers. People would hide apples in their cars, golf bags, bowling bags and baby buggies, said Webbe.

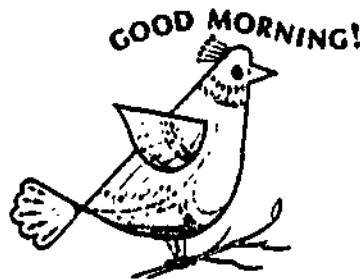

WEBBE ESTIMATED the apple supply will last until mid to late November. Usually there are enough to put in cold storage and to sell until June or July. "What am I going to do?" said Webbe.

"I'm not sure what to do." This week he plans to ship in loads of apples from another orchard he owns in Michigan. He indicated that other fruits like peaches and pears suffered a poor season also.

Bell's Apple Orchard is in Barrington, near routes 12 and 22. A dusty road leads to its massive shop. Inside there are hundreds of sacks of apples on giant roll-away carts and on tables.

A long line by the cash register includes people buying apples and children buying caramel apples and cider. The phone rings and a saleslady answers. Someone wants to know about pick-your-

Among 8 called from village

3 public works employees subpoenaed by grand jury

by LYNN ASINOF

Three members of the Wheeling Public Works Department are among eight village employees who received subpoenas this week to testify before a federal grand jury investigating alleged shakedown of contractors and developers.

The Herald disclosed yesterday that four building inspectors and an ordinance control officer were called Monday to testify. According to village sources, the subpoenas were delivered late Monday at the municipal building by a federal agent.

Public Works Director Larry Oppenheimer refused to confirm that either he or anyone in his department had been subpoenaed. "It's something that should not be discussed because it's secret," he said. Oppenheimer said any comment would have to come from either the village manager or the U. S. attorney's office.

THE VILLAGE employees are expected to be asked what they know about instances of pressure applied by local officials or others as part of alleged attempts to extort payoffs from builders and developers.

Federal investigators are known to be seeking information about village building and zoning procedures. The employees are also expected to be questioned about how they got their jobs and which village officials or others are in a position to give them orders.

The latest batch of subpoenas brings at least 16 the number of present or former village officials and employees called to testify before the grand jury. Among those subpoenaed are Village Mgr. George Passoli, Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon, Trustee William Hein, and former trustees Michael Valenza, William Hart and Ira Bird.

In addition, the grand jury has subpoenaed building and zoning records, as well as the past five years of village board records.

Sound Post offers drum, guitar festival

A guitar festival will be held at 1 p.m. Nov. 25 at Wheeling High School Theater, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd., Wheeling.

The event, sponsored by the Sound Post, will feature performances by beginning and advanced guitar and drum students. A donation of 50 cents per family is required.

Paramedic exhibit at fire station

Motorola officials will give a demonstration of the latest paramedic telemetry and radio equipment today at Wheeling Fire Station No. 1, 312 E. Dundee Rd. The demonstration, to which Wheeling village officials and officials of area fire departments have been invited, will begin at 1:30 p.m.

AREA CAMP FIRE GIRLS yesterday conducted a pumpkin sale. Proceeds will be used to finance the activities of the organization.

Parking need may alter office plans

Plans for a proposed office building at 39 S. Milwaukee Ave. may be drastically altered so that developers can meet Wheeling parking regulations.

Zoning board members reviewing the project indicated that the current plans for the two-story building will not provide enough parking places to meet village codes. They said the building would either have to be reduced to a one-story structure or raised to allow parking beneath the building.

D. J. Rintz and Co. presented plans for a two-story office building, with 5,000 square feet of space on each floor. Ordinance requires that there be one parking space for each employee, based on the maximum number of persons who could work in the building. Plans now only provide 28 spaces.

"You're on Milwaukee Avenue, and there's absolutely no place to park for the people in your building unless they overflow into the shopping center," said zoning board member Neil Brant. "I think this is something you're going to have to be real careful about."

JERRY RICE, REPRESENTING D. J. Rintz, said his company has found this type of building would result in about 12 employees per floor. He said, if possible, the building will be rented to only two

McHenry Rd. project may bring 3,000, traffic woes

A combination apartment and townhouse development proposed for 67.3 acres on McHenry Road may bring nearly 3,000 new residents to Wheeling and may aggravate existing traffic problems in the area.

The zoning board of appeals endorsed the 570-unit development, but noted traffic congestion on McHenry Road will probably become worse when the project is built. The site is located between Whippetree Village and Cedar Run.

Traffic from the project, proposed by U. S. Home Corp., will exit onto McHenry Road from a single road running north-south through the property. The road may eventually exit onto the proposed Lake-Cook Road extension, if such exits are allowed.

A TRAFFIC EXPERT from U. S. Home admitted that the development may create some traffic problems on McHenry Road. For example, he said 70 per cent of morning traffic would exit southeast by turning left onto the road. He said, however, construction in the area will eventually lead to state improvements to the roadway.

Zoning board member Neil Brant said the increased traffic might require speeder remedies than the state usually provides. "Would you be willing to foot the bill for a set of traffic lights in that area if the state won't put them in?" he asked.

The developers said they would consider installing the lights. "We're not here to create problems," said the president of the U. S. Home area division. He said, if possible, his firm would like to solve existing problems.

The apartment section of the project will be developed in six clusters of buildings, three of which will center on retention basins. The 2½- and 3-story buildings will include one- and two-bedroom units.

The 768 rental units will be built on about 41 acres of the site. The remaining 26 acres will be used for 210 townhouse units. The total density of the project will be 15.9 units per acre, just below the 16 units allowed by ordinance.

BABBIN AND ASSOCIATES, architects for the apartment part of the development, were responsible for two other Wheeling developments, Mallard Lake and Lake of the Winds. The townhouses are being designed by U.S. Home. Both parts of the project are scheduled to be developed at the same time.

Retention for the property will be handled by four basins. The storm water will be released into a drainage ditch running southeast along McHenry Road.

Rents for the apartments are expected to range from $225 to $275 a month.

The zoning board's recommendations will now go to the village board for final approval. Zoning board members Ed Slepka and Alan Martin were absent.

C&NW commuter hike OKd

by STEVE FORSYTH

After 11 months of delay, Chicago and North Western Ry. commuters can expect to pay 7 per cent more for tickets next month.

The Illinois Commerce Commission delayed the request made last November because of the federal price freeze, and continued the delay until this month. The commission, which met late yesterday and is scheduled to meet again today, was expected to discuss the rate-hike request at one of the sessions.

The across-the-board increase is expected to bring in an additional $1.5 million in commuter fares, but a spokesman for the railroad said much of that has, in effect, been lost because of the delay of almost a year. Profits for the successful commuter line have dropped from a peak of $2.4 million in 1968 to an estimated $500,000 this year, company spokesmen say.

THERE REPORTEDLY is a provision for automatic approval of the increase if the commission does not rule soon. If approved this week or early next week, the railroad would put the increases in effect beginning Nov. 1.

The hike would be the sixth in six years for the C&NW. Commuters could face a further increase a spokesman said because of pay raises and higher pension fund costs scheduled to become effective soon.

The commission was expected to consider the rate hike last May, but did not take action then. At that time, a C&NW spokesman said the company was losing an additional $133,000 a month without the increase.

Early this year the spokesman said the C&NW was faced with the $1.5 million deficit and had to decide whether to seek

Stolen pills found in field at school

Hundreds of pills stolen Sunday from a Wheeling pharmacy were recovered Tuesday from a field at Mark Twain School, 515 E. Merle Ln., Wheeling.

Police said 300 to 400 of the pills, later identified by pharmacist Steward Steres, were found scattered in the field by some children taking recess. According to police, as many pills as possible were picked up, then the fire department flooded the area and the park district mowed the field.

Despite the efforts Twain Principal Patricia Weiss later saw some youths collecting more pills from the field. About 50 additional pills were then confiscated by police.

Law protecting village employees under review

Wheeling soon may enact an ordinance that would protect village employees from arbitrary demotion or firing by establishing a village appeal board.

Members of the village board are reviewing a rough draft of the Career Employee Ordinance, which was first proposed by employees 2½ years ago. The ordinance is designed to prevent political changes from jeopardizing the jobs of village employees.

Although the ordinance was discussed recently by board members at a committee meeting, copies of the ordinance have not been released to either the employees or the public. Village Mgr. George Passoli said the board did not want to release the rough draft until it is in a form acceptable to the trustees.

THE ORDINANCE was prepared by Village Atty. Paul Hamer on the recommendations of the employee wage and salary committee. It would create a five-member panel appeal board that would have final authority over demotions or dismissals that are challenged.

Employees present at the committee meeting said they favored a temporary appeal board that would be created whenever an employee requested a review of his dismissal or demotion.

Two of the appeal board members would be appointed by the village board, two by the employee, and a fifth member from the community by the other members of the appeal board.

"This ordinance is primarily geared against political influence in the employees position," said Lorraine Lark, a member of the wage and salary committee. She said the ordinance is based on the standard civil service laws, but is merely called by another name.

IN THE PAST few years, village election campaigns have included promises to fire certain alleged patronage workers in the village hall. The appeal board would protect all employees with more than one year service from such political housecleaning.

A similar appeal procedure governs the suspensions, dismissals and demotions for the police and fire departments.

The village trustees are expected to revise the rough draft ordinance during discussions with members of the wage and salary committee. The employees said they could not intelligently comment on the ordinance at the last meeting because they had not received a copy of the rough draft.

S. I. Hayakawa

Pupils today more mature —Hayakawa

S. I. Hayakawa, president of California State College at San Francisco and scourge of student radicals in the 1960s, was quoted in the book "Teaching as a Subversive Activity" yesterday and agreeing with it.

Speaking to the final general meeting of the Illinois Principals' Association at Arlington Park Towers, Hayakawa, who gained fame by wearing a tam and shouting down student radicals, said schools are going to have to find ways to deal with students who are more mature today than in the past.

"Young people are biologically more mature now than they were 60 or 70 years ago," he said, "but their social maturity is delayed much longer. Young people of 16 or 17 are ready to live and take part in whatever has to be done in society."

Hayakawa also reported that student unrest has died down since 1970 because "synthetic poverty" among college students has gone out of fashion.

"Refugees from the student activists call this generation of college students apathetic, but they don't seem apathetic to me. They don't believe problems can be solved by blowing up the administration building. They believe they have to understand problems in order to solve them, so they study and they study and they study — bless their little hearts," he said.

Simon: reforms called for

by WANDALYN RICE

Former Illinois Lt. Gov. Paul Simon brought the style of a professor rather than the style of a politician with him Tuesday when he spoke to a group of Illinois school principals.

In a low-key and frequently self-effacing speech at the fall conference of the Illinois Principals' Association at Arlington Park Towers, Simon sounded more like a professor of public affairs from Sangamon State University than like a man who once nearly became governor of the state.

The former lieutenant governor, who now is a professor at Sangamon State, told the crowd he is concerned about ethics in government and quality of education and said he favors public financing of political campaigns. But rather than use his own political career as an example, Simon cited a historical example for the need for campaign reform.

In 1920, he said, "Warren G. Harding opposed the League of Nations and James Cox favored it. Harding spent six times as much money as Cox and Harding was elected. What if those two had had the same amount of money to spend — would we have been in the League, would there have been a Hitler or World War II? I don't know and I don't think anyone else does."

SIMON ALSO SAID he wants to see income disclosure required of all public officials. "I probably made a lot of mistakes in public life," he said, "but one of the mistakes I did not make was making my income public. If that had been required of Spiro Agnew, he wouldn't face the personal tragedy he has today."

State government must be revived, he said, until "they become 50 laboratories for experiments in government." Wisconsin Gov. Robert LaFollette "experimented and the nation followed. You can't say that about any other governor in this century," Simon said.

He said he would like to see the state government experiment with solutions to problems in education or unemployment.

"What would happen if we guaranteed a job to everyone in East St. Louis?" he asked. "I don't know and I think that's something we ought to look at."

School financing should be changed, he added, "until we will guarantee to every boy or girl in the state an equal education."

Primarily, Simon's message to the principals was that they fight "the erosion of confidence in our system that I see around us. We have a shortage of oil and dairy products, but the real shortage is one of confidence."

Partee unit out to relieve 'tight money'

Senate Democratic Leader Cecil Partee has appointed a study committee to find ways to relieve "the tight money market that has nearly dried up home loan opportunities for Illinoisans." Interest rates are currently limited to 8 per cent, but due to various exemptions in the law, savings institutions often must pay higher interest for money they borrow, thereby making it too expensive for them to make home loans.

Singer contempt decision postponed

The decision on whether Chicago Alderman William Singer will be found in contempt of court for participating in the 1972 Democratic National Convention was postponed yesterday, until Dec. 3. Singer was the leader of a group which ousted Mayor Daley and his troops from the convention, despite Judge Daniel Crevier's order forbidding it.

Leaf burning depends on local laws

Atty. Gen. William J. Scott ruled yesterday that under a new state law, open burning of leaves is "generally permissible" throughout the state. He added, however, the new law does not prevent communities from adopting local ordinances banning the burning. The opinion was requested by Pollution Control Board Chairman Jacob Dumelle.

50 count indictment once eyed for Agnew

Federal prosecutors investigating Spiro Agnew were once prepared to seek an indictment against him on as many as 50 counts of bribery, extortion and tax evasion, a Washington paper reported. Sen. Barry Goldwater, meanwhile, said he got the impression the President knew about the investigation against Agnew even before the former vice president did, but did not elaborate. In Chicago, the president of the American Bar Association said the Maryland Bar should start disciplinary proceedings against Agnew. The hearings, he believes, would lead to disbarment.

No Ford nomination vote for one month

House Democrats indicated it may be at least a month before there is a vote on Rep. Gerald Ford's nomination for vice president. One group, however, described as a "small minority," pushed to put off a confirmation vote until President Nixon complies with court orders on release of tapes to Watergate investigators.

Health insurance plan to be unveiled

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare will unveil next week a national health insurance plan that could cost almost $10 billion more a year, but would provide more benefits than a 1971 proposal. If approved, the plan would call for elimination of the federal Medicaid program.

Endorse Arends as House GOP Leader

The 15-member Illinois Republican delegation yesterday unanimously endorsed Rep. Leslie Arends for the post of House Republican Leader. The unidentified members, said Arends, 70, would be backed as a "favorite son candidate," but Arends is expected to bow out after conferring with the front-runner, John Rhodes of Arizona.

AFL-CIO hires U.S. labor chief Usery

The AFL-CIO has hired top federal labor mediator W. J. Usery Jr. to head its revamped Department of Organization and Field Services, possibly putting him in line to become heir apparent to 70-year-old George Meany. Usery has had a distinguished career in President Nixon's administration as the government's chief labor troubleshooter.

Cuban police yesterday shot and wounded a young Cuban who kidnapped the Belgian ambassador to Cuba, held him hostage for a day in the French embassy in Havana and demanded passage to the United States. The foreign ministry said the ambassador Jean Somerhausen, was freed, uninjured, by the police action.

In Cambodia, fighting continues

Heavy fighting between Cambodian government troops and Communist-led insurgents was reported south of Phnom Penh yesterday. In one battle the rebels pounded government positions six miles from the capital with a captured U.S.-made howitzer. In another battle at Tram Kinar, which has been under attack for four days, government troops fought hand-to-hand with attacking rebels.

Sirica rejects committee's tape bid

SEN. SAM ERVIN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica Wednesday dismissed the Senate Watergate committee's suit to obtain President Nixon's secret tape recordings, saying the court lacked jurisdiction in the case.

By dismissing it on those grounds, Sirica avoided constitutional issues the case had raised.

He dismissed the suit with prejudice — meaning that the committee cannot file it again in his court — but left the committee free to appeal his decision.

Lawyers for the committee refused immediate comment. Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-NC, the chairman; Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., the vice chairman, and Sam Dash, the committee chief counsel, were not immediately available for comment.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren, in response to Sirica's ruling, said, "We're pleased by the result."

Meanwhile, a White House official said Nixon's lawyers, as expected, would appeal to the Supreme Court a ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals in Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox' suit to get the tapes.

Sirica drew a distinction between the separate attempts by Cox and the committee to obtain the tapes.

The ruling was almost certain to be appealed, probably all the way to the Supreme Court.

The committee voted unanimously July 26 to file suit to get the tapes in the face of Nixon's refusal to comply with a subpoena to produce them.

Sirica ruled in a similar suit by Cox that Nixon must turn over the tapes to him for judicial review to decide which, if any, should be given to the federal grand jury.

The U.S. Court of Appeals sustained Sirica's ruling last Friday.

The committee has contended it needs the tapes to corroborate — or knock down — the testimony of its star witness, former White House Counsel John W. Dean III, that he had conversations with Nixon about a Watergate coverup as early as Sept. 15, 1972.

3 firms admit illegal aid to Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) —American Airlines, Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing (3M) and Goodyear Tire and Rubber pleaded guilty Wednesday to federal criminal charges of contributing $125,000 illegally to President Nixon's 1972 campaign.

It was later revealed that all three companies also have admitted to Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox that they made smaller illegal contributions of corporate funds to earlier campaigns — involving both Republican and Democratic candidates — though Cox chose not to prosecute for those offenses.

Assistants to Cox filed the 1972 charges, all misdemeanors, against the companies and two corporate officials simultaneously in three cities. Within hours, all pleaded guilty.

Goodyear was fined the maximum of $5,000 and its board chairman, Russell de Young, $1,000. Henry Heltzer, board chairman and chief executive officer of 3M, was fined $500 and his firm $3,000. American was fined $5,000.

Cox said similar action would be taken "in the weeks to come" against other firms that made illegal political donations from corporate funds, including perhaps felony charges against officials who tried to buy government favors "or where there has been an effort to conceal or withhold evidence of other federal crimes."

Thomas F. McBride, a Cox assistant in charge of a task force on campaign financing, later told newsmen that about two dozen active investigations are under way involving suspect corporate and labor contributions.

McBride said Goodyear, 3M and American officials had acknowledged illegal donations dating back to 1968 involving such things as political dinner tickets, but that these offenses were regarded as minor when compared to the 1972 Nixon contributions.

He also said Goodyear and American had used overseas channels to hide the source of the money, though he declined to elaborate. McBride said all three firms could be subject to tax law prosecutions and that files on their cases would be turned over to the Internal Revenue Service.

Federal law prohibits corporations, labor unions and national banks from making political contributions.

Mideast: —Arab nations launch oil squeeze

KUWAIT (UPI) —Eleven Arab oil-producing nations announced Wednesday they will reduce oil production by five per cent every month until Israel withdraws from occupied Arab territories and the rights of Palestinians are restored.

A spokesman for the 11 member nations of the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries (OAPEC) announced the decision at the end of a one-day conference to discuss ways of using oil as a "weapon" in the current Arab-Israeli war.

The cut in Arab oil output was aimed at countries the Arabs regard as supporters of Israel. The main target was the United States.

The rights of the Palestinians, which the Arab states are supporting, include the right of more than two million refugees to return to Palestine, which they left after the Israeli state was created in 1948 and war broke out between Israel and the Arab nations.

The members of the OAPEC involved in the decision were Abu Dhabi, Algeria, Bahrain, Dubai, Egypt, Kuwait, Iraq, Libya, Qatar, Saudi Arabia and Syria.

The purpose of slashing production at a time when the United States is suffering a growing oil shortage was to put pressure on Washington to stop its support of Israel, oil sources said.

Only about six per cent of U. S. oil consumption comes from the Middle East and Nixon administration officials have said the United States could get by without any Middle East oil if rationing were implemented.

Europe is heavily dependent on Middle East oil. Most European governments said Wednesday they had a six-month reserve of oil and added they already had rationing cards printed in case of a cut-off.

In a move unrelated to the war, six Persian Gulf oil producing states Tuesday night unilaterally increased the market price of their crude oil by 17 per cent to $3.65 a barrel, and increased the posted price of their oil by 70 per cent $5.11, U. S. and Arab oil sources said.

The market price reflects what U.S. consumers will eventually pay for gasoline; the posted price is the amount on which U. S. oil companies pay taxes and its increase meant reduced profits for the Western firms.

The House voted 387 to 72 Wednesday to require President Nixon to impose rationing on production and wholesale distribution of crude oil and all refined petroleum products, and to prevent their export from the United States.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., proposed a series of fuel rationing and conservation measures Wednesday to block what he called an Arab "oil blackmail challenge" in the Mideast war.

Included in legislation were authority for the President to declare a fuel emergency, impose compulsory limits on auto use, set up a standby rationing system, and force electric utilities to use coal instead of oil or natural gas.

People

• Hair: former White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman — referred to in some quarters as the last living American with a brush crewcut — is letting it grow out. Haldeman showed up at federal court in Washington to testify before a grand jury investigating 1972 campaign irregularities, and sported hair long enough to part. He says his son Hank agreed to cut his shoulder-length style to a crewcut if his father would do the opposite... claiming he's the first hippie to run for mayor in Moab, Utah. Steven Winchell promises to cut his hair if elected. It's his only campaign promise.

• The inspector-general of the U.S. Army, Gen. Gilbert Woodward, collapsed and died aboard a jet flying from Washington to London. Gen Woodward, 56, was on his way to West Germany to visit U.S. forces.

• Writing in the November issue of McCall's magazine to mark the 10th anniversary of her husband's death, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis said, "One must not let oneself be numbed by sadness," because "he would not have wished that." She does not actually mention the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination of President Kennedy, saying her prayer is that young people will look at monuments like the John F. Kennedy Library to be built in Cambridge, Mass., and believe that it "is not too late to seek a newer world."

• The president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences showed little patience with the protest by American scientists about the critical treatment of dissident Soviet physicist Andrei Sakharov. In a letter to Dr. Philip Handler, president of the U.S. National Academy of Sciences, Matiaslav Keldysh called the claims "groundless" and suggested it would be "useless to continue correspondence" about it.

—Israel claims 'greatest battle' victory

by United Press International

Israeli tanks teamed with its air force Wednesday to win one of the greatest battles of the 12-day war along the Suez canal. Israel claimed destruction of 100 Egyptian tanks, and said the situation "holds promise for a turning point on the Southern Front."

The main fighting was along the canal where Egypt has pushed a huge army of men and tanks across the waterway. The claims are conflicting. Israel said it has destroyed up to 100 tanks and shot down 10 Egyptian MIGs. Egypt claimed it knocked down 21 Israeli fighters and destroyed "a large number of tanks and armored cars."

According to Lt. Gen. David Elazar, Israeli chief of staff, "The Israeli army is now able to control the nature of the fighting on both banks of the Suez."

Elazar said "the Israeli army has not yet launched its big offensive on the Egyptian front."

On the Syrian front, where Israel has now occupied about 300 square miles in a spearhead stretching to within 21 miles of Damascus, more heavy tank and air battles were reported. Israel said Palestinian guerrillas shelled four border villages in the Golan Heights area; the Syrians reported only heavy artillery shelling and renewed Israeli bombing attacks against "civilian" targets.

Economic policies get double-rapping

From Herald news services

President Nixon's economic policies took a drubbing yesterday from a top labor leader and a Nobel Prize winning economist, both of whom scored the Administration for its failure to manage inflation and recession.

President Joseph Beirne of the Communications Workers of America delivered the bluntest attack at an AFL-CIO Executive Council meeting in Miami Beach, Fla.

He said the Cost of Living Council should be dismantled "and its members sent packing" because of its ineffectual handling of wage and price controls.

Beirne said the council's price controls "are a joke — a nasty joke on workers whose wages were shrunk by freezes and then shredded by bloated prices and inflated interest rates."

"When trying to deal with anything involving prices, whether it's beef on the hoof or gasoline to get you to work, the council decrees by its inaction that we live in an economy half-slave and half-free," said Beirne. "This economy can no longer tolerate the abuse of economic slavery for workers and the simultaneous unbounded license for profiteers."

The economist, Dr. Paul A. Samuelson testified before the House-Senate Economic Committee in Washington and predicted that 1974 will bring a "stagflation" — a combination of further inflation and economic stagnation.

Both consumers and farmers expect every cent that live animal prices drop to be passed on in the form of lower consumer prices "as quickly as possible," Butz said.

Butz, speaking to the National Association of Food Chains annual convention, conceded the adjustment of meat prices is "no simple matter" because retailers reduced their price spreads earlier when uncontrolled live animal prices pushed up against ceilings on wholesale and retail meat.

But he said, "I realize you may be doing all you can to pass on to your customers as much price relief as possible — but that right now you are frankly playing 'catch up' to balance out those very slim or perhaps negative margins of last summer."

Butz said the spread between wholesale and retail beef prices rose 33.8 cents a pound in July but rose to a difference of 44.3 cents a pound in September.

The pork trend was similar, Butz said, with the gap between wholesale and retail prices averaging 31.7 cents a pound in September, 2.5 times the July level.

Butz: supermarkets getting fat on beef, pork prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Supermarkets have been fattening their profit margins instead of cutting beef and pork prices following recent sharp drops in wholesale cattle and hog prices, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz said Wednesday.

Both consumers and farmers expect every cent that live animal prices drop to be passed on in the form of lower consumer prices "as quickly as possible," Butz said.

Butz, speaking to the National Association of Food Chains annual convention, conceded the adjustment of meat prices is "no simple matter" because retailers reduced their price spreads earlier when uncontrolled live animal prices pushed up against ceilings on wholesale and retail meat.

Catalysts 'safe'

Manufacturer defends emission-control device

A Universal Oil Products official yesterday discounted a warning that a new device to reduce auto exhaust emissions may put dangerous cancer-producing pollutants into the air instead.

The warning that the catalytic converter that cleans out pollutants in auto exhaust may be harmful to health came in an Environmental Protection Agency memo written by Stanley M. Greenfield, assistant EPA administrator for research and development. Greenfield said that platinum compounds used in the device could produce carcinogens (cancer-producing agents) as well as aggravate asthma and cardio-respiratory diseases.

"That is untrue," said James Dunham of UOP in Des Plaines, which manufactures catalysts such as platinum and palladium, which are used in the converter. UOP has contracts to provide the catalysts to Chrysler Corp., Toyota Motor Co. Ltd. and three other Japanese automobile companies for converters in 1975 cars.

DUNHAM, GENERAL manager of UOP's automotive division, said the converter has been tested for 14 years and there is "no evidence at all" of health dangers. "The effect of platinum on the body is simply no effect whatsoever," Dunham said. "Platinum salts can produce effects similar to intoxication but the converter does not emit platinum salts."

Dunham said the catalysts, such as platinum, are not destroyed during the conversion or transformed into any kind of by-product.

UOP was one of the first companies to propose the catalytic approach to controlling auto emissions. According to UOP, the catalysts in the converter do the emissions clean-up job without a loss in engine performance. The converter is installed at the factory and the catalysts clean out the hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide and other pollutants in the exhaust. A catalyst is a promoter of change, in this instance converting pollutants to carbon dioxide and water. To make the converter work, lead-free gas must be used.

Dunham said the converter has been found to be 95 per cent effective in removing hydrocarbons from auto exhausts.

GREENFIELD'S MEMO, sent to EPA administrators, was released by Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., who said the device "may be nothing more than a Frankenstein monster." Greenfield urged a one-year delay in the use of catalytic converters to allow more study.

This is not the first time a delay has been sought, according to Dunham. "At least once a month there is a cry of doom," he said. He said one of the most recent attacks against the converter contended that platinum is deadly poison, worse than lead.

"That is not supported by medical research," he said. Dunham would not speculate on Greenfield's motivations for the memo, but another UOP official said much criticism of the converter has come from companies that would lose customers if the converter is used.

Dunham said UOP will continue plans to fulfill the five contracts, which are due in 1974. "There is no definitive proof at all that what is emitted by a catalytic converter can be harmful to anyone and I contest that it is harmful at all," Dunham said. "The expected benefits far outweigh even the results forecasted by the worse soothsayers of doom."

Hoffman Estates site new NIPC office

Hoffman Estates Village Hall has been selected as the site for the third area office of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

The NIPC intergovernmental relations committee approved the site yesterday. Mayor Virginia Hayter offered the office space at no cost to NIPC several months ago. The committee said Arlington Heights and Crystal Lake also were considered as sites, but Hoffman Estates was more central to the area.

The new office is designed to improve communications between NIPC and municipalities in the area served by the Northwest Municipal Conference and Barrington Area Council of Governments. Other area offices are in Homewood and Waukegan.

Paul Kraman, area officer, will be assigned to the Hoffman Estates office. He was chief planner for the Bi-State Metropolitan Planning Commission in Rock Island and was city planner in Moline for five years. Kraman said the most likely areas of NIPC involvement will include wastewater treatment facilities and open space acquisition.

State's attorney probing 'schemes' of sheriff's police in Niles division

by JOHN MAES

Several "wide-ranging investigations" of illegal schemes involving members of the Niles division of the Cook County Sheriff's Police are being conducted by State Attorney Bernard Carey.

The investigations have been spurred by information supplied by a Mount Prospect woman, convicted last June of killing her husband, a lieutenant in the county police department thought to be a member of the ring.

A spokesman for Carey said yesterday that indictments for theft and forgery are expected to be returned "in a few days" against at least three sheriff's officers who bilked the J. C. Penneys department store in Golf Mill Shopping Center out of about $900.

THE HERALD has also learned that sheriff's policemen were involved in a kickback scheme several years ago with at least two Northwest suburban auto towing firms. According to one source, the policemen would receive a $10 payoff for calling a towing operator when an accident occurred.

One source in Carey's office indicated that investigators there are aware of the towing scheme but at this point were not pursuing the matter.

The Mount Prospect woman, Ruthie Carbona, is reportedly providing information in hopes of reducing the 20-60 year sentence she received in the murder conviction. Her slain husband, Lt. Joseph Carbona, reportedly was part of a forgery-theft scheme, which also involved a captain, sergeant and patrolmen from the Niles office. The Penneys theft allegedly took place about three years ago and has been under investigation since that time.

According to Edmond Dobbs, chief of the Sheriff's police, the probe started in December, 1970, when Sheriff Richard Elrod took office. Dobbs said the investigation had been stymied on occasion because of Carbona's death and lack of information.

AT LEAST one of the policemen under investigation was moonlighting for the Penneys store as a security guard. The cash was apparently taken from the store's daily receipts and replaced with forged checks made out for the stolen amounts.

Several Village of Niles policemen may also be involved in the scheme, according to sources. The Niles officers were reportedly trying to cover up the theft by returning cash to the store as restitution.

One employee at Penneys said he knew of the theft "some time ago" and thought the "whole thing had been dropped." Penneys spokesman would not comment on the investigation or involvement of the store.

Carey spokesmen would not comment on other areas of the investigation into wrongdoing in the Niles division office.

NILES Police Chief Clarence Emrickson said he has been aware of the forgery-theft scheme for some time, adding some of his men are under grand jury investigation.

The jury is trying to determine whether Niles police attempted to cover up the scheme by obtaining money from ring members and returning it to the store.

Reportedly, Emrickson, and several Sheriff's and Niles policemen have testified before the jury. The jury has also screened numerous checks and handwriting samples in its investigation.

Country Club basin delayed

In what Buffalo Grove officials are terming "a touchy situation," the new retention basin to be built on the Arlington Country Club golf course has been officially postponed one year.

Construction on the project was to begin this week. Because of legal problems with the Metropolitan Sanitary District, however, the project could not go out for bids in time.

VILLAGE MGR. Daniel Larson said the agreement with the owner of the golf course stated that construction must be completed by April. Since it was too late to start construction, officials felt that the job could not be completed on time and therefore abandoned it.

Although the formal res agreement has not been signed, village officials are sure the state, MSD and the village will come to terms on the matter. When the agreement is signed, it is expected to call for an Oct. 14, 1974 starting date.

Officials would not elaborate on the "touchy" part of the res agreement, but it apparently deals with finances. The state, village and MSD are sharing the cost for the project and it is believed they are discussing new terms.

Larson said the one-year delay will not create any severe problems for the village. If the widening of Dundee Road would have been completed this November, as expected, the situation would have been different, he added.

ONLY TWO LANES of the roadway are expected to be completed before winter, thus creating less runoff than if the road was four-lane.

The reservoir, which will have a 16 million-gallon capacity, will also handle water from the White Pine ditch, Buffalo Creek and the Wheeling drainage ditch.

Larson also said the delay in the golf course basin will allow the reservoir on Arlington Heights road to be completed first. He said the village has learned that construction on the lake will begin in about four months.

The reservoir will take up 100 acres on the southwest corner of Arlington Heights and Checker roads, and Larson said it could be completed as soon as next July.

This project is a joint venture of the Lake County Forest Preserve District, the MSD and the village. Plans call for the area to be developed as a public park and recreational area. The Forest Preserve District will be responsible for that aspect of the project.

Buffalo Grove will be responsible for the maintenance of the retention lake, that will hold 260 gallons of water.

Park district seeks U.S. grant for 26-acre slough

The Prospect Heights Park District has applied for a $55,000 federal grant to purchase the 26-acre Hillcrest Slough. Part of the money would be used to develop the wetland as a wildlife nature center.

The grant is being sought from the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, with the state deciding who gets the federal funds.

Park Comr. Max Lyle, planning the land acquisition committee chairman, did not want to comment extensively about the grant because it involves land acquisition. He did say the district hopes to use part of the money for development and that the slough property is appraised "for nowhere near" the requested grant total.

CURRENTLY, THE park district has filed to start condemnation proceedings to acquire the so-called south slough, south of Hillcrest Drive. Lyle said a court hearing on the condemnation suit cannot be set until the district hears from the state about the grant application.

He said the park district would "love to have" the north part of the slough. Reportedly, the park district has offered $20,000 to the Hillcrest Lake Homeowners Association for the property, but the homeowners group has demanded $130,000.

As for negotiations between the two groups, Lyle said, "Nothing is happening right now."

Parks to discuss Neptune's Den

The Wheeling Park Board tonight will discuss plans for the opening of Neptune's Den, a new recreation center located above the indoor swimming pool, at Wheeling High School, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd.

The second floor of the building has been remodeled by the park district and will serve as a leisure recreation area. Furniture, a pool table, air hockey, television and a ping pong table have been installed.

The park board is also scheduled to consider releasing a park site on McHenry Road to developers of a 978-unit apartment and townhouse project. Developers of the project originally offered the park district a $5,000 donation for the site, but the park board decided the amount was not sufficient.

U.S. Home Corp., developers of the complex, have increased their donation offer to $9,000. The park board is expected to vote on accepting that offer tonight.

Plans for a joint garage to be shared with the village will also be discussed. The park board is waiting for the village board to respond to a proposal to build the garage where village and park property meets.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the Heritage Park recreation building, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

Slim pickin's for area apple producers

own-apples. "There's no picking," said the woman. "There's a shortage this year."

PRICES OF APPLES have increased by 20 to 25 per cent here too. "But this doesn't stop the people from buying," said Louise Beel. However, the management is limiting customers to buy pecks instead of the usual half and full bushel. Each peck is equivalent to 10 to 12 pounds of fruit.

"We're way short of last year's harvest," she said, adding that they had harvested about half of the crop. "This has been the shortest in years."

Caramel apples, pies, doughnuts, cider are staple selling items. To bolster sales, they also sell nuts, cheeses, syrups and jams.

"Some customers get irate and they don't understand about the shortage," she said. "They drive out from the city and find they can only buy a peck. It puts us in a bad limelight."

THE PRICE OF apples has been stable at Wauconda Orchard near Boner and Fairfield roads. But it'll go up as soon as the supply diminishes and apples from other sections of the country are shipped in to be sold, said a spokesman.

The orchard consists of 9,000 trees and only 40 per cent of the crop was harvested this year.

"We feel badly," said the spokesman. "We can't tell people about the shortage unless we take out a full page ad."

Customers can buy as much as they want and the business also makes fruit gift packs.

Bogus $10 bill passed at store

A counterfeit $10 bill was found this week at Elm Farm Foods, 1100 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove.

The bill was the latest in a series of phony bills turning up in the Northwest suburbs. Several counterfeit $20 bills have surfaced in Wheeling, Highland Park and Glenview.

Buffalo Grove police said the bill was made of heavier paper, lacked red lines through the paper, was a different size and had a blurred face.

stores are usually from the northwest portion of the country, according to Bill Newby, director of public relations of the Jewel Tea Co., Melrose Park.

MOST OF THE Midwest-grown apples are used for processing, that is, for secondary apple products like applesauce, canned sliced apples and juice, said Newby. But since there is a shortage in process-type apples, apples from other regions of the country would have to go to make up for the shortage. In turn there is a general overall apple shortage, said Newby.

However, consumers can assume there will be an adequate supply in the stores. "The higher prices regulate the demands," said Newby. "It will informally allocate the supply."

The last major calamity of the apple grower occurred in the late 1940s, according to Logan of the Mossley Hill Farms.

"We were wiped out in a frost," he said. "It killed the whole crop except for a couple of bushels near the top (of the tree). We went fishing that year."

It's a gamble each year with the weather, growers say. "The bud formation of the branches looks good," said Logan. "So we hope to fire back next year."

Adm. Loeffler quits high school board

Adm. Helma H. Loeffler of Long Grove has resigned from the Adlai Stevenson High School Dist. 125 Board of Education.

At Monday's meeting, the board named another Long Grove resident, Justin Fishbein, to fill out Loeffler's unexpired term. The term ends in April, 1974.

Loeffler has been a board member since 1966 and was twice elected for three-year terms. He retired from the U.S. Naval Reserve a year ago and has been president of the Exeter Paper Co. in Chicago since 1948.

In his letter of resignation, Loeffler said although he is retired from the Navy, he still has military and business obligations that prevent him from continuing to serve on the school board.

Fishbein was appointed to the board in 1967 and was twice elected to three-year terms as a board member from an unincorporated area of the district. Early in his second term, Fishbein moved to Long Grove, an incorporated area, and had to resign to permit the board to replace him with a representative of an unincorporated area. (Fishbein is senior project editor of Science Research Associates.)

IN OTHER BUSINESS, principal Paul Kern and several department chairmen described to the board the transition last year's freshmen have made to the sophomore program.

The freshman studies program adopted last year differs significantly from the traditional sophomore program.

Board members have been concerned how the first freshmen to participate in the new program would adapt to the traditional teaching methods used on the sophomore level.

In general, the chairman said the sophomores have adjusted very well. They said they found the students well prepared in most areas, but said they were not as efficient as expected in writing techniques, algebra skills and mathematical problem solving.

However, most chairmen said their observations were tentative and that it was too early to judge the sophomores academically. They will report back to the school board after semester tests.

ALSO, THE BOARD unanimously approved a student exchange program being organized by the Stevenson foreign language department.

The program is to bring 10 to 15 students from Germany to the Prairie View campus for three weeks around Easter next spring. In June and July, the same number of Stevenson students will spend a similar amount of time in Germany. The program is sponsored by the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Two other programs being organized by the foreign language department include an early summer trip to France and a one-week excursion to Mexico during Easter break.

The four-week trip to France is sponsored by the American Institute for Foreign Study and includes three weeks at the Strasbourg summer school in southern France. Another week will be divided between visits to Paris and Rome. Details on the trip to Mexico designed for Spanish students are not yet available.

THE FINANCE and education committees of the Dist. 125 school board will meet before the Nov. 19 board meeting to discuss plans for joining a nearby junior college district.

The board must decide by Dec. 1 if it wishes to be annexed to a particular junior college district. Stevenson is not presently in any junior college district.

Dist. 125 has the options of joining the College of Lake County, Harper College or a new north shore junior college district being formed by several high school districts east of Stevenson.

BECAUSE OF SEPTEMBER losses of more than $900 in the cafeteria operation, prices of some items including sandwiches will be raised five cents beginning Nov. 1.

The price of a hot lunch will remain at 50 cents for the next month, but it may be necessary to raise the price by the first of the year, according to Asst. Supt. Edwin Ellis.

In other action, the board set Nov. 26 as the date for an open meeting to review new goals for Stevenson.

The goals, developed by several citizens' committees, will be discussed at 8 p.m. at the school.

Maine Township teachers stage protest march

Nearly 300 Maine Township teachers braved cloudy skies and chilly weather yesterday afternoon to take their battle with the school board into the streets.

The teachers — members of unions in Des Plaines Elementary Dist. 62, East Maine Elementary School Dist. 63 and Maine Township Dist. 207 — marched the half mile from Maine East High School to Rand Park to publicize their disagreements with school boards.

Teachers in the three districts are seeking the right to negotiate working conditions, including a voice in class size, grievance procedures and faculty evaluation procedures. School boards have consistently refused to negotiate most of these items.

The march, scheduled to begin at 4 p.m., was nearly a half hour late in starting. Small groups of people huddled in the wind discussing the contract disputes and reading leaflets.

THE ATMOSPHERE was reminiscent of a pep rally with teachers in one corner

ABOUT 300 TEACHERS took part in a "March for Education" yesterday afternoon. practicing a "battle song" composed by two grade school teachers while others distributed handouts on negotiations.

March organizers finally assembled the scattered teachers and the group set off down Dempster Road to Rand Park. Union leaders were apparently pleased with the turnout despite the poor weather.

"God must smile on school boards," Dewane Barnes, president of the Maine Teachers' Association, said. "Every time we have a rally, the weather's bad."

Teachers gathered in a tight circle in the corner of the park baseball field to hear speakers comment on the common problems of the marchers. Joe Pasteris, immediate past president of the Illinois Education Association, said "teachers are not professionals until they are sitting down and making decisions to improve the schools."

"IF EVERYBODY from the U.S. Chamber of Commerce down is going to scream at us to be more accountable, I think it's about time they allowed us to sit down and make those decisions," he said.

The former IEA president noted that one motorist asked "What are you marching for, you're overpaid already."

"I know of one district where a teacher with 30 hours graduate work and 15 years experience is getting $11,200 gross salary," he said. "There ain't no teachers walking home with bagfuls of money. You know it and I know it."

John Pacay, president of the Des Plaines Education Association (DPEA), told the gathering "it is nonsense to proclaim that teachers are dedicated professionals while attempting to deny them the right to negotiate on matters other than bread and butter."

Questionnaires, television show to poll public reaction to RTA

The public will be polled this week and their views on the quality of mass transportation forwarded to state legislators who are debating the question of setting up a Regional Transportation Authority in the six-county metropolitan area of Chicago.

More than 500,000 questionnaires have gone out to persons to give a grade to existing modes of transportation by WTTW Channel 11. The results will be sent to Springfield in time for the legislature's new session.

The station also will air a special program, "You CAN Get There From Here — RTA," Saturday at 9 p.m. Public officials will discuss the pros and cons of the proposed RTA and viewers can call in to any of 50 telephones to vote on the plan.

Included in the show will be a filmed history of the evolution of the Chicago area transportation system, and a recap of the political history of the RTA.

THE QUESTIONNAIRES ask for yes or no responses to three statements:

• In general, I am satisfied with the bus and train service available to me now.

• I feel that a Regional Transit Authority should be set up to coordinate all bus and train services and keep them running.

• I feel that tax monies should be used to get safe, clean, fast and better-coordinated bus and train service.

It also asks how often the person uses the buses and trains.

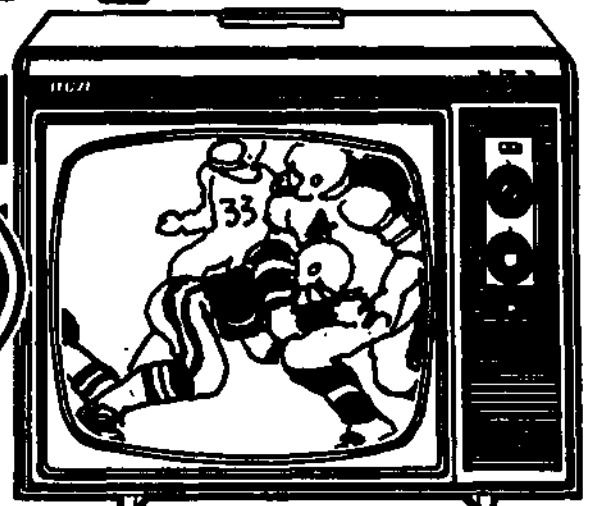

This public feedback program was initiated in conjunction with the Council on Population and Environment, an organization established to help discover ways to create solutions to common problems.

Prairie Path slates Fall Walk Saturday

The Illinois Prairie Path annual Fall Walk is scheduled for Saturday. Those attending should bring lunch and drinking water and are reminded to wear sturdy shoes and clothing suitable for the weather.

The walk will be on the northwest branch of the Prairie Path in DuPage County (northwest of Wheaton) and is divided into two sections: a five-mile walk from Prince Crossing Road starting at 9 a.m.; and a 1½-mile nature study walk starting at Jewell Rd. at 10 a.m. Both sections will meet at the Members' Room, 616 Delle Rd., Wheaton, for lunch. A car shuttle will be provided to return walkers to the starting points.

THE EIGHTH in a series of philatelic handbooks, "The Commemorative Stamps of the Reign of Queen Elizabeth II, 1952-1959," has been released by the Australian Post Office.

Forty-seven Australian commemorative stamps are illustrated and described in the booklet and an appendix features different stages of design development and a number of unadopted stamp designs which were considered during the period.

The other seven titles include "Kangaroo and Map," "King George V," "Early Commonwealth Period, 1901-13," "Postage Due Stamps, 1880-1961," "Commemorative Air Mail Stamps, 1927-51," "King George VI Definitives," "Queen Elizabeth II Definitives, 1952-65."

Each booklet is 50 cents (in Australian funds), post free by surface mail, and can be obtained from The Philatelic Bureau, 12th floor, 374 Bourke St., Melbourne, Victoria, Australia 3000.

THE UNITED STATES Postal Service has announced that purchases of the Boston Tea Party stamps at the Philatelic Sales Unit are limited to four sheets per customer. The policy affects over-the-counter sales as well as mail orders.

The Tea Party block has proved to be one of the most popular ever issued by the Postal Service and the limitation was imposed to make the stamps more readily available to a larger number of collectors and to assure their availability for a longer period.

THE BUREAU of Printing and Engraving will phosphor tag the 1973 Christmas stamps with a horizontal band the width of the image and occupying about one-third of the image surface.

Finally, a County Board shift

The suburbs have been granted a deserved and overdue break by a judicial decision ordering the reapportionment of the Cook County Board. We applaud the decision and we're encouraged to see the board moved Monday to implement that decision.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge Hubert Will's decision, announced a week ago today, mandates the addition of one suburbanite to the board, in agreement with the 1970 census.

The entire reapportionment matter should have been approved routinely when it came to the board several months ago, but the Democratic majority blocked approval, charging county population figures were inaccurate. Their action sparked the court test.

Suburban GOP Comr. Floyd Fuller originally sought the addition of one suburban seat and the dropping of one Chicago seat from the board. Will's decision, however, still manages to change the board enough to give the suburban commissioners veto power over county spending (state law requires a two-thirds vote to approve spending over $5,000).

The board's reapportionment resolution on Monday adds a constitutionally required quirk to the court-ordered decision by allowing the next county board president to not necessarily be a board member. That's a break for the public, as a suburban Democrat or a Chicago Republican could run for the presidency without the certain defeat to be expected in seeking a board seat as well as the presidency.

That predictable defeat would follow from the way the board's elected. Traditionally, the five Republicans have outscored suburban Democrats at election time, while ten Democrats are elected routinely from the city of Chicago.

Now, however, there's a sixth suburban seat to be occupied in 1974, a fact which has not escaped the attention of the suburban GOP establishment, which has been busily scouring the landscape for possible candidates.

We encourage the Republicans to continue their search for men and women who can represent the suburbs on the board, and we also encourage the suburban Democrats to remember that Monday's resolution could provide them with the chance of fielding a candidate to run in the 1974 primary against George Dunne, the incumbent president.

Competition in politics is the healthiest way to elect men and women most representative of and responsive to the suburbs. That healthy competition should be the first result of the long-overdue County Board reapportionment.

Bob Lahey's column

Ending the Agnew epic

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

We have now come, hopefully, to the end of at least one shabby affair in the national government.

The goodnight and farewell of former vice president Spiro T. Agnew on nationwide television Monday night apparently constituted a welcome, though far from satisfactory, finishing chapter to the Agnew epic. There remains, of course, the possibility of further actions against Agnew by the Internal Revenue Service and the State of Maryland, though the betting here is that there will be none.

Despite the nagging questions left unanswered by the resignation and quasi-prosecution, conviction and sentencing of a vice president of the United States, the inclination of the people seems to be to let it go at that.

It has been unpleasant and upsetting, but let's forget it and consign Spiro who once more to the obscurity from which Richard Nixon plucked him in 1968.

Among the questions raised by Agnew's swan song is, first of all, why did he bother? Appearing worn and haggard, the man who might have been president presented a weak, nearly pathetic chronicle of the events which led to his relinquishing the second highest office in the land and his acceptance of a felony conviction.

Despite his acceptance of this conviction, and the fact that he did not dispute the inclusion of evidence of more blatant crimes as part of the record of the court, Spiro Agnew insisted upon coming before the nation to tell it once more that he did no wrong.

Then remarkably, he pointed out to the American people the "fierce competition" and the "formidable pressure for favoritism" exerted upon elected officials by those who seek largesse from county zoning officers, state governors and, apparently, even vice presidents.

He did this without ever claiming that he among other less sturdy officials had always withstood these pressures. He even alluded to the possibility that he may have committed some indiscretion under some former code of behavior which was deemed acceptable until the Republic embraced a form of hysteria which he labeled the "post-Watergate morality."

This reference to a "post-Watergate morality" seemed intended to tell us that we are a naive and tolerant society which never would have worried about what Spiro Agnew did if it hadn't been for that other messy business.

Then the former vice president proceeded to offer the nation his wisdom on the reforms needed in order to spare future vice presidents and others granted the public trust the "sufferings and sacrifice" which have been visited upon him. Never a hint that those sufferings and sacrifice in any way were attributable to his own actions — only to the post-Watergate morality.

It is this, I think, which demonstrates most clearly the thing that the people of this nation must guard against in allowing unworthy men access to the highest offices of the nation.

In Agnew's farewell, there was no note of humility, no admission that he had betrayed the trust of the people of the County of Baltimore, the State of Maryland, or the United States of America. Only the repeated lament that a branch of the federal government had sought to punish him for that betrayal and that a pernicious press had stooped to report that fact to the people.

It was a demonstration, even in his hour of disgrace, of that patrician arrogance common to those who abuse public office.

Such a quality of arrogance, it would seem, is necessary for any rational man in the public spotlight to undertake to defraud the government of taxes, to accept bribes, to extort money from contractors. How else could they do it unless they felt secure in some knowledge that they would never be exposed?

This attitude was reflected in Agnew's stated lack of faith in the American common people. Having resigned as vice president, he declared, he has magnanimously accepted such a presumption of guilt that no jury in the United States could ever be made to see the truth of the proof of innocence which he says he could establish. And in believing these things, he makes of himself not "a crook" as he has been so bluntly described, but a martyr to the good of the erring masses.

And a tired nation, whose capacity for indignation seems at the moment nearly exhausted, appears now content to allow him that final word and to close the book on Spiro Agnew. No need further to revile him; no purpose even to continue to debate the curious logic of the court and the Justice Department which tells us that the higher the trust held, the lesser should be the punishment of he who betrays it.

The best that we can seem to hope for in the immediate future is a "post-Agnew morality" in which those who elevate men to positions of trust — and that includes first the voters — will be more aware of the failings of men who seek high office and will exercise more care in their selection.

Foreign news commentary

Thailand's 'student power'

by PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Last summer the second most powerful man in Thailand held a news conference to protest the growing number of anti-government student demonstrations and some of the things he said he saw.

Girl students, said Field Marshal Prapass Charusathira, "were the worst, behaving in a most ugly manner."

"There were more disgusting sights," he said, "such as hugging, kissing, etc. What I saw makes me feel disgust when I see teen-age girls."

It turns out the students had considerably more on their minds than public displays of affection and that the government underestimated the disciplined strength of the student movement which began manifesting itself as early as 1971.

That students were late entries in the activist student movement, sticking to their classrooms in the 1960s when others around the world were in violent protest against the "establishment" wherever it happened to be.

Their active role began in November, 1971, when Thailand's military premier, Field Marshal Thanom Kittikachorn, and his colleagues shut down parliament and decreed martial law. It reached a climax Sunday night, Oct. 14, in the forced resignation and flight from the country of both Thanom and Prapass.

Preceding the resignations had been a week of growing student demonstrations, at first in protest against the arrest of 13 students and then in protest against continuing military rule and the absence of a permanent constitution.

In the unprecedented violence that followed several hundred persons were killed.

Long known as Southeast Asia's most stable country, Thailand's economic and social structure has been showing signs of strain for many months.

Conservative Thais long have mourned the passing of traditional Thai ways as the country's youth became more and more exposed to the unrepressed exuberance of American GIs on leave.

Economically, a vast influx of American money provided more than 100,000 Thais with jobs, but at the same time made the country dependent upon the continued presence of the American military machine.

In the cities, the result was a sudden leap from a bicycle and water buffalo economy to an automobile economy. It was a one-sided economy, attracting farmers off the land in search of more money in the urban center and on American bases, combined with a three-year drought; one result has been a severe shortage of rice.

It is probable the current upheaval will have the support of both the press and Thailand's popular king, Bhumibol Adulyadej.

The press has called the rise of student power "one of the most important developments in recent Thai history." The king is known to have favored the students' right to speak.

The selection of the 66-year-old Sanya Thammasak as prime minister also is expected to be a popular one. But in a society more used to a totalitarian rule than to democracy, his task will be an enormous one. (UPI)

Agnew 'more vicious than Powell'

The news media is devoting considerable time and space to Agnew. Please for compassion, rationalization of "modus operandi" of American politics and pointed reminders of the great loss he is suffering because, unfortunately, the evidence against him was irrefutable. Mike Royko is the one columnist that I know of, that tells it like it is.

The man is a more vicious criminal than "Shoebox" Powell, Orville Hodge, Kerner and all the rest. The Justice Department and Judge Hoffman have been very lenient. What happened to this administration's hard-line law and order?

Now the same people that selected and elected Nixon and Agnew, want to select his successor. Their principal criteria is that his political position match that of Nixon and the prime candidate is Connally of Texas.

The news media should probe the background of candidates for high office. The electorate should read such background material. If the Nixon lies about bombing in Cambodia, and the Johnson lies about the Tonkin Gulf incident were as publicized as speeches about "nattering nabobs" and "nervous nollies," the best interests of our country would be better served. There are other choice tidbits such as the Liquidonics — U.M.C. manipulation by the Nixon law firm resulting in the failure of Liquidonics Inc. and subverting S.E.C. laws.

I am suspicious of every elected official that strongly supports the death wish of the Pentagon and the military-industrial war machine. They seem to have given up on the supersonic transport bomber but they have myriad ways of depleting the taxpayer and our economic strength. If the Justice Dept. wishes to raise the entire military procurement program and all its friends in Congress. They didn't die with Mendel Rivers. The principal weakness of Congress is its complicity in the rape of the taxpayer.

If we are to encourage crooked politicians, with sympathy and a slap on the wrist, bad leadership and a continued decline is in order for our country. The electorate should be encouraged to forget the morose practice of voting party labels. Also avoid the practice of putting a man down because he had psychiatric treatment or he was honest enough to say he had been "brainwashed" by our military brass.

Bicycle safety pushed

Bicycle safety is hitting the headlines again in its perennial fashion. This time, however, concerned citizens are making their voices heard even at state and federal level.

Dist. 59 School-Community Council has a long record of activity in the area of safety measures to protect our children. Our position on bicycle safety is unequivocal, we support the ticketing of juvenile offenders by the police even though it leads to inconvenience by their parents.

We maintain that ticketing is the only real deterrent against reckless behavior on the street and a small price to pay for reducing the chance of death and injury among Northwest suburban children.

The School Community Council executive board actively supports the reintroduction of ticketing plus a mandatory program of Bicycle Safety Days in all the schools of Dist. 59.

Insurance stories applauded

Dear Len Tonkin:

Thank you very much for sending me copies of your two-part article on the public's right to know about insurance matters. Please allow me to compliment you for writing such an excellent article about a very difficult, highly complex, and generally misunderstood subject. More than that, you are virtually the only reporter who had the courage to handle this issue. Quite frankly, most reporters have been disinclined to write anything about this aspect of insurance regulation simply because it was very difficult to give the necessary background information so that the public could understand the issue involved.

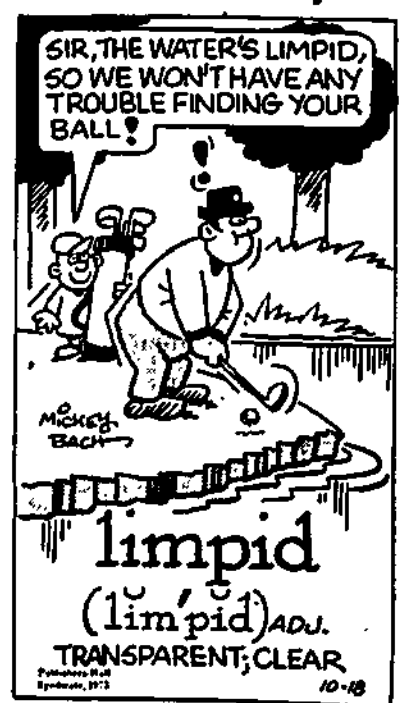

Your article was an excellent presentation of the very important public issues involved in the present structure of state regulation of insurance. You provided your readers with sufficient background so that they can understand the problems and gave them real insight into the existing structure of state regulation. All of us in the Illinois Department of Insurance appreciate your efforts very much because we believe it is important to communicate to the public an understanding of insurance regulation.

Managing your family's money

How do your spending habits compare?

by MERLE E. DOWD

A family facing rising prices with a relatively fixed income often asks — "How does our spending compare with other families?" Economists at the Bureau of Labor Statistics attempt to answer that and other questions by issuing cost-of-living summaries twice a year for urban families in three income levels. Latest released figures reflect price levels current during the fall of 1972.

The time lag between collection of price data and computations to summarize the data can be a trap — particularly when major changes in prices occur as rapidly as during the past six months. Even so, the figures can be helpful. The BLS ideal urban family includes a 30-year-old husband employed full-time, his non-working wife, a boy, 17, and a girl, 9. After 15 years of marriage the family is well established and possesses average inventories of clothing, house furnishings, home equipment, and a car.

Three levels of living are projected. Costs for the lower level of living for autumn 1972 are $7,386. For an intermediate level, costs are $11,446, and for the higher level, $16,538. These are all-U.S. figures for urban families.

Taking a closer look at the figures for an intermediate level, the average urban home-owning family would spend $2,673 for food, $2,213 for shelter, $397 for home furnishings and operation, $1,026 for transportation (mainly automobile), $958 for clothing, $261 for personal care, $632 for medical care, $702 for other family consumption, and $576 for other items such as gifts and contributions, life insurance, and occupational expenses.

In addition, $482 would have gone for Social Security payments and $1,375 for income taxes. Parts add to more than average urban total due to allowance for renters and non-car owners.

SINCE NOT ALL families fit the BLS mythical pattern of four, figures are also included for singles, couples and retired families. A single person under 35 would spend $2,110 at the lower level, $1,150 at the intermediate level, and $4,360 at the higher level. Similar figures for a couple under 35 with no children are $2,950, $4,120 and $6,110 respectively.

A husband and wife over 65 would spend $3,070, $4,600, and $6,360 at the three levels. A single person over 65 would presumably spend $1,600, $2,320, or $3,490 at each level.

How do these consumption levels compare with a year earlier, that is, during autumn, 1971? On average, costs at the lower level increased 2.1 per cent, intermediate level 4.3 per cent, and the higher level 4.1 per cent during the year. Social Security payments increased 15 per cent for intermediate and higher levels. Homeowners' costs jumped 9 per cent for intermediate families and 9.2 per cent for higher level families. Food jumped about 5 per cent at all levels.

ACCORDING TO the BLS figures, living costs vary significantly according to where you live. Looking only at the intermediate level again — where Seattle-Everett is figured at $11,406, you would spend $13,817 for a comparable level of living in Honolulu — or a whopping $15,095 in Anchorage.

The major city with lowest living costs is Austin, Tex., at $9,800. Only the non-metropolitan areas of the South, that is, small towns with 2,500 to 25,000 population offer lower costs than Austin.

Boston at $13,576 and New York City-

Northeastern New Jersey at $13,179 indicate a higher cost of living for Eastern cities.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics emphasizes that these figures do not represent how families actually spend their money. The figures do reflect costs to sustain a defined standard of living at three levels based on patterns developed from exhaustive survey data. And, like most averages, the figures fit no family exactly — and they shouldn't, as each family is different.

"We're Not #1 - You Are..." is the motto of Barton Stull Realty, Inc. To Barton N. Stull, president, and John B. Stull, vice-president, to sales managers and sales associates it is more than a motto — it reflects their desire to provide professional assistance to both the buyer and seller in their relocation needs.

All managers and sales associates undergo an extensive training program in residential relocation, commercial and investment property with the Stulls and respected experts in the related fields of financing and appraisals. "It is through these efforts that this is a company of highly trained professionals working as a team to help in relocations," Stull said.

MAP, Multiple Listing Service, national referral services, extensive newspaper, radio and billboard advertising are all used to present the client's home to the public, along with many innovative sources which are the company's alone.

Barton Stull Realty, Inc.'s brochure "It's your move — that's our business..." contains information on the northwest suburban area and invaluable tips for both the buyer and seller on what to look for when buying and how to prepare for a successful sale.

Along with the brochure, the firm also publishes its own monthly newspaper "The Suburban Relocator" which describes and pictures homes that are available. "The Suburban Relocator" is distributed through direct mail and is displayed in situations frequented by transferees into the northwest suburban area.

Barton Stull Realty, Inc. also works closely with personnel directors of national and local companies in assisting transferred employees with their relocation needs.

The success of the agency's determination to service its clients is reflected in the company's growth record. Starting in 1964 with a single office in Prospect Heights, Stull has added and expanded three additional offices located in Arlington Heights, Hoffman Estates and Buffalo Grove. The new expanded Hoffman Estates office will be open next month.

The company's expansion plans include the 1974 opening of two new offices in Schaumburg and Lake Zurich.

"Barton Stull Realty, Inc.'s success is based on a simple formula: well-trained professional sales associates and managers, dynamic, far-reaching advertising, and most important — dedication to making your relocation a satisfactory achievement," Stull said.

Nationally-known realtors speak at 3-day convention

Don't just lecture your salesmen, let them practice what you tell them.

This was the message from some nationally-known realtors at the Illinois Association of Realtors convention last week at the Marriott Motor Hotel in Chicago. The three-day session drew some 1,500 real estate people for a series of seminars and business meetings under the theme "Pathways to Success."

One of the major sessions Thursday focused on "Building Bridges Through Role Playing" in which Realtor Victor Lyon of Tacoma, Washington, stressed the value of practicing typical situations rather than just lecturing about them. "You can't learn about golf from books; neither can a salesman be ready for all situations from a lecture. He has to practice."

Lyon demonstrated his principle through role playing. Then the realtors took over the role playing and saw just what benefits it had. "The best way to solve a basic problem confronting a buyer or seller is to practice the situation," Lyon commented.

From there, Lyon and three other well-known speakers on the real estate circuit directed the realtors in specific areas — buyers, sellers, salespeople or investors. Role-playing was the name of the game.

Al Mayer, a Cincinnati Realtor who has spoken before the I.A.R. previously, stressed that better than training salespeople to do their jobs, is developing them to understand why they are doing it.

Others who joined Lyon and Mayer in these presentations were Don Roberts of Whittier, Calif. and Cliff Robedeaux of Milwaukee.

The I.A.R. meeting opened Wednesday night, Oct. 10, with a session led by Realtor Ken Rayhons of Colorado Springs, Colo., on "A Journey to Riches." Thursday sessions began with five concurrent workshops on "Money Making Morning Meetings" and more panels and workshops followed that afternoon and Friday.

A luncheon Thursday honored the graduates of the November, 1972, and February, 1973, Realtors Institute of Illinois, retiring members of the Board of Governors of the Realtors Institute of Illinois, and new life members of the Million Dollar Club for 1972.

The installation of 1974 I.A.R. officers took place Thursday night at a banquet with Realtor J. D. Sawyer, 1973 president of the National Association of Realtors, presiding. Gov. Dan Walker of Illinois addressed the group.

The second annual I.A.R. Prayer Breakfast Friday featured Don Kesinger, Chicago Cubs shortstop. The convention concluded with an awards luncheon and presentation by Jack Peckham of Boston, Mass., on "The Magic of Changing Times in Real Estate."

You should clean gutters at least twice a year

Gutters and downspouts have a life expectancy in direct proportion to the care you give them. Galvanized metal may last 8 or 10 years without care and aluminum will survive somewhat longer.

But with care, there is no reason the metal gutters on your house shouldn't be there long after the mortgage is retired.

Aside from the long-range benefit that proper maintenance provides, there also is the very important short-range consideration — helping the gutters do their job.

Gutters and downspouts filled with dirt and debris will not carry off the water that runs down from the roof. Instead, it will overflow, drenching anyone below, washing away the earth around the foundation, accumulating around the foundation and possibly leaking into the basement.

DURING THE WINTER the water will freeze, causing an extra strain on the gutters and possibly tearing them loose. The ice also may back up on the roof, under the shingles, and when it melts, leak through the roof or down into the sidewalls.

Gutters should be cleaned at least twice a year, spring and fall, and oftener if there are many trees around.

Sweep out dirt, leaves and seeds. Mud that has caked up should be scraped out. If the downspout is clogged, use a plumber's snake. A strong stream of water from a garden hose may do the trick. Flush out the gutters with the hose.

Use a strainer at the top of the downspout and clean it out often. Gutter guards — screen-like covers that go over the gutter — are a debatable item.

THEY ARE FINE for keeping leaves out of gutters. But smaller seeds and dirt tend to filter through and then the entire guard must be removed for a thorough cleaning. They tend to work best where debris is lightest.

Once gutters are clean, they should be inspected for rust and damage. Use a wire brush to clean up rust. Follow up with sanding or a rubbing with steel wool.

Coat the bare surfaces on the inside of the gutter with asphalt roof coating. Bare metal on the outside should be painted with a rust preventive primer, then with a finish coat of house trim paint.

Very tiny holes can often be blocked with nothing more than roof coating. Make sure all rusted metal is cleaned away. If the hole is too big for sealing with the asphalt, apply a patch. If you use metal, it should be the same as the material of the gutter. Coat the gutter with asphalt, apply the patch and then more asphalt, sealing all the edges.

Fiberglass patches used for auto bodies can be used on gutters of any metal. Follow the manufacturer's instructions — cutting the patch big enough, soaking in resin and applying smoothly to the clean metal.

Cove Landing condos open in Lombard

Plato Foulas & Co. celebrated last weekend with nautical theme festivities marking the completion of Cove Landing's recreation complex, called The Yacht Club. Cove Landing is the company's new resort style condominium community currently being developed in west suburban Lombard.

The Cove Landing Yacht Club is a unique architectural structure bordering on the edge of the two-acre man-made lake. A series of six connecting buildings with an oriental flair to the contemporary architecture comprise the various facilities. Four of the buildings have two-story cathedral rooflines of cedar shingled roofing with exposed beams and decking on the interior. Combined, the unusual buildings create a spacious interior affording 10,000 sq. ft. of facilities.

THE MAIN LOUNGE, or party room, is the largest room, appearing even larger with the dramatic two-story ceiling. It has a sunken conversation pit with a central copper-hooded fireplace; a wet bar, nautical plank-wood cocktail tables; and a parquet dance floor. Three walls of glass afford a view of the lake and surrounding landscaped area. Across the hall from the lounge is the kitchen providing complete facilities for caterers away from the guests.

Another room features an exercise gymnasium complete with $12,000 of Universal exercise equipment. The gym is adjacent to men's and women's dressing rooms with saunas. Both areas are carpeted with astro-turf.

An audio-visual room has tiered lounge seating for viewing the television cassette system on the 3'x4' screen. The library has comfortable love-seats for reading books and magazines.

The billiard room has five tables for this sport; a smaller game room accommodates darts, backgammon, and small table games; and a card room easily converts to a craft room, a conference room, or a lecture hall for meetings.

THE YACHT CLUB building also has management offices, a large entrance hall decorated like a lounge with modular furniture, several storage areas, and some atrium gardens, including an oriental garden, viewed from inside the clubhouse. The main areas of the building are carpeted in a rich chocolate brown except for the pebble-stone entrance floor.

Men's and women's locker room facilities in the rear of the clubhouse lead to the outdoor Olympic-sized swimming pool and sun deck constructed on the edge of the lake. Outdoors there also will be tennis courts, a sand volleyball court, and ice skating on the lake in winter.

Architects for the $300,000 building were W. D. Murphy Associates, Northfield. All the facilities will be available for use of all residents and their guests at no additional charge.

THE LAKE is the focal point of the entire development, with a 40-foot fountain illuminated at night. There is a pier, used for a boat landing, connected to the clubhouse. Several small sailboats also will be available for residents' use.

The seaside atmosphere is furthered by the boardwalk along two edges of the lake next to the condominium buildings. Authentic chain links attached to wooden posts (weighing 12 pounds per foot) complete the wharf-like appearance of this boardwalk.

COVE LANDING, when completed, will comprise seven 12-story buildings with a total of 987 one-, two-, and three-bedroom condominiums. The first building is nearing completion while construction is underway on the second. The entire community will be developed over a three-year period.

The condominiums, priced from $28,900 for a one-bedroom, $33,900 for two, and $49,500 for three bedrooms, have many interesting features. All have spacious kitchens with double-oven and range, frost-free refrigerator/freezer, and dishwasher. Wall-to-wall carpeting is provided throughout in a wide choice of colors and grades. Each unit has individually controlled heating and air-conditioning. At least one outdoor parking space is provided for each unit, while covered parking also is available in the unique bi-level parking facilities.

There is ample guest parking.

The two- and three-bedroom condominiums each have two full bathrooms, with a choice of formica vanity top, ceramic tile, and floor covering. In each unit, one bath is private for the master suite which also has a huge, room-size walk-in closet. The three-bedroom residences all are penthouses on the twelfth floor of each building.

EACH CONDOMINIUM has a private terrace running the full length of the living room and bedrooms, reached through insulated sliding glass doors. In essence, there are no windows but a solid wall of glass and doors in each major room. The views are of the lake, a nearby golf course, or the surrounding rolling countryside. From any apartment, the view is an asset.

Plans for the development also include a small but elegant resort-style shopping plaza on the property with a number of specialty shops, a major restaurant and convenience stores. There will be a separate professional building on the landscaped mall for offices.

Cove Landing is just a mile from Yorktown Shopping Center and near the Oakbrook Center. There are four colleges nearby as well as other schools and churches of all denominations. There are numerous other points of interest for year-round enjoyment in the area.

The sales office and furnished model condominiums, located on Finley Rd., just north of 22nd St. in Lombard, are open daily from 11 a.m. until 7 p.m. and on weekends until 6 p.m.

Do-it-yourself show package offered

A special organization package plan has been developed for organizations planning to attend the Chicago Land Do-It-Yourself Show at the International Amphitheatre, Oct. 30 thru Nov. 4.

"This special plan was developed," according to managing director Ronald P. Ranko, "in response to numerous requests from organizations wishing to visit the Show as a group."

Any organization planning to visit the do-it-yourself show may benefit from reduced rates offered. This savings may either be used to further club projects, or as a direct box office savings for individual members.

Groups attending from out of town may be assured of bus loading and unloading at the show entrance, as well as free bus parking.

The show will showcase the world's largest variety of how-to projects, ranging from building a jet aircraft to baking bread.

Student government—a new twist

Student government at St. Viator High School has a new dimension this year.

Members of the executive committee of the student council meet regularly with faculty and school administrators to explain the student body's views and to advise on matters dealing with pupil policies and interests.

Council members have also organized a Pep Club this year, re-activated the Lettermen's Club, encouraged the formation of newly-formed bowling league and worked with pupils of Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows on coordinated student activities.

Homecoming week, regionals week and special Christmas activities will be directed by the activities committee of the council. One elected student from each class and a representative of the band, newspaper, yearbook, radio station and Lettermen's Club make up the committee.

Veterans' News

Servicemen overseas will be briefed on their veterans benefits by military personal affairs counselors rather than Veterans Administration representatives under a VA-Department of Defense agreement effective July 1.

Since 1967, VA counselors have been stationed in nine overseas locations, and military hospitals and separation points in the United States, in an all-out informational effort. The so-called "outreach" effort will be continued, but instead of briefing servicemen individually as in the past, VA experts will train military counselors. VA will concentrate its direct efforts on those who have been discharged from military service.

During the five years of the VA military counseling program, VA counselors were stationed in Europe, Vietnam, Okinawa, Japan, Korea and aboard aircraft carriers in these areas. Almost 2 million servicemen received group briefings or personal interviews before returning to the United States.

Three million additional servicemen "got the word" from VA counselors at 200 military separation points and 100 military hospitals. Advance applications for veterans' benefits were also completed by the VA counselors.

The new counseling program stems from a recent law (P.L. 92-540) that places greater informational responsibility on military service branches.

As the VA counselors now stationed overseas complete their tours, the new program will be phased in. The last VA specialist left Vietnam in December, 1972. Those in Thailand, Japan, Korea, Okinawa and Europe are finishing their tours.

Q — How do I go about getting the $150 annual clothing allowance the Veterans Administration now pays certain disabled veterans?

A — If you wear a prosthetic or orthopedic device for a service-connected disability which tends to wear out or tear your clothing, all you need do is apply to the nearest VA office.

Q — As the 18 year old son of a veteran who has a 60 per cent service-connected disability, am I eligible for VA education benefits?

A — No. Only children of veterans who suffered permanent, total disabilities or deaths from service-connected causes, or children of servicemen missing in action or prisoners of war for more than 90 days are eligible for education benefits.

Social Security and you

Cash those Social Security checks as soon as possible

Social Security checks should be cashed within a reasonable amount of time to prevent loss or theft, even though there's no time limit on cashing them, according to Norman R. Thoresen, manager of the Arlington Heights Social Security office.

"If your check is lost or stolen, get in touch with your nearest Social Security office at once," Thoresen said. "A formal claim must be made to the Treasury Department for stoppage of payment and the issuance of a substitute check. The check can be replaced, but it takes time."

"Handle your check carefully when you get it and you won't have to wait while it's being replaced," said Mr. Thoresen.

The Arlington Heights Social Security office is located at 120 W. Eastman. The phone is 253-7512.

Q. I'm retired and my daughter who's a student gets Social Security checks. She'll be 22 next December but won't graduate from college until January. We've been told that her checks can continue until she graduates. Is this true?

A. Yes. Student benefits do not always end when the student becomes 22. A full-time, undergraduate student who remains unmarried may continue to get checks after the month the student becomes 22. The student's checks stop at the end of the quarter or semester in which the student reaches 22 or 2 months after the student's 22nd birthday, whichever comes first.

Q. I always thought the Social Security program was only for older people. Is that true?

A. No. Today Social Security could just as easily be called a young worker's insurance program. The program has changed a lot since 1935, when it was enacted. The survivors program provides income for the families of young workers who die prematurely. The disability program provides monthly checks for severely disabled workers under 65 and their families. Over 4½ million children today are receiving Social Security benefits based on the work record of a parent who has retired, become disabled, or died. Many children are being helped through college by Social Security student benefits that were made possible by their parent's contributions to Social Security during their working years.

Q. My husband and I have had custody of our two granddaughters, who are 10 and 12 since the death of their parents in 1964. My husband is retiring in December at 63. I'm 63. Can our granddaughters receive any Social Security payments when my husband starts getting monthly benefits?

A. Your granddaughters might be eligible for a monthly payment when your husband retires. Grandchildren can get benefits if they were under 18 when they began living with their grandparent. If the children were living with and being supported by the grandparent for the year immediately before the grandparent retired, and if the children's parents have died or are disabled. When your husband applies for retirement benefits, he should also file an application for your grandchildren.

Q. I am on Medicare. My medicine runs me about $60 a month. Is there any help I can get from Medicare to pay for this?

A. Medicare will not pay for prescription drugs and drugs you can administer yourself. It covers only drugs which cannot be self-administered and are received in a doctor's office or as an outpatient in a hospital.

Q. I have Medicare coverage and have doctor bills throughout the year. Should I wait until the end of the year to file all the bills?

A. No, it is better to file three or four times throughout the year. File as soon as you have the first $60 expense so that the deductible can be established on your record.

Q. I understand that Medicare now covers people with kidney disease. Could you explain what this means?

A. People who have worked long enough under Social Security — and their dependents — are eligible July 1, 1973 for Medicare coverage if they have chronic kidney disease. The coverage begins the fourth month after dialysis (artificial kidney treatment) starts and lasts for a year after the month dialysis ends or the patient has a kidney transplant.

Truly fine living in a home designed and built for you.

DuBrow on TV...by Rick DuBrow

Teleplay on social work outstanding

HOLLYWOOD — "The Man Who Could Talk to Kids," an ABC-TV teleplay that aired Wednesday night, was beautifully realized drama about a social worker's attempts to help an emotionally disturbed teen-age boy.

Broadcast as part of the network's 90-minute "Wednesday Movie of the Week" series, the story also interweaves effectively the social worker's private dream to quit his bureaucratic job so he can concentrate on what he wants to do most — help youngsters.

In the leading roles, Peter Boyle as the social worker and Scott Jacoby as the troubled boy were so good that they drew a viewer into the story with performances that do not even seem like acting. They were given an outstanding script by Douglas Day Stewart and sensitive direction by Donald Wrye, and the result of these combined talents was a production that is certainly of award caliber.

The network says the tale, filmed on location in the Los Angeles area, "stemmed from a suggestion from an ABC executive and is based on . . . incidents in the life of Harold Mondschein, administrator of Harmony Center in Calabasas, Calif., and a clinical social worker in private practice." The boy in the drama, says ABC-TV, "is a composite of several youngsters Mondschein has helped." And the role of Charlie Dattweiler Boyle is, according to a network summary, "patterned after Mondschein."

ABC-TV's SUMMARY adds that "the Center, which started with four youngsters less than 10 years ago, now has an enrollment of 100 and a staff of 25 teachers."

Script-writer Stewart says this: "Charlie Dattweiler is a blend of the old and the new. He is not the rural doctor. He is restoring the human relationships of modern society. He is what he is. He has not lost touch with the kid he was as most of us do."

Boyle is deservedly getting attention as an actor after his portrayals in such motion pictures as "Joe" and "Slither." Jacoby, meanwhile, continues to build a reputation that is notable for a performer of such young years. Last season, for instance, he was featured in another outstanding ABC-TV teleplay, "That Certain Summer," playing a teen-ager whose divorced father Hal Holbrook had to explain his own homosexuality to the distressed youngster.

In addition to Boyle and Jacoby, the drama had finely etched performances by Robert Reed and Collin Wilcox-Horne as the boy's parents, and Tyne Daly as the social worker's wife, who does not let him give up on his dream to open his own school.

THE TELEPLAY also benefits from the splendid camera work of Gene Pollio and film editing of Walter Thompson. Overseeing this exceptionally worthwhile and tasteful presentation were producers Robert W. Christensen and Rick Rosenberg, for Tomorrow Entertainment.

The only regrettable thing about the tale is that it ran into the head-on competition of NBC-TV's World Series game in part of the country.

Acute pancreatitis can lead to sudden death

In just four days we recently lost a dear member of our family to an illness diagnosed as pancreatitis. I need to know what causes this sudden disease, its symptoms, proper treatment and whether or not it is usually fatal.

At the outset let me say that there is a difference between acute sudden pancreatitis and chronic pancreatitis. The outlook in the chronic form is somewhat different — although it can become poor if underlying problems are not corrected, such as a gall stone blocking the duct from the pancreas or failure to correct an underlying alcohol problem.

Acute pancreatitis is sudden inflammation of the pancreas, the organ lying underneath and behind the stomach at the upper left part of the abdomen. The picture varies a great deal. In general there is obstruction of the drainage of normally produced pancreatic juice into the small intestine. These juices tend to break out of the normal drainage ducts within the gland and chemically inflame or even digest the pancreatic tissue. This in turn leads to more damage and the process can accelerate rapidly.

THE PANCREATIC juice contains powerful enzymes used to digest both proteins and fat. They are capable of causing severe inflammation of the pancreatic tissues. If swelling of the tissues is all that occurs, the patient may do fairly well and recover.

The usual picture is one of shock and it can be very severe. Some of the proteins that are released into the bloodstream tend to dilate the small arteries throughout the body and blood pressure falls.

Treatment is directed toward relieving the shock when that is the main feature. Sometimes there is an associated diabetic complication if the islets of Langerhans within the pancreas that produce insulin are also severely damaged.

There is usually abdominal pain, and it can be in the pit of the stomach and radiate to the back. Other patients may not have such severe pain. The pain can resemble many other conditions that can occur in the abdomen, including a ruptured peptic ulcer.

IF THE DAMAGE and inflammation of the pancreas is severe and if it is associated with bleeding into the pancreas, which can and does occur, then only about half of the patients survive the acute attack under the best management.

Surgery is usually not attempted during the acute attack unless it is obvious that medical treatment is not going to prevent the patient's demise. It can be harmful. It is a very serious medical problem and the outlook isn't too encouraging.

There are many causes of it. Underlying gall bladder disease resulting in a stone in the bile duct may block the pancreatic duct and is a common cause. Alcohol is another frequent cause and there may not be any cause that can be identified. Rare causes include infections such as mumps which can involve the pancreas much as it involves the glands in the neck and jaw region.

Anesthesia by acupuncture amazes heart specialist

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It was an extraordinary day for Dr. Tsung O. Cheng, a Chinese-born American doctor who works as a heart specialist in the nation's capital.

More than two decades after leaving Shanghai, Dr. Cheng was back in his native city. He was dressed in a surgical gown in The Third People's Hospital of Shanghai watching a fully conscious 12-year-old lad undergo a major open-heart operation solely under the anesthesia produced by acupuncture.

And the Chinese surgeon performing this radical feat — so far never tried in the West — was Dr. Cheng's medical school roommate of 23 years before, Dr. Yeh Chung-shue.

THE FINE acupuncture needles were inserted deftly in the boy's wrists and ears, and gently agitated. Dr. Yeh sliced open the boy's chest with one sure, experienced stroke. The breastbone was severed with a modern electric saw. The rib cage was forced open with dividers, exposing the heart, palpitating in its sack.

A few more strokes of the scalpel and the heart sack was slit. Then the heart itself was opened as a heart-lung machine nearby took over the patient's circulatory functions.

Dr. Yeh quickly sewed up the hole between the two chambers ventricles of the heart, giving the boy every expectation of a normal life ahead.

The boy lay patiently, occasionally sipping tea from the spout of a tea pot provided by a nurse. He hardly winced. He only wrinkled his nose slightly and complained of tightness when the surgeon closed up his chest.

DR. CHENG, 48, recreated this extraordinary day recently at the George Washington University Medical Center by screening the film which a cameraman had made of the operation — the 70th open-heart operation Shanghai executed entirely with the anesthesia produced by the age-old Chinese art of needling.

"I never believed that I would see this happen," said Dr. Cheng, a cardiologist who acknowledges that he used to be as skeptical as anyone about acupuncture in general, and acupuncture anesthesia in particular.

Now Dr. Cheng, who was trained under the venerated American cardiologist Dr. Paul Dudley White of Massachusetts General Hospital, is convinced by what he saw.

DR. CHENG was invited to China by the Chinese Medical Association to demonstrate an American technique for spotting blockages in the coronary artery — the cause of heart attacks.

"Heart disease and cancer are the two major illnesses of the Peoples Republic of China," Dr. Cheng explained in a recent interview. "The incidence of heart disease has risen dramatically in China in the last 10, even five years."

"The Chinese want to learn everything they can from us about heart disease. But you know, I feel I brought back more from them than I took to China."

The Chinese-American doctor, trained totally in Western medicine at St. John's University School of Medicine in Shanghai in the late 1940s and in the United States since 1950, sees himself as a bridge between the two nations. Next year he will make his third trip as leader

Picture yourself at Turnberry

Turnberry Country Club overlooking one of the three Turnberry Lakes.

Where the crest of a hill, a lush green fairway, a beautiful lake or century-old trees adjoin your living room.

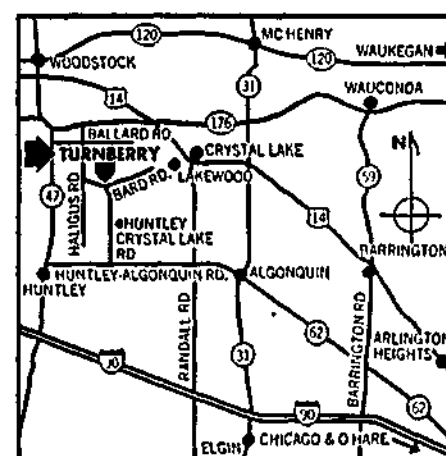

There are 1100 acres of woods, hills and valleys to be hiked, biked, explored and enjoyed. Three beautiful lakes of nearly eighty acres to be fished and sailed. And the private Turnberry Country Club includes a 6901 yard championship golf course, a majestic French Normandy Clubhouse high on a hilltop with superb views of greens, fairways and a scenic lake. An Olympic-size pool set dramatically into the hillside and tournament-quality tennis courts.

Living in Turnberry you can enjoy all of these leisure time activities fully... you see it's only a 10-minute drive to the suburban Crystal Lake North Western Station. Expressways to O'Hare and all of Chicagoland are just 15 minutes away.

Each custom-designed home must have architectural approval. No two homes may be alike. Protective covenants assure that the basic residential nature and way of living in the community will never change.

There are no ordinary homesites at Turnberry. Here, the crest of a hill, a lush green fairway, a beautiful lake or century-old trees adjoin your living room.

Sites average ¾ of an acre and, more important, have a minimum of 150 feet of frontage at the building line. All are improved with winding paved roads, water, sewer and underground utilities. Homesite prices start at $18,000 and may be purchased under contract with a small down payment... providing the option of building now or in the future. Drive out today or, if you can't, phone or write for a free brochure.

Take Northwest Tollway (90) to Barrington Rd. North to Algonquin Rd. (62), then northwest on 62 into Town of Algonquin. Cross Rt. 31 and go straight ahead (west) 5 miles on Huntley-Algonquin Rd. Turn north on Huntley-Crystal Lake Rd. to property. Watch for signs.

The Lighter Side...by Dick West

'In order to spare the nation agony...'

WASHINGTON — The text of a computer printout containing an "important final notice" from a mail order gift house:

"Our records show you have not made any purchases from us for quite some time even though we have sent you our catalogs regularly. Ordinarily, we would remove the West name from our mailing list without notice... but we are giving you one last chance."

THE TEXT OF the statement responding to the notice:

"Upon advice of my attorneys, and in order to spare the nation the agony of a protracted correspondence between man and computer, I plead nolo contendere."

"Which is to say that without admitting any wrongdoing I shall not challenge the computer's allegation."

"The matter could not be resolved otherwise without a long, divisive and debilitating struggle that would distract my attention from important national problems — to the country's detriment."

"I admit that I have received catalogs from the company named in the computer printout. I further acknowledge that no orders for items listed in the catalogs have been placed by me."

"FOR THE RECORD, however, I categorically deny having solicited the cat-logs or promised anything in return. I further state that I was in no way responsible for my name being placed on the mailing list.

"And finally I do assert that my failure to order any merchandise was part of a well-established pattern that existed before the catalogs began arriving."

"Therefore, the computer's attempt to prove ingratitude on my part is invalid."

"Moreover, I do aver that attaching the 'final notice' to the cover of the company's 1973 Christmas catalog was a deliberate, contrived effort to embarrass me and pressure me into ordering something."

"Its location was such that the notice could easily be read by the postman and by my associates who may have seen it in my mail slot or on my desk."

"THE EFFECT was to brand me as an ingrate in the eyes of persons unfamiliar with the true circumstances of my failure to buy anything."

"Thus was I denied the right of privacy that has traditionally existed in communications between man and computer."

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

"To finesse or not to finesse, that is the question," soliloquized Hamlet, the melancholy Dane.

Guildenstern had opened the queen of diamonds against Hamlet's four-heart contract.

The fair Ophelia, who had merely raised Hamlet from one heart to two, put down a sound dummy. Hamlet's hand was sound also and a quick look at dummy indicated that everything was fine in the state of Denmark.

He won the diamond lead in dummy and played the queen of hearts. Rosenkranz, sitting East, was too good a bridge player to cover one of equal honors with another honor, so his failure to play the king or to stop to think gave no clue to the monarch's location.

Hamlet soliloquized further, "The fair Ophelia will be mad if I don't make this contract. Can I lose it if I finesse? Yes, I can. Can I lose it if I don't finesse? No, I can't."

He was right. If he finessed, West would take his king and lead another diamond. Dummy's second high diamond would be ruffed and with two tricks in the defense would still collect a diamond and a spade.

But Hamlet went up with his ace; led a second trump and claimed his contract.

Speech on Indian movement tonight

The American Indian Movement and its program to create a "communist-style" revolution will be the subject of a speech by an expert on Indian lore and culture tonight in Itasca.

Eugene Rooks, a member of the Ojibwa Sioux Tribal Council at Pine Ridge, S.D., will explain his view that AIM's activities do not support the Indian cause. The organization took part earlier this year in the Indian occupation of Wounded Knee.

The program at which Rooks will speak is being sponsored by the West and Northwest Support Your Local Police committees. It will be held at Washington Grade School, 301 E. Washington St., Itasca.

ROLLING, ROLLING. Mrs. Joyce Marsch, teacher at the Buffalo Grove Early Learning Center, leads her little ones in games, song and encourages them to experiment and experience sensory pleasures.

THESE ARE MY EYES. Vonessa Fenlon learns through hand games because she delights in her activity. At the Early Learning Centers children have opportunities to explore, experiment, manipulate, observe and question. The centers offer full day care, nursery school and kindergarten.

Early Learning Centers

Experience is the teacher

by KAREN THOMPSON

At 9 o'clock on Monday morning, I was sitting at a knee-high table, on a chair about the size of baby bear's, with a posterior the size of mama bear's, at the Early Learning Center in Buffalo Grove.

I watched as the 3 and 4-year-olds filed into the building each at the hand of a "buddy." All the tots took turns at the mini-drinking fountain and in the doll house-sized bathroom. The materials and equipment at the center have been designed by specialists in the field of early childhood education. It's a child-centered environment.

With the preliminaries done, the youngsters changed to their "inside voices," strolled into the bright airy room, hung up their own coats and took their places around one of their teachers, Mrs. Joyce Marsch.

Sitting on "their bottoms, Indian style," the small set learned about the calendar, sang their "Hello, Good Morning" song to start the day, and ended the morning sing-a-long with "On Top of Spaghetti," which appeared to be the favorite.

NEXT CAME the hard part. Should I choose from the table set up with Play Dough, the table designated to make macaroni collages, the kitchen, the block corner or the easels and paints?

I chose Play Dough. Andrea explained to me that her neatly patted formation was a pie. "Cherry, I suppose," she said convincingly.

Sitting next to her was Darren, making snakes with his portion of the malleable mess.

Danny told me his creation was a doughnut.

"EXPERIMENTATION IS the key to learning," said Mrs. Marilyn Olson, curriculum supervisor and coordinator for the centers. "We are working toward creativity. Children must make choices and learn by them. We let them try and try and when they succeed, they feel a sense of accomplishment," she said.

The atmosphere at the Early Learning Centers is one with carefully defined limits in which each child can feel free to explore and grow. "Each child is accepted as he is, praised for his accomplishments — big and small — and made to feel that he is an important and worthwhile individual," said Mrs. Olson.

Early Learning Centers, Inc., was founded by Arvid Olson, administrator of the schools, and his wife, Marilyn, in 1967. New schools have opened each year since that time to keep up with the growing demand for quality preschool education. Today there are five centers, each licensed by the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services.

Four of the centers are located in church facilities in Arlington Heights, Elk Grove Village, Palatine and Schaumburg.

New this year is the specially designed building in Buffalo Grove. A dream came true.

BUT, AS MRS. Olson pointed out, "the facilities are far less important than good teachers and staff." All teachers at the Early Learning Centers have bachelor's degrees and specialized training and experience in early childhood education. Many have master's degrees.

"They understand children and how they learn. Children must trust their teacher to provide activities they can learn from," said Mrs. Olson, the mother of two young boys.

"We seek teachers with maturity in dealing with both children and adults," Mrs. Olson explained. Parent conferences are scheduled regularly.

The teachers operate in teams of two, working together to fulfill the needs of all the children on an individual basis. According to Mrs. Olson, teachers with different points of view are often paired so they, too, can learn from each other.

Wondering is the delight of children. It is their way of finding out about the world about them. "The preschool years is the period when children develop an open and creative attitude toward learning and problem-solving," Mrs. Olson said.

AT THE EARLY Learning Centers, youngsters work with materials that encourage understanding of colors and shapes, number concepts and science concepts. They learn reading readiness and language development through dramatic play, conversation, music, stories and visual aids.

Creative art materials encourage tots to experiment and experience sensory pleasures. Outdoor equipment and activities help them to develop muscle coordination and balance.

"The children learn math through games instead of by memory," Mrs. Olson said. She stressed that Sesame Street, the well-known television show for the young folks, is good to a point, but children's learning through TV is restricted to merely watching.

"Children learn by experiencing. Many times a child chooses not to share with others. Next time his classmates may not want to play with him. They learn that their behavior affects everyone else," Mrs. Olson explained.

The center provides a place where children can build rewarding relationships.

"They need friends to play with and share with," Mrs. Olson said. "At the Early Learning Center there are friendships and frictions. The self concept and image formed by youngsters at this age is most important for their whole life," she added.

"OUR PURPOSE is to provide an environment where a child can grow and develop at his own rate of speed," Mrs. Olson said. Classes at the Early Learning Centers average 10 children for each teacher.

The centers offer full day care, nursery school and kindergarten. Schedules vary from school to school.

Children who are 3 by Dec. 1 are eligible to enroll. Kindergarteners must be 5 by Sept. 1.

Enrollment for nursery school is for the standard school year. Tuition is $55 a month for five half days a week, $34 monthly for three half days a week and $25 monthly for two half days per week.

FULL DAY CARE enrollment is operated on a monthly basis. This program includes a complete nursery school or kindergarten session each day, with a well balanced hot lunch and a two-hour nap, required by state law, at a cost of $30 a week for five full days, $8 for one full day (minimum of two days a week), $20 for five half days a week (mornings).

Transportation is available in most areas at $20 monthly for five days a week, $15 monthly for three days a week and $12 monthly for two days a week.

For further information about Early Learning Centers readers may call 255-7335 or 541-8082.

Sin an age-old problem says famed psychiatrist

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

You love your temper and hurt someone — verbally, punching their feelings. Or physically, by bashing them.

"I couldn't help it," you say later. You blame your glands. Or your nerves. You never blame yourself. To do so would be to admit you sinned. And everyone knows, doesn't everyone, sin is passe.

Not so, says the distinguished psychiatrist, Dr. Karl Menninger of Topeka, Kans., and chairman of the Menninger Foundation. Sin's very much around and not to admit that can be bad for mental health and morally bankrupt one.

Dr. Menninger takes on sin in a new book, "Whatever Became of Sin?" (Hawthorn).

His short definition of sin: wrongdoing. His slightly longer definition: "hurting other people." His longest definition:

"Sin is transgression of the law of God; disobedience of the divine will; moral failure. Sin is failure to realize in conduct and character the moral ideal, at least as fully as possible under existing circumstances; failure to do as one ought towards one's fellow man."

IS THE CONTEMPORARY population of the world more or less sinful than earlier ones? In other words, is the human race getting better or worse? Dr. Menninger answers:

"I think things are generally better, but it may seem worse since there are more of us."

What's wrong about sin? He answers:

"The wrongfulness of the sinful act lies not merely in its nonconformity, its departure from the accepted, appropriate way of behavior but in an implicitly aggressive quality — a ruthlessness, a hurting, a breaking away from God and from the rest of humanity, a partial alienation, or act of rebellion."

Dr. Menninger sees sin as an age-old problem which has been forgotten in a society which relies almost solely on self-rationalization, jargon-laden labels and expediences.

Moral health is what concerns the psychiatrist. The "everyone is doing it" morality which characterizes the public-business-personal world is crippling people, according to Dr. Menninger.

HE SUGGESTS a person believe in personal responsibility to "correct our individual transgressions — the white lies, the petty cheating, the apathy which characterizes our passive experience."

Dr. Menninger founded with his father and brother — later, his son and nephews developed a psychiatric center in Topeka. It is known now all over the world. He also is the author of "The Crime of Punishment." That book is said to have been one of the major spurs to the penal reform movement now under way.

Why is sin his topic now? He believes mental health and moral health are identical. He says the recognition of the reality of sin offers to the suffering, struggling, anxious world real hope.

Clearbrook brunch on Nov. 4 will aid new living center

Sunday, Nov. 4, will mark the 10th anniversary of the benefit brunch sponsored by Friends of Clearbrook. As in several years past it will be held in the Jimmy Durante Room at Arlington Park Towers from noon to 3 p.m.

Proceeds of this year's brunch will go toward helping to defray the $14,000 deficit incurred in remodeling Clearbrook House, the newly acquired living center for workshopers and other "graduates" of Clearbrook Center who are "on their own" and gainfully employed in the community.

Since 1963 the Friends have raised money to meet specific needs of Clearbrook Center, both at the Rolling Meadows center and the Elk Grove Village workshop. Clearbrook House, which opened just a few months ago, is the former home of the nuns from Our Lady of the Wayside Church in Arlington Heights.

CHAIRMAN of the '73 brunch is Beth Shanahan with Jan Impey as co-chairman. Charlotte Van Gorp, 259-6479, is in charge of tickets, while Ruth Kinka and June Hoban are collecting prizes. Decorations are being planned by Margaret Peterson and table centerpieces will be provided by Kinsch Village Florist, Palatine.

Other chairmen include Helen McAllister and Mary Austin, bar; Irene Smith and Georgia Drake, hospitality; and Mimi Mead, publicity. Diane Kelly is president.

The brunch is the Friends' main fund raiser of the year.

Delta who donated the machine, get a demonstration from Clearbrook worker. The alumnae also gave dining room chairs to Clearbrook House, Arlington Heights, and an airflow mat for recreation at Clearbrook Center, Rolling Meadows.

His bride is a sergeant

Lt. John Howard Sandgren may be able to pull rank on his new bride while on duty at Warren Air Force Base, Wyoming, but at home, his sergeant wife, who is also stationed at Warren, may give the orders. The couple, who met on a blind date, were married Sept. 22 in St. Peter and Paul Catholic Church, Moquah, Wis.

The second lieutenant is the son of the H. C. Sandgrens, 1242 S. Highland Ave., Arlington Heights, and the sergeant is the former Marie Jane Zurlan, daughter of the John Zurlans of Moquah. The couple, who make their home in Cheyenne, Wyo., have delayed their honeymoon until spring when they will visit in Hawaii.

Marie studied at the University of Wisconsin, Superior, and John is a graduate of Forest View High and Iowa State University.

FOR THE one o'clock double ring ceremony Marie chose a white cotton lace gown and shoulder-length veil held by a band of lace daisies. Her flowers were a cascade of white daisy pompons with yellow tea roses and baby's breath.

Marie's sister, Barbara Gerk, Mother Air Force Base, Calif., was matron of honor, and her sister, Irene Zurlan, was bridesmaid. Both wore mint green fluffed voile gowns trimmed in kelly green ribbon. They wore white hats accented with daisies and ribbons and carried smaller versions of the bride's bouquet.

Lt. and Mrs. John H. Sandgren

Best man was Ronald Peterson, Murphysboro, Ill., and groomsman was Wayne Allen, Elmhurst. Ushers were the bride's brother, Ken, and the groom's nephew, Michael Condroski Jr., Rolling Meadows.

A dinner reception for the bridal party and members of the immediate families was held at the Scottie Club, Ashland, Wis.

She weds the boy across the street

Lauren Mary Bohn and her family used to live across the street from the Wilbert E. Heinemanns, 737 S. Chestnut, Arlington Heights. Two years ago the family moved to Atlanta. After a year Lauren returned to Arlington Heights and seven months later became engaged to the Heinemanns' son, Wilbert Louis. Lauren's parents are Mrs. Charlene Bohn, 906 W. St. James, Arlington Heights, and Stewart J. Bohn, Atlanta.

The couple married Sept. 22 in a 4 p.m. service in Faith Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights, and is now making their home in Palatine. A '73 graduate of Arlington High, Lauren is employed by Allstate Insurance, Northbrook, as a secretary. Wilbert, a '69 graduate of Arlington High, studied two years at Harper College and is now with Kuhny & Assoc. General Contractors, St. Charles.

For the double ring service Lauren chose a gown of silk organza trimmed in lace. She carried a nosegay of rust, yellow and green roses with baby's breath.

IN APPLE GREEN gowns of voile with lace trim were her maid of honor, Sherry Johnson, and her bridesmaids, her sister, Cindy, and Ellen Koch, all of Arlington Heights. The girls carried baskets with rust and yellow mums.

Matt Snyder, Arlington Heights, was best man, and ushers were Bob Sulander and Rick Ehlers, Arlington Heights, and the bride's brother, Steve Bohn, Atlanta.

A dinner reception for 140 guests was held in the church parlors after which the newlyweds flew to the Poconos in Pennsylvania for a week's honeymoon at Paradise Stream Resort.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert L. Heinemann

The Consumer

by Monica Wilch

Have you been threatened or harassed by a bill collector? If so, the Illinois Attorney General wants to hear about it.

Consumers are urged to tell their stories of unfair bill collecting techniques during hearings to be held Oct. 30 and 31, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Room 1000 at 160 N. LaSalle, Chicago.

Persons wishing to testify orally at the hearings should write Assistant Atty. Gen. Maria Eldon, 134 N. LaSalle, Room 204, Chicago, Ill. Written views may be sent to the same address.

LAND SALES continue to be a source of consumer fraud and confusion. Here is Under both state and federal law, there is a 48-hour period in which consumers may break a contract for land, regardless of its location. Under state law, there is a 72-hour period in which consumers may break contracts for any real estate located in Illinois.

EXCEPTION: These laws do not apply if you have personally visited the land.

Conclusion: It is patently foolish to buy land sight unseen, but if you visit it, (as in the case of the "free" weekend air trips to such lands commonly offered by land sales companies), be sure you find out all pertinent facts about the land before signing anything, since you have forfeited the right to break the contract.

Do not be tempted to sign up for such a trip — or to attend a promotional dinner — just for the free ride or meal. You will be subjected to extremely high pressure sales tactics and may find your autograph attached to a bad contract before you know it.

BUYING NEW SHOES, belts, purses? Be sure that what you get is really leather — if that's what you're paying for. The Federal Trade Commission has warned consumers that top grain cowhide is in short supply and as a result, some retailers may try to pass off synthetic materials as leather, or processed leather as top grain.

According to FTC guidelines, shoes made of synthetics, "split" leather, ground leather or dyed leather must be labeled and advertised as such. Any implication that the product is top grain cowhide is a deception.

Consumers get chance to air their complaints

a brief run-down on existing forms of consumer protection:

In Illinois, the Office of Land Sales Registration registers land sales companies to do business in the state. In so doing, this office obtains detailed information on the company and its land, which is verified by a state inspector who visits the land. Consumers may call this office to inquire about particular companies.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I know that eggs can be frozen but am not certain about the procedure involved. Also, how long can they be kept frozen? — Illida Sexton

If frozen as whole eggs, they should be gently mixed together and one teaspoon salt added per cup if they are to be used for non-sweet dishes. If eggs are to be used for baking or such, one tablespoon sugar should be added per cup. For each cup of egg yolks, add two tablespoons of sugar, or one teaspoon of salt, depending on future use. Egg whites can be frozen as is. The freezer storage time for eggs is six to 12 months.

Dear Dorothy: I'd like to share a way I discovered to remove stains from plastic. I use a wet paste made of chlorine bleach and the cleanser which has more than 10% trisodium phosphate in it. The cleanser acts as a base to hold the bleach on the spot. I have had complete success with ball-point ink, regular ink and recently was able to remove an ox-blood shoe polish stain from my white handbag. The paste must stay wet and while it may take several hours, it works. — Mrs. Ralph Robertson

I would imagine it would take constant checking — to stop the action the minute the stain is gone.

Dear Dorothy: We were surprised this year to find that we had to have proof from our insurance agent that we carried enough insurance — if we were to travel in Quebec. Maybe most people would find this out before such a trip, but we learned it by accident. — Frank Gustig

Tip to homemakers: If you will lightly dust the top of the cake with cornstarch before frosting, the icing will not run. (Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Amvet Auxiliary offers college scholarships

Two $500 scholarships are offered to high school seniors by the Amvets Auxiliary Department of Illinois, according to Doris Savage, scholarship chairman of Phillip Carpenter Amvets Auxiliary in Wheeling.

Each has its own set of eligibility requirements. One, the Worlchid Scholarship, is a $500 grant to an Illinois senior boy or girl who is the child of a deceased veteran of World War II, Korea or Vietnam. The veteran need not have been killed in action nor have died from a service-connected disability.

THE OTHER, a $500 Memorial Scholarship, is also offered to Illinois seniors.

For both awards the applicants must take the high school ACT test. Further information is available at all high schools in the area or by contacting Mrs. Savage at 326 S. Wheeling Ave., Wheeling. Judging will be done by the Amvets Auxiliary, and winners may select the college of their choice.

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

When it comes to laziness, I could write the book. (Except that I'm too lazy.)

Last fall, it seemed such an effort to get out in the yard and plant tulips, hyacinths, crocus, Dutch iris, etc. I figured I'd rest awhile and then when I felt peppy and ambitious (which is never), I'd get some clay pots, some soil and start them indoors. This, I reasoned, would free me from the press of immediate action, and I'd still have some lovely blossoms in the spring.

By the time I did get around to forcing blooms, I had promised everyone from the local priest to the undertaker that they would have flowers for Easter.

Although I timed everything precisely according to the book, my efforts were not all that I expected. You can't fool Mother Nature, which is what I was trying to do by holding back the blooms.

WE HAD A very early spring. If you remember, and by the time Easter came, there were slim pickings in the tulip, crocus and daffodil lines.

I had my precocious plants stifled in a 40-degree crawl space with no light, hoping to forestall the inevitable burst of blossoms.

As a result I held them back too hard and the stems were a wee bit gangly. I wanted blooms during a specific period and I was fighting the natural urge of the plants to produce at will. In the long run, all the fooling around I did was twice the work. For that, I should have been expelled from the Ruth Stout No-Work Gardening School of Green Thumbery.

THE MORAL of this excerpt from my catalog of errors is "do it." If you want spring color with the least bit of trouble and aggravation, plant in the fall as everybody else does.

Get some help from the kids. They're gullible enough to stick it out for half an hour or so. Or find a dog that likes to dig holes and sic him on the planting site. Once you have a bed dug, that's half the trouble.

Corn husk doll classes slated

The art of making dolls from corn husks, a craft practiced in this country since colonial times, will be taught in the second of a series of craft classes at Des Plaines Historical Society.

Teaching the two-hour classes at 10:30 a.m. Nov. 1, 3 and 29 and Dec. 1 will be Jan Simanon.

Sessions will be limited to 20 students and registrations are now being taken at the Historical Society. Cost to members of the society is $1.50; non-members, $2. The museum will furnish all necessary materials.

Registration deadline for the Nov. 1 and Nov. 3 classes is Oct. 28; deadline for the Nov. 29 and Dec. 1 classes is Nov. 23.

Fall rummage sale

The Ladies Guild of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church will hold its annual fall rummage sale next Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the church, Howard and Lee Sts., Des Plaines.

Throw a little bone meal in the bottom of the hole, cover it lightly with rich soil, and pop in your bulbs. Remember that the pointy end is up, the flat end — down.

Don't bury the bulbs too deep or you'll be waiting until you get so impatient next spring that you finger through the soil to see what happened.

I like to plant the tulips about four inches deep in the ground instead of the conventional six inches. Then I can always put a few inches of mulch on top of them. In the spring, I clear away the dirt — as soon as I think nature is awakening to allow the ground to warm up faster. This lets the pipes break ground sooner.

THE BEST PART about planting spring flowering bulbs is that the job is a necessary evil only once every three to four years. Just think — when you plant these bulbs this fall, you are virtually work-free until 1977. You'll find that the first spring produces the best flowers, the second season is good, but by the third year when the bulbs divide underground, the flowers start petering out.

But hang in there, garden-lovers! A lot can happen in four years. Maybe someone will find an easier way to have spring flowers without the bother of planting.

P.S. Don't hold your crocus waiting for it.

Fremd, Jackson in top spots

Prospect to host league cross country test today

by LARRY EVERHART
Cross Country Editor

Maybe this thing won't be so one-sided, at that.

The "thing" in question is the Mid-Suburban League cross country conference meet at Prospect this afternoon. Varsity coaches realize that Fremd isn't as heavily favored as it was thought the Vikings would be a couple of weeks ago when they were demolishing everybody in dual meets — including a perfect 15-0 score over second-place Conant for the Cougars' only loss.

That, however, was nearly a month ago and Conant, Hersey and Palatine all have shown definite improvement since then. Meanwhile, Fremd has probably not been up to par in the last two weeks, taking their first two losses in invitational meets at Peoria and Libertyville (narrowly to Maine West) — although the Vikes finished undefeated in the MSL and are logical favorites.

Schedule of events today at Prospect's course on the school grounds is: tour of course at 3:30, freshman race at 4:00, frosh-soph at 4:30 and varsity at 5:00.

Individually, there is not much question that only a broken leg or kidnappers can keep Schaumburg's Arnie Jackson from winning for the second straight year. Last fall, he ruled decisively on a cold, rainy day at Union Oil grounds. Jackson has been undefeated in all dual meets for two years and has handily won several invitationals. He turned in a sparkling 13:57 for 2.75 miles Monday against Conant after losing for the first time all year in the big, tough Mattoon Invitational Saturday.

As every year, the conference meet and dual standings each count 50 per cent of final overall finishes. Following Fremd in order for duals are Conant, Hersey and Palatine.

If history repeats, the Vikings don't have it in the bag yet. They were in the same situation last year at this time — unbeaten and favored — when fast-improving Hersey won the conference meet, but Fremd took the overall title since Hersey had been third in duals.

The Huskies and Palatine again are strong, but Conant appears to be the fastest-improving and with the best chance for an upset. The Cougars also have the most depth of the three challengers to Fremd. Dave Elderkin has been the team leader but has a strong supporting cast.

Chuck Ruppenthal has emerged as Fremd's leader, but the Vikings as well have exceptional depth and balance. They and Conant are probably the only teams which can afford injuries and be just as strong. At times, both teams' 10th men have been within hailing distance of the leaders.

Individually, it's wide open after Jackson. Ruppenthal, Elderkin, Paul Kearns of Palatine and May McCarthy of Hersey should be near the top and there is usually a surprise or two also.

Maine East runners beaten; West could take CSL crown

Maine South upset Maine East, 25-30, in varsity cross-country Tuesday afternoon, opening a wider door for Maine West to win the Central Suburban League title in Saturday's runoff.

Maine East coach John Coughlan held out two sophomores — Mark Tomask and Dave Saethre — who will compete in the CSL finals at Locust Park in Wilmette. But their absence allowed the Hawks to sneak five scorers into the first eight runners.

South was led by meet winner Dave Sent whose 13:05 was seven seconds faster than runner-up Lloyd Spitzer of East. The Hawks also took third place and sixth-to-eighth.

Other East runners were Dave Jenkins fourth, Tim Glanos fifth, Russell Plain fourth and Bill Brown tenth.

Rifles, Madison battle Saturday for league title

The Lake County Rifles will meet the Madison Mustangs Saturday for the championship of the Central States Football League.

Kickoff is at 7:30 p.m. in Carmel Field, Mundelein. Carmel Field is located between highways 41 and 45 on highways 63 and 176. Both teams had 8-2 records to head their respective divisions this season.

The game is expected to be a wide open affair between two of the best passers in the game, the Rifles Jesse Kaye and Madison's Terry Murawski who is the only passer in the league to complete more than half of his passes.

Kaye, a former Miami Dolphin and the most valuable offensive player in the league last season, was traded by Milwaukee to Lake County for whom he played the last six games. When the season was over Kaye had thrown for 23 touchdown passes, the second highest in the 36-year history of the league.

Sitting in reserve on the Rifles bench will be veteran Robert Berezowitz who set the league touchdown passing record in 1970 with 31 such passes. Both men will have excellent targets. These include former Northwestern star A. J. Owens who led the league with eight touchdown receptions and Bill Trapp from Notre Dame who had five touchdown catches.

But the Rifles have more than a passing game. They have hard charging stocky Cliff Boyd, last year's rookie of the year whose determined plunges has kept him among the top four rushers all season.

Also starting with Boyd in the backfield is the electrifying Levi Mitchell who once past the line of scrimmage as hard to bring down as Gale Sayers was in his prime. Mitchell, from the University of Iowa, twice this season made long touchdown runs that sparked the Lake County offense.

Madison will counter with running back Larry Harris who scored all three of Madison's touchdowns in the Rifles 48-21 victory over them earlier this year.

The Rifles, however, will have a harder game because Madison is not expected to fumble the ball away four times or to throw five interceptions as they did when the two teams met on a rainy night Sept. 29.

The Lake County defense is the best in the league. It has given up less than 200 yards a game. The defense is spearheaded by easy going Tony Bertuca who led the league with seven pass interceptions.

Flanking him in the defensive backfield are all league performers Chuck Burgoon, Terry Stanger and Bruce Swanson.

Defensive back Jim Montgomery, former Northern Illinois University captain, is a candidate for all-league honors this year. The Rifles will be hampered by the recall by the Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Canadian Football League of cornerback Mel Easley. Bruce Heagstedt is expected to take his position.

And if that is not enough, Lake County has one of the premier field goal kickers in the league who must have his eye on the majors. He is Larry Schultz who has kicked 9 out of 14 field goal attempts, several made from more than 40 yards away.

Schultz also has kicked 31 extra points. His record far exceeds that of a former Rifle, Mirro Roder now with the Chicago Bears, who in six Lake County games in 1971 kicked only seven extra points and no field goals.

Tickets for the game will be available at the gate.

Hoffman, Conant in tie

by MICHAEL McMEERIN

The Hoffman Hawks met up with the Conant Cougars last Saturday at Conant. This game was long awaited as Hawk players came from the Cougar freshman team last year, but it ended in a frustrating 0-0 tie.

The rain was a big factor in the game. Neither team was able to effectively control the ball. The rain subsided in the second quarter, but the field was still a mud bath.

Harper golfers qualify downstate

Harper has earned the right to compete in the Region IV Tournament at the University of Illinois, Oct. 26-27 by virtue of finishing in a solid tie for third in the Sectional meet qualifying championship.

The Hawks of coach Roger Bechtold deadlocked with Joliet at 327 strokes behind Lake County's winning 305 and Mayfair's 322. Bob Powers and Brian Brown paced Harper's attack with sparkling 79's over Fox Bend Golf Course in Oswego.

Oakton wins by 8

John Murnane tied for medalist honors with an 83 as the Oakton Community College golfers topped Triton by tight shots, 350-358.

With all the slipping and sliding going on the field, an injury was inevitable. In the third quarter, Joe Gajewski came out with what appeared to be a sprained ankle. He went back out on to the field but in the last quarter, reinjured his ankle and came out of the game again.

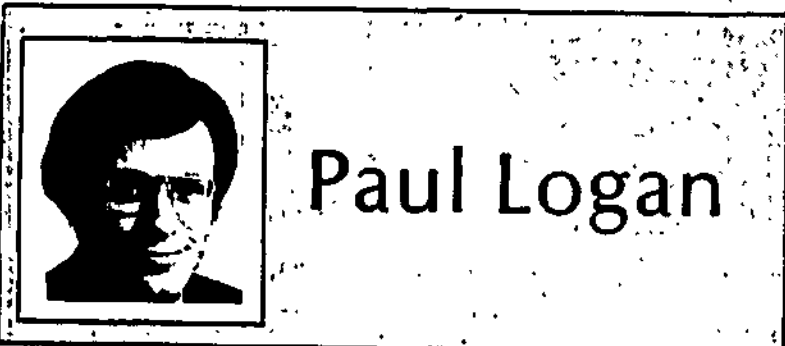

Both teams will definitely be looking forward to their next encounter.

Hoffman's next game will be this Saturday at 12:00 p.m. when the Hawks meet up with Schaumburg at Schaumburg.

tional with the top six earning the green light to play the rugged Orange Course in Champaign later this month.

The Sectional's meet medalist was former area prep standout Chris Marszelek who solved Fox Bend for a dazzling 74. Other individual qualifiers included John Murnane and John Daneluk of Oakton. The Oakton team, however, failed to qualify since their 351 strokes was good for seventh in the final standings.

The Skyway Conference Meet will unfold at Village Links in Glen Ellyn Friday.

Bear fans—here's a way to be a winner

MARILYN VAN DERBUR motivated me Tuesday afternoon.

This former Miss America, vintage 1968, did the same for most if not all the high school principals during her main address at the annual Illinois High School Association meeting.

Marilyn, still very attractive, had an equally attractive presentation before the several hundred at Arlington Towers. She discussed positive thinking, setting goals and how to go about achieving them as well as many examples of getting through to young people.

Her ideas got me to thinking — why not set a list of motivational devices for helping frustrated Chicago sports fans?

All of you pro sport followers have suffered enough. You might not know it, but your love of Chicago's loser teams could be making a negative person. Such is the case of that often heard fan's excuse for a missed championship, "They didn't win, but think of all the thrills they gave us during the season."

Marilyn listed ways of eliminating negative thinking.

Here are some of my own to help end the heartbreaking habit of being a Chicago fan:

1) Always turn off the TV after the weather report — thus avoiding the bad news scores.

2) Never, never listen to sports talk shows originating from Chicago.

3) Stop frequenting masochistic hangouts — bars where Cub, Sox, Bear, Black Hawk and Bull fans drown their sorrows.

4) End friendships with associates who always are heard to say, "Wait 'til next year and we'll win it all!"

5) Cancel all subscriptions to Chicago papers.

6) Quit your job, if necessary, if the majority of your office lives and dies seasonally with each pro team.

Those were the don'ts. If you can avoid these half dozen no-nos, you're halfway there.

To become completely cured of your present loser oriented role in life, you must develop a positive approach. The following nine suggestions will help you establish the healthy habit of being a fan of winners:

1) Choose teams that obviously have the best chance of having a successful season.

2) Subscribe to papers from those cities so that you can become a knowledgeable fan.

3) Purchase a top quality radio for pulling in the stations that cover your winning teams.

4) Put up a special antenna for picking up Milwaukee TV stations — thus allowing you to return to watching sports reports.

5) Write your favorite teams for order catalogs. Then you can purchase the necessary paraphernalia — hats, pennants, T-shirts, autographed balls, yearbooks — for proving to skeptics that you're a loyal follower despite not living near the team's hometown.

6) Plan to attend as many games as possible when your favorite comes to town.

7) Get a desk away from the fanatics who seem to constantly want to talk about Chicago's losers. A private office is ideal.

MARILYN VAN DERBUR

8) Only watch the local hapless teams when they play your favorites, and then leave the sound off so you don't have to put up with cheerleading announcers.

9) Finally, as a last resort, always pull for the other team — no matter what the sport — when a Chicago team is playing. Use this method if you can't make up your mind about backing a particular non-Chicago team. Over the long haul, rooting against Chicago will more often than not leave you on the winning side.

Just think of the happiness that awaits you at the end of each season. If you've made wise decisions (the wisest of all is forgetting about Chicago teams), you'll almost always have a team fighting it out for the playoffs or for the championship. Even if they don't win it all, they'll inevitably do better than those in Chicago.

While most Chicagoans are suffering along with the Bears, I'm enjoying the seasons so far of the Los Angeles Rams, Minnesota Vikings, Kansas City Chiefs, Pittsburgh Steelers, Miami Dolphins and Dallas Cowboys. Having so many teams to pull for is unusual, but following the Bears for so long has given me a greater than normal need for success.

All the teams except one are at the top of their divisions with a combined record of 21-5-1. The Bears haven't won 21 in four years combined!

I won't be as gluttonous in January when I start following pro basketball. I'll just be pulling for a couple of teams. Probably the Boston Celtics, Milwaukee Bucks and Golden State Warriors.

As far as hockey's concerned, who can get turned on by 1-1 scores in October when the teams don't get down to the salty gritty until March. However, a safe choice is just about anyone from the Eastern Division against the Black Hawks.

You may have noticed that I left out the Chicago Cougars. They're just getting started. It will take several years of consistently poor showings before they make my anti-team list.

Besides, how many of your friends live and die with the Cougars?

SENIOR DIVISION

Beats 1, Cardinals 8
Tim Nee caught two passes to keep the Bears in the game, besides being a defensive standout. He also blocked a punt. Tracy Wertz snagged a 16-yard TD pass from Andy Low, and Mike Jennings carried in the game-winning extra point. Dave Peterson made most of the Bears' yards running, while breaking up the Cardinals' passing game. This is the first time the Bears have had a touchdown scored on them this year.

Giants 38, Lions 8
The Giants tested victory for the first time this season with an impressive win. Bill Dutton opened the scoring with a sneak, after Tom Simon balled the way to the two yard line on a 12-yard quick opener. Mike Veselich set up his own score with a 14-yard romp to the three. Jeff Mitchell's five yard TD blast and Simon's conversion rounded out the scoring. Howie Dunn and Mike Hare shared high defensive point honors with 10. Veselich and Brian Anders set 14 apiece. Pat Doyle had 12 and Jeff Lawlor and Jeff Weaver each had 11. Rob Orelson and Veselich picked off Lion passes and Doyle and Wayne Argast each blocked a punt.

Packers 37, Colts 8
The Packers showed a balanced offense with John Fredericks scoring first on a 21-yard Steve Kurka pass. Jeff Lowman ran for the extra point. John Micevich then scored twice on runs of 11 and three yards. John Fredericks kicked for two points. Fredericks added the insurance by running an intercepted Colt pass for a 43 yard touchdown. Micevich pulled for 32 and 45 yards.

Chiefs 18, Vikings 8
The Chiefs, with a total team effort, combined with the running of Tim Maloney and Jeff Lowe, got back into the win column. Tim Maloney scored a touchdown. Jeff Lowe tossed two TD passes to Tony Palduto. Dan Black and Kevin Maloney each recovered a fumble.

Falcons 34, Bears 8
Falcons quarterback Tom Wolkewicz engineered the drive against the Super Chiefs and John (Ironhorse) Dixon planned for the score. John (Ironhorse) picked off a stray enemy aerial bomb to keep the Falcons in the ball game.

Hawks 31, Rams 7
Well-kept field blocking paved the way for a hot trick by Mike Stathakis, and single scores by Steve Anderson and Steve Frank. Anderson kicked a two pointer. The Rams offense was unable to get the ball moving until the final period when an excellent pass play caught the falder secondary sleeping. The successful P.A.T. made the score 22-7.

Offensively, the Rams scored on a 33-yard pass from Bob Liville to Andrew Bennett.

The extra point was scored by Scott Nickle. The defensive effort was led by Jeff Meyers, who recovered two fumbles, and Liville and Todd Eiken, who intercepted passes. High men with tackles were Jeff Zender and Joe Hiza.

Jets 38, Browns 8
The Jets scored in every quarter to out-due the young Browns. Bob Tulley, Mike Burd, Mike Martinek, Bruce Jacobs and Chuck Arredia (2), all made touchdowns, and Arredia accounted for the three P.A.T.s. Mike Kellerman, Brian Tusa and Ken Hill intercepted passes. Arredia led the team in offensive yardage.

Redskins 37, Steelers 8
The Redskins topped the Steelers from the unbeaten ranks by playing a very strong defensive game. Steve Ford swept right end for 15 yards and the Redskins' only TD, and Mike Carroll went off tackle for the game winning extra point.

Fullback Phil Toepfer planned for the Steelers' line touchdown, but the extra and tying point after attempt failed. Jeff Nelson intercepted a Redskins aerial and ran it 50 yards for a touchdown which was called back due to a highly questionable clipping penalty. Dan Caporusso made seven solo tackles.

Eagles 34, 49ers 8
The Eagles' offense came to life as they scored 20 points in the first half to break the game open. Bob Blawinski had two TDs and an extra point. Mike Meyer scored one TD and a point after. Steve Bruck failed once. Mark Shapulis played an outstanding defensive game in leading the Eagles in tackles, while Huger Baron and John Anderson recovered fumbles.

Cowboys 32, Vikings 2
A fine team effort by the Cowboys set back the Vikings. The fine passing of John Frano and past catching of Kevin Jack led to three scores. A timely interception by Fred Bartuch kept the Vikings without a score. The entire second team was also outstanding.

BANTAM DIVISION
Giants 12, Tigers 8
The Gophers' third straight shutout came at the expense of the Tigers. Dave O'Connor opened the scoring with a 20 yard run, and Tom Maloney added the other TD. Bill Nicholson, John McDermott, and Tim Vall combined for 20 solo tackles and Bob Vall recovered a fumble.

Quarterback Steve Callahan of the Tigers threw two passes to Todd Lohery for three and seven yard gains. Jim Freke ran for 12 yards and a first down. John Kruse hit the quarterback three times, causing three fumbles and also made five unassisted tackles. Fumble recoveries were by Bobby Kutrowicz, Jim Hunyadi, Kurt Majewski and Tom Carlson.

Braves 30, Howlers 8
Ernie Kuehl led the Braves with a fumble recovery and a touchdown. Tom Brenner, Brad Kay and Jay Krinke accounted for the other points. Defensively, the Braves equaled the offense with total team effort and were highlighted with Scott Kasch's recovery of a fumble and bumper Lee's deadly tackles. The Howlers played inspired football in the first half and made two long stands. In the second half they were plagued by penalties and fumbles. Matt Stahler intercepted a pass.

Spartans 13, Badgers 8
Newcomer Mark Predovich and seasoned veteran Matt Burke showed impressive gains in the Spartans' strongest performance of the season. Brian Krause and Doug Wolf each made a touchdown and Gary O'Brien found the opening up the middle for the extra point.

The Badgers led at the half 6-0 on Pete Murphy's 31 yard end sweep touchdown, but from there the offense failed to generate any steam. Defensively, fumble recoveries by Pete Kreisher and Ed Schmidt and an interception by Jim Platt kept the Badger hopes of victory alive.

Hawkeyes 13, Buckeyes 8
A balanced team effort along with touchdown runs by Dom Falcone and Bob Nielsen, and Ed Wallace's point after, gave the Hawkeyes a victory.

Boltermakers 39, Illini 8
The aggressive Boltermakers played their best offensive and defensive game of the season as they bottled up a good Illini team and scored on four turnovers deep in Illini territory. Bob Sloma and John Koepke each scored a TD and an extra point. With great blocking from his teammates, Ken Zvanski exploded for four touchdowns including runs for 45 and 30 yards. Steve Engel scored an extra point and recovered an Illini fumble. Dave Ochab, Steve Sheridan and John Koepke also recovered fumbles.

Wolverines 7, Wildcats 8
The Wildcats played excellent offensive and defensive ball. Darren Bowman played a good defense with the help of Tom Bray. Charles Jennings caught a pass tossed by Mike Alexander for the lone score.

Tuttle, Polacek in tennis finals for Maine West

Maine South emerged as team champion and Maine West qualified two singles players for this weekend's state meet at Arlington during last weekend's Warrior-hosted tennis district.

Maine South's doubles team of A. Charok and C. Ruyak shut out Ridgewood's M. Hrycko and D. Paus for the district title.

East girl swimmers lose to GBN, 91-22

Maine East's varsity girls' swimming team had only five place winners during a recent 91-22 loss to Glenbrook North. Val Pearce had the only first for East, that in the 50 butterfly. She was third in 50 backstroke.

Patti Laman took seconds in 200 medley relay plus 50 and 100 backstrokes. Patty Morgan was second in 100 individual medley and had thirds in diving and 100 butterfly.

Area boasts 4 players on Nordies hockey team

The first Junior "A" hockey ever played in the Chicago area will start Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 23-24, with the Chicago Nordies' home opener at the new ice stadium in the Randhurst Shopping Center.

Coach Kenny Wharram's team, boasting four players from the Herald area, will host the St. Cloud Minnesota Blues.

The local players are Bernie Klemm of Arlington Heights, Richard Glass of Rolling Meadows, Craig Glander of Elk Grove and Jim Allen of Streamwood.

The Nordies are playing in the first Junior "A" hockey league in the United States, the Midwest Junior "A" Hockey League. Wharram is a former Chicago Black Hawk and twice was a National Hockey League All-Star.

Nearly all of the professional players, including Wharram, and most players on Canada's winning world amateur teams come directly out of the Canadian Junior "A" hockey leagues.

The Chicago Nordies and the league in which they play are the first opportunity for American youth to develop the talent necessary to enter the major leagues. Many of these players are expected to represent the U.S. in world amateur meets and for the first time offer the world an American team that will be able to win.

The Nordies will play 30 home games. Season tickets cost $90 with all seats reserved. Individual game tickets are $3.50 for adults and $2 for children. Parking is free.

The Nordies have made a decision to go essentially with Chicago youth even though at present the best players in the U.S. are found elsewhere and have asked to play with the team.

Wharram believes, however, that with the proper coaching, Chicago youth should develop to the point where Chicago is the center for future world hockey stars.

Wharram said that the Nordies club appears to have a number of fairly good skaters but that it is not possible to evaluate the team until it has been around the league at least once.

The Randhurst rink is located just east of the intersection of Highway 83 and Rand Road in Mount Prospect. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Hockey Cards at Randhurst

New hockey teams and rinks have been sprouting up in this area in the last couple of years as quickly as swimming pools did years ago. Among them are the Chicago Cardinals and the new ice arena at Randhurst Shopping Center where the Cardinals will play home games starting Nov. 3.

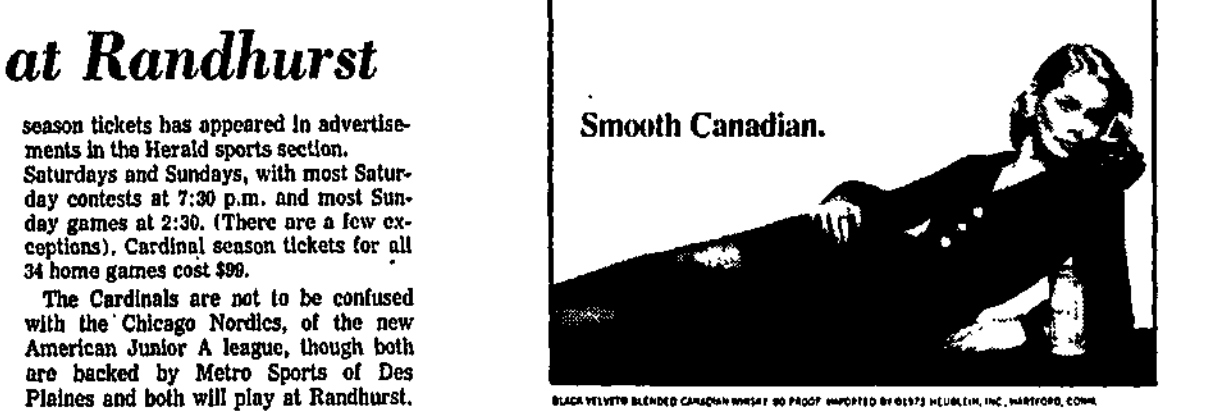

The Cardinals are an independent semi-pro team which originated years ago in Rockford, moved to the area two years ago when it played in the new Twin Ice Forum in Oak Brook, then was based in the south Chicago area last year.

They have compiled a record of dominance against top junior teams and have a two-year record of 58-14-1. Opponents this year will include Detroit, New York, London, New Jersey, Toronto and St. Louis.

All home games will be played on area, will be in a league which will prepare players for major-league hockey, as Canadian Junior hockey has for many years. Season tickets for the Nordies are $90.

Sugar 'n Spice

AND EVERYTHING NICE ABOUT FOOD

NATURALLY GOOD TOGETHER

Many of today's flavor combinations reflect natural, old fashioned goodness along with convenience. An easy way to achieve flavor and ease of preparation is to combine fresh apples with sausage:

Convenient brown 'n serve sausages, available in a variety of flavors, can be heated through in minutes. Fresh apples are traditional choices for snacking and baking. Many sweet and tart varieties are available year-round but fall is the prime time to enjoy their natural goodness. For total convenience, canned pie sliced apples, apple pie filling and applesauce are available.

Here are three main dish selections that will be naturally good for morning, noon, or evening meals.

Deep Dish Brown 'n Serve Sausage and Apple Pie

Yield: 9-inch pie

- 2 packages (8 ounces each) brown 'n serve sausage links
- 1 baked deep dish 9-inch pie shell
- 2 cans (1 pound, 5 ounces each) apple pie filling*
- 2 large tart red apples, cored and cut into quarters
- Melted butter
- Cinnamon (optional)
- ¼ cup grated Cheddar cheese

Reserve 6 whole sausages for topping the pie. Cut remaining sausages into quarters. Brown in skillet according to package directions. In baked pie shell alternate layers of apple pie filling and sausages. Top with whole sausages and apple wedges in spoke-fashion. Brush apples with melted butter. Sprinkle apples with cinnamon, if desired. Place pie in 425 degree oven until heated through and bubbly, approximately 15 to 20 minutes. Remove and sprinkle cheese over all. Let cool about 5 to 10 minutes. Serve.

*Not to be confused with pie sliced apples.

Cider Glazed Sausage Apple and Onion Skillet

Yield: 5 servings

- 8 ounce package brown 'n serve sausage links
- 3 large Bermuda onions, peeled, cut into ¼ inch slices and separated into rings
- 8 apples, each cored and cut into 6 wedges
- Butter or margarine

Cider Glaze:

- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1¼ cups apple cider
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 2 drops red food coloring, if desired

In large skillet, brown sausages according to package directions. Remove and keep warm. Saute onion rings in pan drippings until transparent. Remove and place on warm platter. Add butter or margarine if needed. Saute apple slices approximately 2 to 3 minutes on each side until soft. Place sausages and apples on bed of onion rings. Pour cider glaze over all.

To make cider glaze: Measure cornstarch into saucepan. Combine cider, honey and lemon juice and slowly blend with cornstarch, stirring to avoid lumps. Bring to boil, stirring constantly until thickened and transparent. Simmer 5 minutes. Add grated lemon peel and food coloring if desired.

French Toast, Apples and Sausages with Apple Cider Syrup

Yield: 5 servings

- 8 ounce package brown 'n serve sausages
- 2 tart apples, cored and sliced ¼ inch thick
- 4 slices French toast

Cider Syrup:

- ½ cup apple cider or juice
- ½ cup brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ½ cup chopped apples

Brown sausages according to package directions. Remove and keep warm. Saute apple slices in sausage drippings until tender, approximately 2 minutes each side. Place sausages on top of French toast. Pour apple cider syrup over all. Garnish with fried apple rings on plate.

To make syrup: In a small saucepan combine apple cider or juice, brown sugar and lemon juice. Boil until thickened like syrup, approximately 15 to 20 minutes. Turn off heat. Add chopped apples. Let cool.

Mrs. Jim Drain

She's an active recipe collector

by LOIS SEILER

When various interest groups were being formed at St. Raymond's Catholic Church, Barbara Drain of Mount Prospect was a natural to organize a gourmet group. Cooking is her hobby, and for four years she was a member of Mount Prospect Newcomers' Gourmet Club. The past two years, Barbara has helped plan St. Raymond's gourmet activities, which center around a different theme or country each month.

An avid recipe clipper and cookbook collector, Barbara picks up new ideas wherever she goes. When the family lived in Toronto, she acquired several Canadian recipes including one for Dream Cake Torte, a dessert featuring a cookie-like crust and a coconut-walnut filling.

While visiting her aunt in Pennsylvania, Barbara acquired a chuck roast recipe which is simple to prepare and always a success. It quickly became a favorite of her husband, Jim, and children, Ann, 17, Dan, 14, and Marty, 11.

The method is unique: a chuck roast is placed on a rack in a roasting pan and sprinkled with onion soup mix; water is added to the pan and all is sealed tightly with foil. The roast is placed in a very hot oven for a short time then the heat is turned off.

"The high temperature creates steam which is locked within the foil and cooks the meat. Even four hours later when the roast is done and the oven has cooled down, hot steam is still sealed within and one must be careful when removing the foil," said Barbara.

The result is a brown, onion-flavored roast so tender the meat falls apart. The liquid creates a flavorful gravy and need only be thickened with a little flour. Naturally, mashed potatoes are the thing to serve with this savory pot roast and gravy, according to Barbara.

An interesting vegetable to accompany this meat is French Peas, which are also steamed-cooked over a bed of lettuce. The peas remain firm yet are tender and well-flavored with onion, parsley and chives.

Barbara suggests an attractive citrus salad to complete this meal, served with a tangy orange-flavored whipped cream dressing. A fruit pie makes an appropriate dessert.

"This is an old-fashioned Sunday dinner," Barbara said. "You can put your roast in the oven and forget about it, then time your other dishes accordingly. It can be served with satisfaction to both family and guests."

DREAM CAKE TORTE

1/2 cup butter
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon confectioners' sugar
2 eggs, well-beaten
1 1/2 cups light brown sugar, packed
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup coconut
1 cup walnuts, broken
1 pint whipping cream

Blend butter, 1 cup flour and confectioners' sugar with electric mixer. Press into a round, 9-inch cake pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes. Remove from oven and cool slightly.

Beat eggs, brown sugar and vanilla. Stir in 2 tablespoons flour, baking powder and salt. Blend in coconut and walnuts. Spread over crust. Return to oven and bake an additional 25 minutes. Let cool to room temperature.

Whip cream with 2 tablespoons sugar and 1/2 teaspoon vanilla. Cut torte in wedges and serve garnished with whipped cream. Serves 6 to 8.

AUNT AGNES' CHUCK ROAST

1 4-pound boneless chuck roast
1 envelope onion soup mix
Place roast on a rack in a small, deep roasting pan or Dutch oven. Sprinkle onion soup on top. Pour one cup water into pan and cover pan tightly with foil. Place in a pre-heated 500-degree oven, let roast 20 to 25 minutes, then turn off heat. Let roast bake 4 to 4 1/2 hours. Don't open oven. When ready to serve, remove foil, being careful of hot steam. Make a gravy with pan liquids, thickening it with a little flour. Serve as a pot roast. Serves 5 to 6.

FRENCH PEAS

1/2 head lettuce, broken up
2 green onions, chopped
1 teaspoon sugar
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate (Accent)
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 bay leaf

2 packages frozen peas
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 tablespoons chopped chives
4 tablespoons butter

Put lettuce, green onion, sugar, 2 tablespoons butter, monosodium glutamate, pepper and bay leaf into a heavy skillet. Break frozen peas up as much as possible and add to pan. Cover tightly and bring to a boil quickly. Turn off heat and let cook for one more minute. Remove lettuce and bay leaf and discard. Add parsley, chives and 4 tablespoons butter. Stir well and serve at once. Serves 8.

CITRUS SALAD

2 whole grapefruit, peeled and sectioned
4 whole oranges, peeled and sectioned
6 strawberries, sliced
Salad greens
1 cup whipping cream
1/2 cup frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed
Use either a big platter or individual salad plates and arrange fruit over greens. Whip cream and fold in orange juice concentrate. Serve as a dressing and let guests help themselves. Serves 6.

DREAM CAKE TORTE is a favorite dessert of Marty Drain, Mount Prospect. Mrs. Drain acquired the recipe when the family lived in Canada and has found it to be just as popular in this area. Made in a round cake pan, this dessert has a cookie-like crust with a rich coconut-walnut filling. She finds this crunchy and chewy torte delicious when topped with whipped cream.

Fruitful ideas

Remember a peach and cottage cheese salad is a good carrying one for the lunch box. Omit the lettuce and pack the canned cling peach halves or slices with the cheese in a convenient to use and carry, covered plastic dish.

One of the quickest and most colorful luncheon salads you can put together is an avocado half shell filled with drained canned fruit cocktail. Use sour cream for the dressing and offer a selection of crisp crackers, Melba toast and hard rolls with it.

For a nutritious after school snack combine canned cling peaches and frozen milk. Whirl to creamy smoothness in an electric blender. Sprinkle nutmeg or cinnamon over the top.

Chill a fruit gelatin mixture in a ring mold and when ready to serve unmold and fill the center with canned cling peach slices and fresh or frozen strawberries. Top with whipped cream.

Franfare

by Fran Heckart

A variety of fresh seafood products will be available in the Midwest this month, according to National Marine Fisheries Service. Whole sheephead can be bought for about 50 cents per pound, while whole buffalo and herring as well as dressed smelt are all under $1 per pound. On a nationwide basis, canned tuna, which is a low-unit cost, high-protein item, will also be plentiful during October.

FOLLOWING ARE three consumer-related proposals by U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA). Interested persons may submit written comments in duplicate to the Hearing Clerk, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250. In-depth reports may also be obtained from the Hearing Clerk.

A proposal that would require canners of meat and poultry products to use a container lid designed to prevent contamination of its contents upon opening may be commented on until Nov. 2. Consumer complaints about the collection of filth between the inner edge of quick-twists, screw-on, snap-on type jar lids and the containers, with potential product contamination upon opening prompted USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) to initiate the proposal.

More specific guidelines on the sanitation of vehicles transporting meat and poultry items, complete removal of cleaning agents before transport and cleanliness checks by USDA inspectors have been proposed. Current inspections are made, but the proposed amendment is intended to increase the efficiency of such checks. Anyone wishing to comment on this proposal should do so by Dec. 7.

Under a proposed amendment, any food product containing less than three per cent of raw meat and/or raw meat by-products would be exempt from inspection by the APHIS. Current wording in Federal regulations states that any product is subject to meat inspection unless its meat content is in quite small proportion or it has not been considered a product of the meat food industry by the public. The new proposal, which may be commented on until Dec. 14, would clarify such wording for more efficient inspection operation, according to USDA.

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

A visit to the University of Illinois at Chicago Circle located in the heart of the city's near west side brings one into close proximity of some excellent Greek restaurants.

Virtually the whole 300 South Halsted block is a collection of shops, eating places, and coffee houses. Most famous is Chris and Bill Lakouras' Parthenon, consistently voted one of the top ten restaurants in Chicago.

A visit to the Parthenon is convincing that the Greek zest for good living, for good food and good wine plus a desire for perfection have created fine culinary arts. A typical meal will be five courses, served separately, started off with mounds of bread and butter and a glass of Roditis, a light, dry all-purpose red wine.

Fried Cheese (kasseri Tighanito) is a production at the Parthenon. This can be made with kasseri, kefalotiri or feta cheese. The cheese is cut into slices one fourth inch thick and browned in butter, then transferred after being cut into serving pieces onto a heatproof platter. The hot cheese is sprinkled with brandy and flamed and while flaming also receives a sprinkling of fresh lemon juice.

NEXT IS GREEK salad, a marvelously crisp mixture of greens (lettuce, chicory, escarole, romaine, endive are common ingredients) torn into bit-sized pieces and mixed with cucumber slices, wedges of tomato, chopped scallions (or sliced onions), radishes, chopped parsley, fillets of anchovies, black olives and feta cheese.

To prepare first rub a large salad bowl with garlic. Put in the ingredients which must be crisp and cold and toss in dressing made by combining 1 part lemon juice (or wine vinegar) to 3 parts olive oil, salt and pepper. When tossed sprinkle lightly with oregano and dried mint (or fresh mint when in season).

Third course is Moussaka, a traditional dish which has as many recipes as there are families in Greece. This takes some doing, so we'll reserve the recipe for next week.

FOLLOWING THE Moussaka came platters of spit-roasted lamb and beef. The Parthenon cooks the whole lamb on a spit, seasoned with salt, pepper, oregano, lemon juice and olive oil and basted with these ingredients and the pan drippings throughout the roasting process.

The beef is cooked in huge boneless rolls on vertical spits and seasoned with salt, pepper, oregano and garlic resulting in bites which are crunchy and savory. The pieces of lamb and beef are served on slices of sweet onion, offering a pleasant combination.

New Orleans dish to serve at home

New Orleans has long been noted for its marvelous food. Among the more famous entrees from the Southern city is Snapper En Papillote.

The following Snapper En Papillote recipe will bring the flavor of New Orleans to your own dinner table. Use red snapper fillets if they are available to you, however, other thick fish fillets will do and the mixture will be delightful. Sautéed green onion and tangy lemon juice in a wine-flavored white sauce (or use bouillon or milk if you prefer) with small shrimp makes the topping for the fillets before baking. Aluminum foil, cut into squares or hearts, makes the packages for the fish mixture to cook in and acts as handy serving containers when the savory entree is ready to enjoy. This heritage recipe is easy to prepare, delightful to eat, and novel to serve.

SNAPPER EN PAPILLOTE

- 2 pounds red snapper or other thick fish fillets, fresh or frozen
- 6 tablespoons margarine or cooking oil
- 1/4 cup thinly sliced green onion
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- 1/2 cup milk
- 3 tablespoons white wine, bouillon or milk (as desired)
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 can (4 1/2 ounce) small shrimp, whole or chopped (as desired)
- 2 teaspoons minced parsley
- Paprika

1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind

Thaw frozen fish. Skin fillets, if desired, and cut into 6 equal portions. Prepare 6 aluminum foil squares or hearts. Cut six 12-inch squares of heavy-duty aluminum foil. If a heart-shaped papillote is desired, fold square in half and cut out the largest possible heart. Open foil squares or hearts and brush to within 1 1/2 inches of all edges with 2 tablespoons margarine or oil. Prepare sauce. Sauté onion slowly in remaining 4 tablespoons margarine or cooking oil until transparent, not brown. Stir in flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, and dash of pepper. Add milk all at once and cook slowly, stirring constantly, until thick. Stir in wine, bouillon, or milk as desired and lemon juice. Bring to simmering stage. Fold in shrimp and parsley. Place a portion of fish to one side of center of each sheet of foil. Sprinkle remaining 1/4 teaspoon salt over fish; fold edges of foil together 2 or 3 times to make a good seal; place on baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, 30 minutes. Test with a fork. To serve, make a crosswise slit the length and width of each package; fold edges back. Makes 6 servings.

Note: Mullet, redfish, or sea trout fillets are also excellent when used in this recipe.

How to beat high cost of food

CHECKING THE REFRIGERATOR

Too often food flavor is lost or food spoils because a refrigerator, freezer or freezer compartment is not working properly or the temperature is set too high (too warm). Using a good thermometer, check your refrigerator periodically. The temperature should be constantly below 40 degrees to hold foods properly and too avoid the risk of harmful bacterial growth. The freezer cabinet should be maintained at 0 degrees or below. If it cannot hold this temperature then do not store frozen foods in it for more than three to five days.

Guidelines for refrigeration

All foods need some protection in the refrigerator-freezer. One rule is, "If it doesn't already have a wrap, wrap it." Cover food tightly with something moisture and vapor-proof. Use something clingy and disposable, or a rigid container — reusable and washable in the dishwasher.

If it is already wrapped, leave it. Another rule for refrigerator foods. If they are to be used fairly soon, pre-packaged meats can be refrigerated or frozen in most usual store wraps, say home economists for the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers. The same holds true for an increasing number of baked goods.

Some foods may not require refrigeration but cool temperatures can improve flavor or length of storage time... things like canned fruits, jams and jellies, spices, nuts and chocolate. Potatoes and bananas shouldn't be refrigerated.

When to refrigerate? The sooner, the better. The refrigerator - freezer can preserve only the quality it gets at the start. So no time should be wasted in getting the food to storage.

In storing greens such as iceberg lettuce, there are two schools of thought. One calls for washing the head immediately, first removing the core by jabbing it against a counter corner and lifting out. Cutting out the core causes the "rust" to form more rapidly. Drain well and store in paper towel and plastic wrap core side down. The other school: store in plastic bag until ready to use, then wash and drain.

Lower temperature means longer storage. Some perishable foods now can be kept longer than ever before. In an old 45-degree refrigerator, a quart of milk could sour in four days. At 35 degrees in today's refrigerator, milk usually will keep seven to 10 days. Freezers can keep meats for six to nine months.

Even though a refrigerator or freezer may have been loaded from a big shopping trip, there's no need to change the temperature controls. In a few hours the climate will be back to normal.

Forecast for remainder of 1973

Experts offer food price outlook

by FRANK HECKART

For the remainder of 1973, the prices of meat, poultry and eggs are not expected to change much from present levels, following August's record-breaking highs, but the outlook for milk, bread and baked goods is less favorable.

As wheat supplies reach what may be a dangerously low level, consumers can expect higher prices for bread and baked goods, and with milk production declining, milk prices are expected to rise too.

These and other insights into the food price and supply picture were afforded by a panel of commodities experts at a recent briefing held by the Super Market Institute.

RICHARD LYNG, president of the American Meat Institute, said there is no big shortage of meat in this country, but there is less meat than people would like because per capita consumption is up. That fact alone means prices will not drop to the low levels of recent years, according to Lyng.

Meat prices soared earlier this year because the 1973 supply did not meet demand, the supply being some 10 pounds per person less than last year.

"We had a meat price freeze in March, a meat boycott in April, record high hog and cattle prices in July, and August, custom cattle slaughtering in August and the largest one-month price declines ever in live hog and fed cattle in September," Lyng recounted in explaining the meat problem.

Increased meat exports over a four-month period when hog slaughter was down nine per cent also put pressure on pork and beef prices, he said.

Lyng predicted a slightly larger cattle slaughter during the last quarter of 1973 (October, November, December) than in any of the first three quarters of this year.

"THERE SHOULD be enough so that prices will remain fairly stable in October, perhaps moving up a bit in November and December as demand continues to improve."

Decreased pork supplies may create pressure on beef prices that will help keep them stable, he said.

Lyng expects more meat to be available in 1974, particularly the second half of the year. During the first quarter, though, a tight situation may prevail because after-effects of price control will be quite strong.

Although there may be periods of high prices in '74, expanded production has been predicted.

According to Dr. Robert E. Wunderle, director of economic research for the National Broiler Council, broiler chicken prices will fluctuate around current levels which are about 30 cents under August.

Only slight changes in chicken prices are expected in the next few months, he said. High production costs will prevent any drastic drop in poultry prices.

AVAILABLE TURKEY supplies are about five per cent under a year ago, but Wunderle maintained supply will be ample and prices remain about the same.

Even though turkey prices will "obviously be higher than last year," Wunderle said, it's possible consumers will pay less than wholesale prices.

He did not expect the 30 to 35-cent increase in wholesale price for turkeys to be passed along to consumers since many markets purchased their birds last year.

William O. Mead of Campbell Taggart, Inc., was not optimistic as he discussed wheat supplies and their subsequent effect on prices of bread and baked goods.

He predicted "we will be practically out of wheat next spring," and consumer prices will go unbelievably high unless reasonable export controls are instituted soon.

Domestic consumption and export of cereal grains cannot continue at current rates without reducing our own stocks to levels dangerous for and unacceptable to the American consumer, Mead said.

OTHER INGREDIENTS in the production of bakery products are also increasing in cost, said Mead. Powdered eggs are up 66 per cent; corn flour, 124 per cent; chocolate, 177 per cent; raisins, 102 per cent; and soy flour, 214 per cent over a year ago. Price increases also have occurred for powdered milk, whey, peaches, cherries, apples and other ingredients.

Mead did not anticipate any baked goods shortages at this point. "For the near term," he said, "there will be plenty of bread and bakery products, but prices will be high."

"The unknown will come in the spring of 1974, and what happens then all depends on whether Mr. Butz (secretary of agriculture) or the President places some restriction on wheat and other products being exported..."

Milk production is declining, Dr. George L. Mehren, general manager, Associated Milk Producers, Inc., told the briefing audience. He blamed the government's "inadequate price support measures in the face of extreme increases in production costs on American dairy farms," import policies and wage and price controls.

SEPTEMBER WAS the 11th consecutive month that milk production in the U.S. fell below production in the corresponding month of the preceding year, he said.

There was some initial consumer resistance to higher prices beginning in August, Mehren reported, but sales have tended to recover quickly and are now beginning to reflect increases above the rate a year ago, he added.

For the dairy farmer, he said, there is no alternative but to price milk at the farm at that level required to cover production costs, including a reasonable return on his substantial investment.

Average food prices recorded on Monday indicate only slight fluctuations from a week ago. Exceptions include pork chops which show a decrease of 40 cents per pound and eggs which are down six cents from Oct. 8. Margarine shows an increase of three cents in one week. The remaining prices show only minor variances.

Recorded prices are based on averages taken from four area supermarkets to measure general trends.

Budget-conscious entree features franks and beans

Frank and Bean Biscuit Casserole is a money minded main dish which offers taste satisfaction and good nutrition. This economical entree features baked beans and wieners. Refrigerated biscuits, sprinkled with shredded Cheddar cheese, bake atop.

To complete this family menu, offer a variety of crisp fresh relishes and broiled peach halves. For dessert — ice cream or sherbet with a choice of toppings.

BEAN 'N FRANK BISCUIT CASSEROLE

- 1 pound wieners, sliced
- 1 16-ounce can (1 1/2 cups) pork and beans
- 1/2 cup catsup
- 1/2 cup chopped onion or 2 tablespoons instant minced onion
- 3 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 8-ounce can refrigerated buttermilk or country style biscuits
- 1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. In medium sauce pan, combine first five (5) ingredients; bring to boil, simmer 5 minutes. Spoon hot meat mixture into ungreased 8 or 9-inch square pan. Separate biscuit dough into 10 biscuits; arrange over hot meat mixture. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes until biscuits are golden brown and no longer doughy. Refrigerate any leftovers. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

Easy walnut 'torte'

Leftover cake icing makes into a fun dessert. Mix chopped California walnuts into the icing and spread on graham crackers. Stack 3 or 4 high. Wrap in wax paper or clear wrap and chill in the refrigerator about 24 hours. Serve topped with ice cream, pudding, chocolate sauce or fruit preserves. Sprinkle with more walnuts for delectable appeal. There are countless combinations so your "torte" is deliciously different every time.

It's slim pickin's for area apple producers

by BETTY LEE
It's slim pickin's this year for apples — mackintosh, Jonathan, red and golden delicious.
Last year the Midwest harvest provided tons of apples for people to take home from markets. Families drove out to orchards for a day of plucking apples from trees. Roadside stands bulged with bushel baskets of the fruit and there was plenty of cider, apple butter and other apple products.
But due to the poorest season in years, there is an apple shortage and prices have zoomed as much as 25 per cent.
BILL WEBBE owns the Mossley Hill

Farms Inc. in Lake Zurich. This year he managed to harvest 30 to 35 per cent of the crop for his retail business, compared to last year's 90 per cent.
"There are a number of reasons why we have the shortage," said Webbe. "The mild frost we had in spring killed some of the blossoms. The frost sterilizes the pollen.
"And with the rain and cool weather, the bees don't come out and pollinate the trees. This year we had only one or two good days."
Webbe added that poor pollination and a continuous damp spring caused a fungus growth called "scab" which affects the leaves and the fruit of the tree. The fruit may eventually rot or fall from branches before maturity.

LIKE OTHER neighboring orchards, Mossley Hill Farms was open to the public for apple picking in mid-September. Thousands of people from the city as well as from the suburbs came to spend an afternoon picking their own apples for $5 a bushel. Last season it cost $4.25.
But this year something different happened at the Webbe farm. The rolling hills of the orchard were littered with thousands of fallen apples and debris left by people who came. Most of the fruit was picked early last week and what remained were rows of barren trees. There will be no more apple picking this season.

"It's the shortage," said Lee Logan, manager. "With the shortage and crowds that size, people get out of control. They left a mess and destroyed tree limbs."
Theft increased this year with the large crowd of pickers. People would hide apples in their cars, golf bags, bowling bags and baby buggies, said Webbe.
WEBBE ESTIMATED the apple supply will last until mid to late November. Usually there are enough to put in cold storage and to sell until June or July.
"What am I going to do?" said Webbe.

"I'm not sure what to do." This week he plans to ship in loads of apples from another orchard he owns in Michigan. He indicated that other fruits like peaches and pears suffered a poor season also.
Bell's Apple Orchard is in Barrington, near routes 12 and 22. A dusty road leads to its massive shop. Inside there are hundreds of sacks of apples on giant roll-away carts and on tables.
A long line by the cash register includes people buying apples and children buying caramel apples and cider. The phone rings and a saleslady answers. Someone wants to know about pick-your-

7% commuter rate hike for C&NW wins approval

by STEVE FORSYTH
After 11 months of delay, Chicago and North Western Ry. commuters can expect to pay 7 per cent more for tickets next month.
The Illinois Commerce Commission delayed the request made last November because of the federal price freeze, and continued the delay until this month. The commission, which met late yesterday and is scheduled to meet again today, was expected to discuss the rate-hike request at one of the sessions.
The across-the-board increase is expected to bring in an additional $1.5 million in commuter fares, but a spokesman for the railroad said much of that has, in effect, been lost because of the delay of almost a year. Profits for the successful commuter line have dropped from a peak of $2.4 million in 1968 to an estimated $500,000 this year, company spokesmen say.

THERE REPORTEDLY is a provision for automatic approval of the increase if the commission does not rule soon. If approved this week or early next week, the railroad would put the increases in effect beginning Nov. 1.

The hike would be the sixth in six years for the C&NW. Commuters could face a further increase a spokesman said because of pay raises and higher pension fund costs scheduled to become effective soon.
The commission was expected to consider the rate hike last May, but did not take action then. At that time, a C&NW spokesman said the company was losing an additional $133,000 a month without the increase.
Early this year the spokesman said the C&NW was faced with the $1.5 million deficit and had to decide whether to seek an increase or ask for permission to curtail services. If the fare hike had been approved immediately, it would have forestalled another hike further on, he said.

Productions for kids to play at Cooper

A series of professional stage productions for children will be presented again this year at Cooper Junior High School, beginning Saturday, Nov. 17.
The Buffalo Grove Junior Woman's Club is sponsoring the series that will include four shows between now and April.
Applications for tickets for the series must be submitted no later than Monday, Oct. 29. Checks for $5 each should be made payable to the Buffalo Grove Junior Woman's Club and mailed along with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Mrs. Thomas Kelly, 86 Downing Rd., Buffalo Grove.
Only 300 series tickets are available on a first come, first served basis. No single performance tickets will be sold.
"Paddy's Moon," the first show in the series, will be presented Nov. 17 by the Wilmette Children's Theatre. The play is the story of an ambitious leprechaun who sets out to chase a rainbow and ends up catching the moon.

By endowing the characters in "Paddy's Moon" with human traits, the playwright attempts to show that having a heart of gold is more important than having a pot of gold.
A REPERTORY company, The Truck, will present "If I wore Your Shoes," Saturday, Jan. 5.
The troupe's presentation deals with children's feelings of love, hate, anger and fear through the use of music and song as the children assign roles to the actors. The introduction to role playing is intended to lead children to a better understanding of their feelings.
The third presentation in the theatre series will be "A Very Bad Case of Abscessia," staged by Dr. Sunshino's Puppet Theatre on Saturday, March 2.
The show concerns events that happen to various woodland creatures living deep in a dark and wonderful forest. It contains several songs and encourages the participation of the spectators in the action.

THE LAST PLAY in the series, scheduled for Saturday, April 27, is "Mary Poppins," to be presented by St. James Christie Academy.
The popular musical will include all the favorite songs and dances of the original stage show.
Each program in the series is set to begin at 1:20 p.m. and last one hour. Children will be met at the door, seated and supervised during the performances by members of the Junior Woman's Club.
Stolen pills found in field at school
Hundreds of pills stolen Sunday from a Wheeling pharmacy were recovered Tuesday from a field at Mark Twain School, 515 E. Merle Ln., Wheeling.
Police said 300 to 400 of the pills, later identified by pharmacist Steward Steres, were found scattered in the field by some children taking recess. According to police, as many pills as possible were picked up, then the fire department flooded the area and the park district mowed the field.
Despite the efforts Twain Principal Patricia Weiss later saw some youths collecting more pills from the field. About 50 additional pills were then confiscated by police.

3 public works employees among those subpoenaed

by LYNN ASINOF
Three members of the Wheeling Public Works Department are among eight village employees who received subpoenas this week to testify before a federal grand jury investigating alleged shake-downs of contractors and developers.
The Herald disclosed yesterday that four building inspectors and an ordinance control officer were called Monday to testify. According to village sources, the subpoenas were delivered late Monday at the municipal building by a federal agent.
Public Works Director Larry Oppenheimer refused to confirm that either he or anyone in his department had been subpoenaed. "It's something that should not be discussed because it's secret," he said. Oppenheimer said any comment would have to come from either the village manager or the U. S. attorney's office.
THE VILLAGE employees are expected to be asked what they know about instances of pressure applied by local officials or others as part of alleged attempts to extort payoffs from builders and developers.

Federal investigators are known to be seeking information about village building and zoning procedures. The employees are also expected to be questioned about how they got their jobs and which village officials or others are in a position to give them orders.
The latest batch of subpoenas brings to at least 16 the number of present or former village officials and employees called to testify before the grand jury. Among those subpoenaed are Village Mgr. George Passolt, Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon, Trustee William Hein, and former trustees Michael Valenza, William Hart and Ira Bird.
In addition, the grand jury has subpoenaed building and zoning records, as well as the past five years of village board records.

Country Club basin delayed

In what Buffalo Grove officials are terming "a touchy situation," the new retention basin to be built on the Arlington Country Club golf course has been officially postponed one year.
Construction on the project was to begin this week. Because of legal problems with the Metropolitan Sanitary District, however, the project could not go out for bids in time.
VILLAGE MGR. Daniel Larson said the agreement with the owner of the golf course stated that construction must be completed by April. Since it was too late to start construction, officials felt that the job could not be completed on time and therefore abandoned it.
Although the formal reacreement has not been signed, village officials are sure the state, MSD and the village will come to terms on the matter. When the agreement is signed, it is expected to call for an Oct. 14, 1974 starting date.
Officials would not elaborate on the "touchy" part of the reacreement, but it apparently deals with finances. The state, village and MSD are sharing the cost for the project and it is believed they are discussing new terms.
Larson said the one-year delay will not create any severe problems for the vil-

School district begins census to find needs

School Dist. 21 has begun a census of all residents designed to aid in projecting enrollments and identifying students with special needs. The census will continue through Oct. 31.
The door-to-door canvassing is being done by PTA and PTO members in each school attendance area.
The first census conducted by the district in 10 years, the survey is designed to give administrators data to plan for future needs.
According to Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill, changes in house building patterns within the district have made it difficult to project future student enrollments. In the past few years, builders have switched from constructing mainly single-family homes to multiple-family dwellings.
Gill said there is also a need to identify students in the district who need special instruction. In addition to measuring the number of children with mental or physical handicaps, the survey will also reveal the number of local students who need bilingual instruction.
After the survey is completed, Gill said, it will take about a month to compile the results. A report will be presented to the school board as soon as possible, he said. Copies of the report will also be given to high schools and private schools in the Dist. 21 area.

Open house Tuesday at Stevenson High

Adlai Stevenson High School's annual open house for parents will be at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday.
Parents will begin the evening with a 15-minute briefing session in the auditorium. Later, they will follow student schedules which will include six 10-minute class periods. Student council members will assist parents in finding the right rooms.
Refreshments will be served in the cafeteria after the last class period.

Legal tangle with MSD

Country Club basin delayed

Buffalo Grove will be responsible for the maintenance of the retention lake, that will hold 260 gallons of water.
Parks schedule more pool fishing
For those who missed it last weekend and for those who want to try again there will be fishing in the Willow Stream Pool Saturday afternoon.
The park district stocked the pool with 250 pounds of trout, but fishermen could only tempt about half that amount into becoming someone's dinner. Therefore, this week anglers will be able to clear the pool.
The fun starts with four one-hour sessions, open to the general public, beginning at noon. That will be followed at 4 p.m. by 1½ hours of fishing for adults only.
The price for all sessions will be $1 with participants keeping all the fish they can catch. The district will supply cheese for bait, but it will not supply poles.
The reservoir, which will have a 16 million-gallon capacity, will also handle water from the White Pine ditch, Buffalo Creek and the Wheeling drainage ditch.
Larson also said the delay in the golf course basin will allow the reservoir on Arlington Heights road to be completed first. He said the village has learned that construction on the lake will begin in about four months.
The reservoir will take up 100 acres on the southwest corner of Arlington Heights and Checker roads, and Larson said it could be completed as soon as next July.
This project is a joint venture of the Lake County Forest Preserve District, the MSD and the village. Plans call for the area to be developed as a public park and recreational area. The Forest Preserve District will be responsible for that aspect of the project.

State's attorney probing 'schemes' of sheriff's police in Niles division

by JOHN MAES

Several "wide-ranging investigations" of illegal schemes involving members of the Niles division of the Cook County Sheriff's Police are being conducted by State Attorney Bernard Carey.

The investigations have been spurred by information supplied by a Mount Prospect woman, convicted last June of killing her husband, a lieutenant in the county police department thought to be a member of the ring.

A spokesman for Carey said yesterday that indictments for theft and forgery are expected to be returned "in a few days" against at least three sheriff's officers who bilked the J. C. Penneys department store in Golf Mill Shopping Center out of about $900.

THE HERALD has also learned that sheriff's policemen were involved in a kickback scheme several years ago with at least two Northwest suburban auto towing firms. According to one source, the policemen would receive a $10 payoff for calling a towing operator when an accident occurred.

One source in Carey's office indicated that investigators there are aware of the towing scheme but at this point were not pursuing the matter.

The Mount Prospect woman, Ruth Carbona, is reportedly providing information in hopes of reducing the 20-60 year sentence she received in the murder conviction. Her slain husband, Lt. Joseph Carbona, reportedly was part of a forgery-theft scheme, which also involved a captain, sergeant and patrolmen from the Niles office. The Penneys theft allegedly took place about three years ago and has been under investigation since that time.

According to Edmond Dobbs, chief of the Sheriff's police, the probe started in December, 1970, when Sheriff Richard Elrod took office. Dobbs said the investigation had been stymied on occasion because of Carbona's death and lack of information.

AT LEAST one of the policemen under investigation was moonlighting for the Penneys store as a security guard. The cash was apparently taken from the store's daily receipts and replaced with forged checks made out for the stolen amounts.

Several Village of Niles policemen may also be involved in the scheme, according to sources. The Niles officers were reportedly trying to cover up the theft by returning cash to the store as restitution.

One employee at Penneys said he knew of the theft "some time ago" and thought the "whole thing had been dropped."

Penneys spokesman would not comment on the investigation or involvement of the store.

Carey spokesmen would not comment on other areas of the investigation into wrongdoing in the Niles division office.

NILES Police Chief Clarence Emrickson said he has been aware of the forgery-theft scheme for some time, adding some of his men are under grand jury investigation.

The jury is trying to determine whether Niles police attempted to cover up the scheme by obtaining money from ring members and returning it to the store.

Reportedly, Emrickson, and several Sheriff's and Niles policemen have testified before the jury. The jury has also screened numerous checks and handwriting samples in its investigation.

Morrissey may join tough Dem race

by NANCY COWGER

A Schaumburg man may be in a March primary battle for the 12th Congressional District seat on the Illinois Democratic Central Committee.

John F. Morrissey, 1310 N. Valley Lake Dr., yesterday confirmed he may run for the state central committee post when he seeks reelection as Schaumburg Township Democratic Committeeman. Morrissey expects to make a decision on the state party race after he assesses Cook County Democratic Party support during November.

IF HE RUNS for the state committee, Morrissey may face opposition from State Rep. Daniel Pierce, Highland Park, who was elected to that slot from the old 13th Congressional Dist. before it was reapportioned two years ago.

Pierce said yesterday he is undecided on whether he will seek reelection to the state central committee.

"I really haven't made up my mind. We will have to call a meeting of the Congressional District Committee pretty shortly, about the first week of November, to discuss the situation," said Pierce. He will make his decision at about that time, he said.

John F. Morrissey

IF MORRISSEY runs for the state level party office, residency and representation is the issue on which he will base his campaign, he said. Pierce lives in Lake County, while the 12th District includes both Cook County and Lake County townships, Morrissey pointed out. The townships are Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Hanover, Barrington, Palatine, Wheeling, Elmhurst, Vernon, West Deerfield, Libertyville and part of Deerfield.

"I do believe that based upon population, a person from Cook County would probably be more appropriate in that spot for a person from this congressional district," he said.

The basic question is "who can best represent" the area, said Morrissey.

Morrissey said he does not see the state central committee as a taxing job, "in terms of time." It "seldom meets, except in state making for state and federal offices," he said. The committee also determines state party platforms.

IT IS TRADITIONAL, said Morrissey, for state committee members to be members of the county central committee from their home area, which in Cook County means either township or Chicago ward committeemen.

Morrissey is a private attorney, with the Cook County Forest Preserve District among his clients. He was appointed township committeeman five years ago to fill an unexpired term and won election in a contested race four years ago.

He ran in 1969 for Hoffman Estates village president and in 1968 for state representative from the Third District, but lost both elections. He is a former justice of the peace and police magistrate, and was instrumental in legal aspects of incorporating Hoffman Estates.

McHenry Rd. project may bring 3,000, traffic woes

A combination apartment and townhouse development proposed for 67.3 acres on McHenry Road may bring nearly 3,000 new residents to Wheeling and may aggravate existing traffic problems in the area.

The zoning board of appeals endorsed the 978-unit development, but noted traffic congestion on McHenry Road will probably become worse when the project is built. The site is located between Whippertree Village and Cedar Run.

Traffic from the project, proposed by U. S. Home Corp., will exit onto McHenry Road from a single road running north-south through the property. The road may eventually exit onto the proposed Lake-Cook Road extension, if such exits are allowed.

A TRAFFIC EXPERT from U. S. Home admitted that the development may create some traffic problems on McHenry Road. For example, he said 70 per cent of morning traffic would exit southeast by turning left onto the road. He said, however, construction in the area will eventually lead to state improvements to the roadway.

Zoning board member Neil Brant said the increased traffic might require speedier remedies than the state usually provides. "Would you be willing to foot the bill for a set of traffic lights in that area if the state won't put them in?" he asked.

The developers said they would consider installing the lights. "We're not here to create problems," said the president of the U. S. Home area division. He said, if possible, his firm would like to solve existing problems.

The apartment section of the project will be developed in six clusters of buildings, three of which will center on retention basins. The 2½- and 3-story buildings will include one- and two-bedroom units.

The 768 rental units will be built on about 41 acres of the site. The remaining 20 acres will be used for 210 townhouse units. The total density of the project will be 15.9 units per acre, just below the 16 units allowed by ordinance.

BABBIN AND ASSOCIATES, architects for the apartment part of the development, were responsible for two other Wheeling developments, Mallard Lake and Lake of the Winds. The townhouses are being designed by U.S. Home. Both parts of the project are scheduled to be developed at the same time.

Retention for the property will be handled by four basins. The storm water will be released into a drainage ditch running southeast along McHenry Road.

Rents for the apartments are expected to range from $225 to $275 a month.

The zoning board's recommendations will now go to the village board for final approval. Zoning board members Ed Siepka and Alan Martin were absent.

own-apples. "There's no picking," said the woman. "There's a shortage this year."

PRICES OF APPLES have increased by 20 to 25 per cent here too. "But this doesn't stop the people from buying," said Louise Beel. However, the management is limiting customers to buy pecks instead of the usual half and full bushel. Each peck is equivalent to 10 to 12 pounds of fruit.

"We're way short of last year's harvest," she said, adding that they had harvested about half of the crop. "This has been the shortest in years."

Caramel apples, pies, doughnuts, cider are staple selling items. To bolster sales, they also sell nuts, cheeses, syrups and jams.

"Some customers get irate and they don't understand about the shortage," she said. "They drive out from the city and find they can only buy a peck. It puts us in a bad limelight."

THE PRICE OF apples has been stable at Wauconda Orchard near Boner and Fairfield roads. But it'll go up as soon as the supply diminishes and apples from other sections of the country are shipped in to be sold, said a spokesman.

The orchard consists of 9,000 trees and only 40 per cent of the crop was harvested this year.

"We feel badly," said the spokesman. "We can't tell people about the shortage unless we take out a full page ad."

Customers can buy as much as they want and the business also makes fruit gift packs.

Bogus $10 bill passed at store

A counterfeit $10 bill was found this week at Elm Farm Foods, 1100 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove.

The bill was the latest in a series of phonies turning up in the Northwest suburbs. Several counterfeit $20 bills have surfaced in Wheeling, Highland Park and Glenview.

Buffalo Grove police said the bill was made of heavier paper, lacked red lines through the paper, was a different size and had a blurred face.

stores are usually from the northwest portion of the country, according to Bill Newby, director of public relations of the Jewel Tea Co., Melrose Park.

MOST OF THE Midwest-grown apples are used for processing, that is, for secondary apple products like applesauce, canned sliced apples and juice, said Newby. But since there is a shortage in process-type apples, apples from other regions of the country would have to go to make up for the shortage. In turn there is a general overall apple shortage, said Newby.

However, consumers can assume there will be an adequate supply in the stores. "The higher prices regulate the demands," said Newby. "It will informally allocate the supply."

The last major calamity for the apple grower occurred in the late 1940s, according to Logan of the Mossley Hill Farms.

"We were wiped out in a frost," he said. "It killed the whole crop except for a couple of bushels near the top (of the tree). We went fishing that year."

It's a gamble each year with the weather, growers say. "The bud formation of the branches looks good," said Logan. "So we hope to fire back next year."

Parks seeking federal grant

The Prospect Heights Park District has applied for a $55,000 federal grant to purchase the 26-acre Hillcrest Slough. Part of the money would be used to develop the wetland as a wildlife nature center.

The grant is being sought from the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, with the state deciding who gets the federal funds.

Park Comr. Max Lyle, planning the land acquisition committee chairman, did not want to comment extensively about the grant because it involves land acquisition. He did say the district hopes to use part of the money for development and that the slough property is appraised "for nowhere near" the requested grant total.

CURRENTLY, THE park district has filed to start condemnation proceedings to acquire the so-called south slough, south of Hillcrest Drive. Lyle said a court hearing on the condemnation suit cannot be set until the district hears from the state about the grant application.

He said the park district would "love to have" the north part of the slough. Reportedly, the park district has offered $20,000 to the Hillcrest Lake Homeowners Association for the property, but the homeowner group has demanded $130,000.

As for negotiations between the two groups, Lyle said, "Nothing is happening right now."

Adm. Loeffler quits high school board

Adm. Heinz H. Loeffler of Long Grove has resigned from the Adlai Stevenson High School Dist. 125 Board of Education.

At Monday's meeting, the board named another Long Grove resident, Justin Fishbein, to fill out Loeffler's unexpired term. The term ends in April, 1974.

Loeffler has been a board member since 1966 and was twice elected for three-year terms. He retired from the U.S. Naval Reserve a year ago and has been president of the Exeter Paper Co. in Chicago since 1948.

In his letter of resignation, Loeffler said although he is retired from the Navy, he still has military and business obligations that prevent him from continuing to serve on the school board.

Fishbein was appointed to the board in 1967 and was twice elected to three-year terms as a board member from an unincorporated area of the district. Early in his second term, Fishbein moved to Long Grove, an incorporated area, and had to resign to permit the board to replace him with a representative of an unincorporated area. (Fishbein is senior project editor of Science Research Associates.)

IN OTHER BUSINESS, principal Paul Kern and several department chairmen described to the board the transition last year's freshmen have made to the sophomore program.

The freshman studies program adopted last year differs significantly from the traditional sophomore program.

Board members have been concerned how the first freshmen to participate in the new program would adapt to the traditional teaching methods used on the sophomore level.

In general, the chairman said the sophomores have adjusted very well. They said they found the students well prepared in most areas, but said they were not as efficient as expected in writing techniques, algebra skills and mathematical problem solving.

However, most chairmen said their observations were tentative and that it was too early to judge the sophomores academically. They will report back to the school board after semester tests.

ALSO, THE BOARD unanimously approved a student exchange program being organized by the Stevenson foreign language department.

The program is to bring 10 to 15 students from Germany to the Prairie View campus for three weeks around Easter next spring. In June and July, the same number of Stevenson students will spend a similar amount of time in Germany. The program is sponsored by the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Two other programs being organized by the foreign language department include an early summer trip to France and a one-week excursion to Mexico during Easter break.

The four-week trip to France is sponsored by the American Institute for Foreign Study and includes three weeks at the Strasbourg summer school in southern France. Another week will be divided between visits to Paris and Rome. Details on the trip to Mexico designed for Spanish students are not yet available.

THE FINANCE and education committees of the Dist. 125 school board will meet before the Nov. 19 board meeting to discuss plans for joining a nearby junior college district.

The board must decide by Dec. 1 if it wishes to be annexed to a particular junior college district. Stevenson is not presently in any junior college district.

Dist. 125 has the options of joining the College of Lake County, Harper College or a new north shore junior college district being formed by several high school districts east of Stevenson.

BECAUSE OF SEPTEMBER losses of more than $900 in the cafeteria operation, prices of some items including sandwiches will be raised five cents beginning Nov. 1.

The price of a hot lunch will remain at 50 cents for the next month, but it may be necessary to raise the price by the first of the year, according to Asst. Supt. Edwin Ellis.

In other action, the board set Nov. 26 as the date for an open meeting to review new goals for Stevenson.

The goals, developed by several citizens' committees, will be discussed at 8 p.m. at the school.

Maine Township teachers' unions stage protest march

Nearly 300 Maine Township teachers braved cloudy skies and chilly weather yesterday afternoon to take their battle with the school board into the streets.

The teachers — members of unions in Des Plaines Elementary Dist. 62, East Maine Elementary School Dist. 63 and Maine Township Dist. 207 — marched the half mile from Maine East High School to Rand Park to publicize their disagreements with school boards.

Teachers in the three districts are seeking the right to negotiate working conditions, including a voice in class size, grievance procedures and faculty evaluation procedures. School boards have consistently refused to negotiate most of these items.

The march, scheduled to begin at 4 p.m., was nearly a half hour late in starting. Small groups of people huddled in the wind discussing the contract disputes and reading leaflets.

THE ATMOSPHERE was reminiscent of a pep rally with teachers in one corner practicing a "battle song" composed by two grade school teachers while others distributed handouts on negotiations.

March organizers finally assembled the scattered teachers and the group set off down Dempster Road to Rand Park. Union leaders were apparently pleased with the turnout despite the poor weather.

"God must smile on school boards," Dewane Barnes, president of the Maine Teachers' Association, said. "Every time we have a rally, the weather's bad."

Teachers gathered in a tight circle in the corner of the park baseball field to hear speakers comment on the common problems of the marchers. Joe Pasteris, immediate past president of the Illinois Education Association, said "teachers are not professional until they are sitting down and making decisions to improve the schools."

"IF EVERYBODY from the U.S. Chamber of Commerce down is going to scream at us to be more accountable, I think it's about time they allowed us to sit down and make those decisions," he said.

The former IEA president noted that one motorist asked "What are you marching for, you're overpaid already." "I know of one district where a teacher with 30 hours graduate work and 15 years experience is getting $11,200 gross salary," he said. "There ain't no teachers walking home with bagsful of money. You know it and I know it."

John Pacay, president of the Des Plaines Education Association (DPEA), told the gathering "It is nonsense to proclaim that teachers are dedicated professionals while attempting to deny them the right to negotiate on matters other than bread and butter."

A MEDIATOR recently recessed negotiations between the DPEA and the Dist. 62 board when the two sides failed to agree on what are negotiable items.

Henry O'Neill, president of the East Maine Education (EMEA) said the Dist. 63 board is "using the negotiation table to keep teachers at arm's length."

"We agreed to sit down and start negotiations over a year ago," O'Neill said. "As of Friday night, we're still in the process of starting."

EMEA members agreed to strike earlier this week if no progress is made in negotiations. O'Neill denied rumors that teachers are holding a "blue flu" day today.

Barnes told teachers that the MTA was ready to withdraw its lawsuit against the Dist. 207 board if the board would recognize the MTA as the teachers' bargaining agent.

ABOUT 300 TEACHERS took part in a "March for Education" yesterday afternoon. Members of three Maine Township teachers' associations, the marchers were demonstrating to protest "the conspiracy among school boards to deny teachers a meaningful voice in educational decision-making."

Strike threats won't move school board to mediation

by LINDA PUNCH

Board members in Dist. 63 refused to agree to mediation in the East Maine Township contract dispute despite the threat of a teachers' strike next Wednesday.

The board gave no support to a motion by Board Member Larry Reiss that both sides seek the services of an outside mediator. Reiss was responding to repeated pleas from the audience that an impartial third party be called into negotiations.

More than 150 parents and teachers packed the Ballard School gym Tuesday night for the board's regular meeting. Nearly 25 teachers picketed in front of the building carrying signs reading "We'll talk if you listen" and "We want rights not fights."

Members of the East Maine Education Association (EMEA) voted Monday to strike if no progress is made in the contract dispute.

REACHING A MILESTONE in the history of Des Plaines, Mayor Herbert Behrel addresses city officials and other dignitaries during yesterday's groundbreaking ceremonies for the new city hall. Officials said they expect the six-story, $1.6 million facility to be completed in early 1975.

Ground broken for $1.6 million city hall

Calling the event a "milestone in the city's history" Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel and other city officials broke ground yesterday for the new $1.6 million city hall.

During a brief ceremony, city officials gathered at the site of the six-story structure to get construction under way. The facility is scheduled for completion in early 1975.

Behrel credited the efforts of Ald. Joseph Szabo (1st) in guiding the planning process for the new building. Szabo heads the city council's building-and-grounds committee, which oversees the development of all city buildings.

THE MAYOR also praised the city council for its cooperation in giving approval of the project. Many other city officials and contractors involved in the project attended the ceremony.

Behrel noted the planning process for the building has been going on for more than four years. The concept and design for the facility has been changed several times in recent years.

The new city hall building will represent the first phase of a planned civic center complex. Once the city hall building is completed, the city will begin construction of a new police station. A multiple-story parking garage is also being planned for the Miner Street site.

Work on the project began last month when two small office buildings, formerly occupied by the mayor and city clerk, were razed.

Present plans call for the demolition of the old fire station, which is now being used by the police, adjacent to the city hall. City officials intend to leave the present city hall building standing and have suggested that a portion of the building be turned over to the Des Plaines Park District or the local historical society.

Carey probing sheriff's police in Niles

by JOHN MAES

Several "wide-ranging investigations" of illegal schemes involving members of the Niles division of the Cook County Sheriff's Police are being conducted by States Attorney Bernard Carey.

The investigations have been spurred by information supplied by a Mount Prospect woman, convicted last June of killing her husband, a lieutenant in the county police department thought to be a member of the ring.

A spokesman for Carey said yesterday that investigators for theft and forgery are expected to be returned "in a few days" against at least three sheriff's officers who bilked the J. C. Penneys department store in Golf Mill Shopping Center out of about $900.

THE HERALD has also learned that sheriff's policemen were involved in a kickback scheme several years ago with at least two Northwest suburban auto towing firms. According to one source, the policemen would receive a $10 payoff for calling a towing operator when an accident occurred.

One source in Carey's office indicated that investigators there are aware of the towing scheme but at this point were not pursuing the matter.

The Mount Prospect woman, Ruthe Carbone, is reportedly providing information in hopes of reducing the 20-60 year sentence she received in the murder conviction. Her slain husband, Lt. Joseph Carbone, reportedly was part of a forgery-theft scheme, which also involved a captain, sergeant and patrolmen from the Niles office. The Penneys theft allegedly took place about three years ago and has been under investigation since that time.

According to Edmond Dobbs, chief of the Sheriff's police, the probe started in December, 1970, when Sheriff Richard Elrod took office. Dobbs said the investigation had been stymied on occasion because of Carbone's death and lack of information.

AT LEAST one of the policemen under investigation was moonlighting for the Penneys store as a security guard. The cash was apparently taken from the store's daily receipts and replaced with forged checks made out for the stolen amounts.

Several Village of Niles policemen may also be involved in the scheme, according to sources. The Niles officers were reportedly trying to cover up the theft by returning cash to the store as restitution.

One employee at Penneys said he knew of the theft "some time ago" and thought the "whole thing had been dropped." Penneys spokesman would not comment on the investigation or involvement of the store.

Carey spokesmen would not comment on other areas of the investigation into wrongdoing in the Niles division office.

NILES Police Chief Clarence Emrickson said he has been aware of the forgery-theft scheme for some time, adding some of his men are under grand jury investigation.

The jury is trying to determine whether Niles police attempted to cover up the scheme by obtaining money from ring members and returning it to the store.

Reportedly, Emrickson, and several Sheriff's and Niles policemen have testified before the jury. The jury has also screened numerous checks and handwriting samples in its investigation.

Randhurst art show slated this weekend

More than 135 artists and sculptors will participate in an art show this weekend at the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect.

The artists, who come from the Chicago area and four Midwest states, will be setting up their work from 3 to 9:30 p.m. Friday in the mall. The work will remain on display from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

C&NW commuter hike OKd

by STEVE FORSYTH

After 11 months of delay, Chicago and North Western Ry. commuters can expect to pay 7 per cent more for tickets next month.

The Illinois Commerce Commission delayed the request made last November because of the federal price freeze, and continued the delay until this month. The commission, which met late yesterday and is scheduled to meet again today, was expected to discuss the rate-hike request at one of the sessions.

The across-the-board increase is expected to bring in an additional $1.5 million in commuter fares, but a spokesman for the railroad said much of that has, in effect, been lost because of the delay of almost a year. Profits for the successful commuter line have dropped from a peak of $2.4 million in 1968 to an estimated $500,000 this year, company spokesmen say.

THERE REPORTEDLY is a provision for automatic approval of the increase if the commission does not rule soon. If approved this week or early next week, the railroad would put the increases in effect beginning Nov. 1.

The hike would be the sixth in six years for the C&NW. Commuters could face a further increase a spokesman said because of pay raises and higher pension fund costs scheduled to become effective soon.

The commission was expected to consider the rate hike last May, but did not take action then. At that time, a C&NW spokesman said the company was losing an additional $133,000 a month without the increase.

Early this year the spokesman said the C&NW was faced with the $1.5 million deficit and had to decide whether to seek

Dist. 26 school wrapup

Day, night talks for school parents

To accommodate working parents, conferences on student grade evaluations will be scheduled in the evening as well as during the day in School Dist. 26.

The first student evaluation reports will be issued Friday, Nov. 9. Parent-teacher conferences will be conducted from 6 to 9 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 8 and from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 9.

Curriculum Director Al Levin said evening conferences will probably be scheduled for all evaluation periods throughout the year.

Maryville School delay

Construction of the new Maryville School will be delayed until the Illinois Capital Development Board (ICDB) approves the Gregory Street site and makes soil tests.

In a letter to the administration last week, the ICDB indicated architects will study the site and direct civil engineers to conduct the soil tests in the near future. No date for issuing their report was given.

The Dist. 26 School Board hopes to begin work on the school this fall and have it completed in time for the 1974-75 school year.

The school will replace the River Road School at the Maryville Academy in Des Plaines. It will also be located on Maryville property to be purchased by the school district.

Curriculum to be studied

A complete evaluation of the Dist. 26 curriculum will soon be undertaken by committees of teachers.

Six major subject areas will be studied by the committee members who may recommend revisions or adoption of new teaching materials.

The subjects to be considered are reading and spelling, health and safety, math, science, language arts and career education.

County officer reportedly owns 25% of tract

Protest expected over Fulle land bid

by STEVE BROWN

Several Des Plaines residents are expected to protest a zoning variation request for a parcel of land that is partially owned by Cook County Comr. Floyd Fulle.

The objections will be raised Tuesday when the Des Plaines Zoning Board of Appeals reviews a petition from a land trust representing the owners of property to grant variations for building height and parking.

The action marks the second time this year the property, which is located at 738 Graceland Ave., has been reviewed by the zoning board. The first variation request was denied in February.

SEVERAL SOURCES have told The Herald that Fulle owns about 25 per cent of the property. Fulle could not be reached for comment yesterday.

The petitioners are seeking zoning variations which would allow the construction of a building 85 feet tall.

They also are requesting an increase in the number of units, which would allow the building to contain 98 units. The present zoning for the property allows an 88-foot structure and a maximum of 54 units.

When the first zoning request was heard last winter, the petitioners requested a 100-foot height variation and 129 units. They also requested that the parking requirements be reduced from one space per unit to one half space per unit.

AMONG THOSE expected to protest the zoning request are Murfay Smith, the former owner of the property.

Smith said he is concerned about the increasing encroachment of multiple-family housing into residential areas.

The protest will probably be one of several planned for next week's ZBA meeting. Residents are also planning to object to a rezoning request for several lots along Prairie Street.

The proposed rezoning would change the property from R-2 single-family to R-5 multiple-family zoning.

NEIGHBORS IN the area circulated petitions objecting to the zoning last weekend.

Kenneth Meyer, an attorney representing the property owners, said there are plans to develop one of the four lots at this time. He said the rezoning for the four lots is being requested so spot zoning would not occur. The rezoning involves property on Prairie Avenue.

Residents there are also protesting what they consider the encroachment of multiple-family housing in single-family areas.

MARY LYNN WENDLANDT and Randy Zwik will be among the performers this weekend in the Forest View High School production "Black Comedy." The play will be presented tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday at 8 p.m. at the school. Tickets are $1.

$6.5 million set as school vote goal

The Maine Township Dist. 207 School Board has set a $6.5 million figure for the Dec. 4 referendum for completion of Maine North High School.

The board agreed upon the figure at its regular meeting Monday night. The referendum was approved by the board in August to bring the school "up to par" with the other township high schools.

Plans for completion include classrooms, a student body area and music, art, home economics, speech and drama facilities, an auditorium and swimming pool.

The plans for Maine North expansion will increase the student capacity of the school to 2,000. Existing projections show the student population will level off after reaching 1,750.

In other action, board member John Means was named chairman a committee formed by the board to "reestablish lines of communications" with teachers.

Board Pres. Robert C. Claus said the committee is an effort to reaffirm the board's "willingness to meet and confer in a fair and reasonable manner" with teachers.

DEWANE BARNES, president of the Maine Teacher's Association, said he has had no contract with the board committee.

"As far as I can tell, Means is talking with the various departments to talk about curriculum," Barnes said. "They're obviously not trying to deal with the impasse between the board and the MTA."

The committee is scheduled to meet with the chairman of the foreign language departments on Nov. 1.

The MTA filed a lawsuit charging the school board acted illegally when it broke off talks last June. The board filed a countersuit saying the MTA broke the agreement by releasing information on salary negotiations.

A trial on the lawsuits has been scheduled for Dec. 4.

Touch football standings

Halloween window contest slated

Des Plaines merchants have once again offered their windows for the annual Halloween window painting contest jointly sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and the Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines.

All Cub Scout packs and Junior Girl Scout troops in Des Plaines are eligible to enter the contest, which will be held after school on Thursday and Friday, Oct. 25 and 26 from 4 to 6 p.m. Windows must be painted solely by the children and must be completed by Saturday morning, Oct. 27 when the judging will be held. First, second and third place ribbons will be awarded, plus other surprises and a gift for each child who participates.

The troops and dens supply the brushes and Tempera paints, and most importantly, the ideas in keeping with the Halloween theme. Ghosts, goblins, witches and pumpkins will decorate Des Plaines store windows through Nov. 1, after which each den and troop will be responsible for cleaning their own windows.

Applications for the contest and any further information may be obtained by calling 394-1288. The application deadline is Oct. 20.

Strike threats won't move school board to mediation

Sylvia McNair and William Gurotnick, offered to form an impartial citizen's committee to "make some constructive suggestions for cooling down this controversy."

Mrs. McNair said area residents were dismayed that people who worked together through "many other crises" are now "divided into two armed camps."

"IF WHAT IS now a strong disagreement becomes open warfare, no one will win — not the teachers, not the board," she said. "And those who will love most are the children."

Board Pres. Irene Luck said the board is "not at battle."

"If the other side feels at battle, I can't speak for them," she said.

Board members Jerry Abern, William Allen, John DiPrima, Milton Langer and Arleen Niletz agreed with Mrs. Luck that there has been no breakdown in negotiations. They said they would agree to mediation if both sides felt an impasse had been reached.

Abern said he didn't like the idea of a citizens' committee becoming involved in negotiations.

"I think both sides have communicated too much on this issue to the public," he said. "I think we should negotiate in closed sessions without having anyone go out into the public."

Abern was the board's representative on a committee to improve communications between the board and the community.

DI PRIMA NOTED that "we've made a great deal of movement" since each side brought in a professional negotiator. He said he thought the situation "is all mushroomed out of proportion" and that the negotiators should have more time to reach an agreement.

Reiss disagreed with the other board members' assessment of negotiations.

"When a strike vote is taken, in my mind that means negotiations have broken down," he said. "Teachers feel they can no longer settle at the negotiations table."

Jerome Robbins, school board attorney, said the negotiation process "may cause some disruption."

"You have to accept it since it's here. People agree to sit down and give and take — they also have the right to say no," he said.

During the 2½-hour question and answer session, audience members repeatedly chastised the board for poor communications. One man, apparently dissatisfied with the board's answers that teacher demands are illegal, said the board was "obviously being evasive."

"I'm asking a question and not getting an answer. Possibly that's the problem with negotiations," he said.

Mrs. Luck responded that "the board upholds state law and state law says a strike is illegal."

ANOTHER PARENT termed the board's recent newsletter on negotiations "nothing more than a minimal explanation of your view with absolutely no details."

"It bothers me that such a grave issue is treated so lightly," he said. "You said nothing more in the letter than relations in the district were good until the teachers went and joined a union."

One father accused the board of "playing with words and averages."

"A communication I received last June said class size would average 18 — now you say it averages 30 in some classes and 13 in others," he said. "Your responsibility is to communicate fairly. A communication like that is a lie by omission."

One parent also questioned Mrs. Luck and Abern, teachers in Park Ridge and Evanston, on their contracts. The EMEA claims the two board members have a contract similar to the one Dist. 63 teachers are proposing.

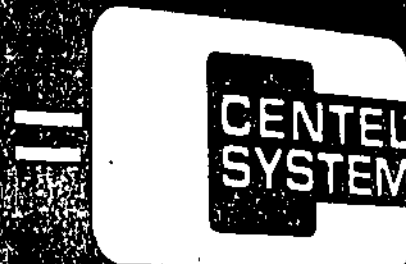

Mrs. Luck termed the teachers charges a "personality attack" and said she didn't feel the issue "is germane to negotiations."

"THEY CAN'T have that contract because they don't work in that district," Mrs. Luck said. "Teachers aren't in bondage — If they think another district has something better, maybe they can work there."

Both Mrs. Luck and Abern objected to an EMEA letter sent to Park Ridge and Evanston teachers discussing the two board members' part in the contract dispute.

Abern read a letter from an Evanston teacher who called the EMEA's actions "unethical" and "cheap union tactics."

PRODUCT PRICE + SERVICE

These are the three things to consider when you are in the market for a communications system. First there is the equipment. Is it quality? Will it last? Is it the right communications tool for your situation?

Then there is the price. Does it include maintenance and a full guarantee? Are there hidden costs? Do you pay for maintenance whether you need it or not?

Last and most important is service. You are dependent upon your communications equipment. If it fails, who will fix it? How long will you have to wait? What will it cost? Will it be done right the first time?

Your local telephone company, a part of the Centel System, wants you to know what you should be getting for your communications dollar. Once you know the facts, you'll realize Centel is the complete communications company.

Slim pickin's for apple growers

by BETTY LEE

It's slim pickin's this year for apples — mackintosh, jonathan, red and golden delicious.

Last year the Midwest harvest provided tons of apples for people to take home from markets. Families drove out to orchards for a day of plucking apples from trees. Roadside stands bulged with bushel baskets of the fruit and there was plenty of cider, apple butter and other apple products.

But due to the poorest season in years, there is an apple shortage and prices have zoomed as much as 25 per cent.

BILL WEBBE owns the Mossley Hill Farms Inc. in Lake Zurich. This year he managed to harvest 30 to 35 per cent of the crop for his retail business, compared to last year's 90 per cent.

"There are a number of reasons why we have the shortage," said Webbe. "The mild frost we had in spring killed some of the blossoms. The frost sterilized the pollen."

"And with the rain and cool weather, the bees don't come out and pollinate the trees. This year we had only one or two good days."

Webbe added that poor pollination and a continuous damp spring caused a fungus growth called "scab" which affects the leaves and the fruit of the tree. The fruit may eventually rot or fall from branches before maturity.

LIKE OTHER neighboring orchards, Mossley Hill Farms was open to the public for apple picking in mid-September. Thousands of people from the city as well as from the suburbs came to spend an afternoon picking their own apples for $3 a bushel. Last season it cost $4.25.

But this year something different happened at the Webbe farm. The rolling hills of the orchard were littered with thousands of fallen apples and debris left by people who came. Most of the fruit was picked early last week and what remained were rows of barren trees. There will be no more apple picking this season.

"It's the shortage," said Leo Logan, manager. "With the shortage and crowds that size, people get out of control. They left a mess and destroyed tree limbs."

Theft increased this year with the larger crowd of pickers. People would hide apples in their cars, golf bags, bowling bags and baby buggies, said Webbe.

WEBBE ESTIMATED the apple supply will last until mid to late November. Usually there are enough to put in cold storage and to sell until June or July.

"What am I going to do?" said Webbe. "I'm not sure what to do." This week he plans to ship in loads of apples from another orchard he owns in Michigan. He indicated that other fruits like peaches and pears suffered a poor season also.

Bell's Apple Orchard is in Barrington, near routes 12 and 22. A dusty road leads to its massive shop. Inside there are hundreds of sacks of apples on giant roll-away carts and on tables.

A long line by the cash register includes people buying apples and children buying caramel apples and cider. The phone rings and a saleslady answers. Someone wants to know about pick-your-own-apples. "There's no picking," said the woman. "There's a shortage this year."

PRICES OF APPLES have increased by 20 to 25 per cent here too. "But this doesn't stop the people from buying," said Louise Boel. However, the management is limiting customers to buy pecks instead of the usual half and full bushel. Each peck is equivalent to 10 to 12 pounds of fruit.

"We're way short of last year's harvest," she said, adding that they had harvested about half of the crop. "This has been the shortest in years."

Caramel apples, pies, doughnuts, cider are staple selling items. To bolster sales, they also sell nuts, cheeses, syrups and jams.

"Some customers get irate and they don't understand about the shortage," she said. "They drive out from the city and find they can only buy a peck. It puts us in a bad limelight."

THE PRICE OF apples has been stable at Wauconda Orchard near Bonner and Fairfield roads. But it'll go up as soon as the supply diminishes and apples from other sections of the country are shipped in to be sold, said a spokesman.

The orchard consists of 9,000 trees and only 40 per cent of the crop was harvested this year.

"We feel badly," said the spokesman. "We can't tell people about the shortage unless we take out a full page ad."

Customers can buy as much as they want and the business also makes fruit gift packs.

The apples you see in the grocery stores are usually from the northwest portion of the country, according to Bill Newby, director of public relations of the Jewel Tea Co., Melrose Park.

MOST OF THE Midwest-grown apples are used for processing, that is, for secondary apple products like applesauce, canned sliced apples and juice, said Newby. But since there is a shortage in process-type apples, apples from other regions of the country would have to go to make up for the shortage. In turn there is a general overall apple shortage, said Newby.

However, consumers can assume there will be an adequate supply in the stores. "The higher prices regulate the demands," said Newby. "It will informally allocate the supply."

The last major calamity for the apple grower occurred in the late 1940s, according to Logan of the Mossley Hill Farms.

"We were wiped out in a frost," he said. "It killed the whole crop except for a couple of bushels near the top (of the tree). We went fishing that year."

It's a gamble each year with the weather, growers say. "The bud formation of the branches looks good," said Logan. "So we hope to fire back next year."

Senior housing recommendation expected tonight

Recommendations on a senior citizen housing project and the Phoenix Construction Co. condominiums are expected at tonight's Elk Grove Village Plan Commission meeting.

The recommendations will be submitted to the village board of trustees for final action.

The commission is scheduled to meet at 8 p.m. in the village hall, 601 Wellington Ave. Prior to discussion on the two projects, the commission will conduct two public hearings.

At 8 p.m., representatives of Elk Grove Baptist Church will request a special use permit for their new church which will also have a nursery.

UNDER THE new village zoning ordinance, churches are classified as a special use in a residential area and must apply for zoning.

At 8:30 p.m., a public hearing on a text amendment to permit outpatient veterinary clinics in the industrial park area will be held. The amendment, if granted, would permit clinics for treating, but not housing, animals.

Chairman William Shannon said he wanted to limit commission discussion after the hearings to the senior citizens and Phoenix projects so recommendations could be reached.

THE COMMISSION must approve the site plan for the 300-unit senior citizen apartment complex that would be built on Arlington Heights Road near the Grove Shopping Center.

The village housing commission, while fully supporting the idea of a senior citizen housing project, has raised some questions over specific points of the project's design. The questions concern various topics, including location and number of laundry rooms, storage facilities, refuse collection and recreation rooms.

Members of the housing commission and representatives of M. Myer and Associates, project developers, have met to discuss the commission's objections.

THE PHOENIX Company has petitioned to build a five-story, 59-unit condominium building at the intersection of Ridge Avenue and Elk Grove Boulevard. The building would be constructed on 39 acres adjoining the Terrace Apartments.

At a public hearing on the project last month, about 20 residents protested the construction, saying the building would be too high and would generate hazardous traffic in a school area.

The building would be 52 feet high, 17 feet more than allowed under present ordinances. The developers contend the additional height would not present any problem because the building has more setback from the property line than required by ordinance.

Warehouse or gallery?

School building decorated with employees' own arts and crafts

by BOB GALLAS

A yellow corrugated metal building behind the School Dist. 59 administration center on Arlington Heights Road is supposed to be a print shop, warehouse and service center, but it is a lot more than that.

The building also contains original paintings, wood carvings, antiques and paper designs — all belonging to employees working there.

The mini-gallery of art and antiques started several years ago, when the building first opened. Employees wanted to decorate their surroundings and turned to their personal hobbies to provide decorative items.

AL LAWSON, director of business services for Dist. 59, is an antique collector, specializing in old keys. His keys range from rusted jail keys of the 19th Century to keys for winding ancient pocket watches.

Lawson got interested in his hobby about 10 years ago, when he found an old key in an antique chest. Since then, he has collected over 200 keys.

Lawson's prize are large jail keys which he picked up when visiting Spain five years ago. "They're almost impossible to come by now," said Lawson, who's searched antique shops from here to the East Coast.

"I usually do most of my looking while on vacation," said Lawson. "My wife collects antique buttons, so I'll head for the keys while she goes through the buttons."

Some of Lawson's keys date back to the 1870's. "They're becoming scarcer and scarcer," said Lawson. "And harder and harder to pass up when I find a good one, even if the price is too high."

THE ARTIST OF THE group is Mrs.

Mary Giblin. She started painting about four years ago when she saw a friend teaching painting to children. "I said to myself if they can do it, so can I," said Mrs. Giblin.

Her favorite subjects so far have been flowers and some still-life scenes. She admits she's tried doing portraits, but doesn't like to talk about it. "All my people come out looking like baboons," she laughed.

Mrs. Giblin usually works one night a week on her paintings and has nine so far. Although she's had many offers from fellow employees and others who want to buy her work, she's refused all offers. "I have too many bare walls at home to fill," she said.

Mrs. Giblin, who works as an inventory clerk for Dist. 59 during the day, usually paints scenes she sees in magazines or on a calendar. "I couldn't paint real flowers," she said. "I paint slowly and the flowers would be dead before I really got started," she quipped.

SITTING ACROSS the desk from Mrs. Giblin was Edward Breskey, Dist. 59 inventory controller. Breskey's hobby, woodcarving, started about 10 years ago when Breskey was in the hospital, recovering from an illness.

Planners paid for Devon-53

Rolf Campbell and Associates, planners of the Devon-53 housing project, recently received $15,000 from the county as "fifth partial payment" for consulting work.

The company is advising the county zoning department on a complete revision and updating of the county zoning ordinance.

The payment was approved at a recent meeting of the Cook County Board. A spokesman for the county zoning appeals board said Campbell has received about $60,000 of the $100,000 contract for the rezoning work.

The Devon-53 project is a 287-acre, 12,000 population housing project proposed for the area near the intersection of Devon Avenue and Ill. Rte. 53. Most of the site is unincorporated land adjoining the village.

The developers of the project have asked the village to approve the project and annex the land. If the village refuses to accept the project, the developers have threatened to get zoning from the county.

The request for annexation is now being considered by the village board of trustees. The developers and trustees are to have a meeting to discuss the project.

Investment seminar slated at library

A three-part investment seminar on stocks, bonds, options and mutual funds will go on at the Elk Grove Village Public Library on three consecutive Thursday nights, starting tonight.

The 1½-hour seminars will be in the lower level meeting room of the library starting at 7:30 p.m. Similar seminars will be on Oct. 25 and Nov. 1.

Participants will receive instruction materials free of charge.

Reservations for the seminars, sponsored by Reynolds Securities, can be made by calling Mrs. Gleason, 368-1100.

ANCIENT JAIL KEYS and keys that fold in half are just part of Al Lawson's prize key collection. Lawson, director of School Dist. 59's service center, has combed antique shops from here to the East Coast for the keys.

Carey probing sheriff's police in Niles

by JOHN MAES

Several "wide-ranging investigations" of illegal schemes involving members of the Niles division of the Cook County Sheriff's Police are being conducted by States Attorney Bernard Carey.

The investigations have been spurred by information supplied by a Mount Prospect woman, convicted last June of killing her husband, a lieutenant in the county police department thought to be a member of the ring.

A spokesman for Carey said yesterday that indictments for theft and forgery are expected to be returned "in a few days" against at least three sheriff's officers who bliked the J. C. Penneys department store in Golf Mill Shopping Center out of about $900.

THE HERALD has also learned that sheriff's policemen were involved in a kickback scheme several years ago with at least two Northwest suburban auto towing firms. According to one source, the policemen would receive a $10 payoff for calling a towing operator when an accident occurred.

One source in Carey's office indicated that investigators there are aware of the towing scheme but at this point were not pursuing the matter.

The Mount Prospect woman, Ruth Carbone, is reportedly providing information in hopes of reducing the 20-40 year sentence she received in the murder conviction. Her slain husband, Lt. Joseph Carbone, reportedly was part of a forgery-theft scheme, which also involved a captain, sergeant and patrolmen from the Niles office. The Penneys theft allegedly took place about three years ago and has been under investigation since that time.

According to Edmond Dobbs, chief of the Sheriff's police, the probe started in December, 1970, when Sheriff Richard Elrod took office. Dobbs said the investigation had been stymied on occasion because of Carbone's death and lack of information.

AT LEAST one of the policemen under investigation was moonlighting for the Penneys store as a security guard. The cash was apparently taken from the store's daily receipts and replaced with forged checks made out for the stolen amounts.

Several Village of Niles policemen may also be involved in the scheme, according to sources. The Niles officers were reportedly trying to cover up the theft by returning cash to the store as restitution.

One employee at Penneys said he knew of the theft "some time ago" and thought the "whole thing had been dropped." Penneys spokesman would not comment on the investigation or involvement of the store.

Carey spokesmen would not comment on other areas of the investigation into wrongdoing in the Niles division office.

NILES Police Chief Clarence Emrickson said he has been aware of the forgery-theft scheme for some time, adding some of his men are under grand jury investigation.

The jury is trying to determine whether Niles police attempted to cover up the scheme by obtaining money from ring members and returning it to the store.

Reportedly, Emrickson, and several Sheriff's and Niles policemen have testified before the jury. The jury has also screened numerous checks and handwriting samples in its investigation.

Stray animal pen being improved

by FRED GACA

Elk Grove Village police are improving the pen used to store stray animals picked up in the village, according to Chief Harry Jenkins.

He said the department is working on the pen, at Landmeier and Torne roads, but said "It will probably be a week or two before a lot of progress is made."

The department has also changed its procedures for the handling of strays. The shift commander is now responsible to inspect the pen daily for cleanliness and an improved reporting system on the picking up of strays has been implemented.

STARTING Nov. 1, a regular patrolman will be assigned to full-time duty caring for the animals, according to police Lt. William Kohnke.

"We are taking steps to do as much as possible for the animals," said Kohnke.

Marge Holland, 927 Hartford Lane, contends conditions have not improved at the pen. She is one of a small group of residents who have complained about the department's handling of dogs and the facilities used to store them.

SHE SAID the dogs are not getting food or water and the department, at times, does not even know when dogs are being held.

Mrs. Holland said residents have been caring for the dogs; however, one girl who went to feed the dogs was bitten.

Jenkins said, "I don't know where she (Mrs. Holland) is getting her information from."

He said the department is more aware of dogs being held since the changes in reporting procedures were made.

The fire department has the responsibility to feed and water the dogs, according to Jenkins. He said the fire department was taking care of the animals in the pen.

UNTIL SEVERAL months ago, the village stored stray animals at a near-by kennel. After several days, if the animals were not claimed, the Anti-Cruelty Society came for the animals and destroyed them.

When the Anti-Cruelty Society stopped picking up the animals, the kennel refused to store them for the village.

Kohnke said the village has tried to get other kennels to take the animals, but all have refused because the village does not have funds to pay for storing the animals if they are not claimed.

Strays are now held at the village kennel for seven days before they are taken to the Anti-Cruelty Society in Chicago.

C&NW commuter hike OKd

by STEVE FORSYTH

After 11 months of delay, Chicago and North Western Ry. commuters can expect to pay 7 per cent more for tickets next month.

The Illinois Commerce Commission delayed the request made last November because of the federal price freeze, and continued the delay until this month. The commission, which met late yesterday and is scheduled to meet again today, was expected to discuss the rate-hike request at one of the sessions.

The across-the-board increase is expected to bring in an additional $1.5 million in commuter fares, but a spokesman for the railroad said much of that has, in effect, been lost because of the delay of almost a year. Profits for the successful commuter line have dropped from a peak of $2.4 million in 1968 to an esti-

THERE REPORTEDLY is a provision for automatic approval of the increase if the commission does not rule soon. If approved this week or early next week, the railroad would put the increases in effect beginning Nov. 1.

The hike would be the sixth in six years for the C&NW. Commuters could face a further increase a spokesman said because of pay raises and higher pension fund costs scheduled to become effective soon.

The commission was expected to consider the rate hike last May, but did not take action then. At that time, a C&NW spokesman said the company was losing an additional $133,000 a month without the increase.

Early this year the spokesman said the C&NW was faced with the $1.5 million deficit and had to decide whether to seek an increase or ask for permission to curtail services. If the fare hike had been approved immediately, it would have forestalled another hike further on, he said.

Jaycees now accepting 'citizen' nominations

Members of the Elk Grove Village Jaycees are now accepting nominations for "Citizen of the Year." Any resident of the village who has made an outstanding contribution to the community during the past year is eligible for nomination.

Four or five of the nominees will be chosen by a panel of Jaycee judges to receive the Jaycee Distinguished Service Award, according to Randy Melind, project chairman. Winners will be honored at a special Distinguished Service Award banquet, Jan. 28.

The "Citizen of the Year" will be chosen from the service award winners and will be announced at the banquet in January. The winner will be chosen by a panel of judges from outside the Jaycees, according to Melind.

Nominations should include the nominee's name and why that person should be named "Citizen of the year." Nominations should be sent in care of Randy Melind, 109 Parkchester, Elk Grove Village, 60007. Deadline for nominations is Dec. 15.

hands and I had always wanted to try woodcarving," said Breskey, who now works on his hobby about four hours a week. Breskey, like Mrs. Giblin, also gets offers for his creations but refuses to sell. "I wouldn't know how to price the things," he said.

Some of Breskey's more unusual works are a chain and rabbit inside a cage. Both works were carved from solid pieces of wood. His favorite work is of a giraffe "because of the roughness of the wood."

Breskey sometimes adds detail to his carvings by painting them, but he never sands away the rough marks left by carving. "That makes them look too machine-made," he said.

ALTHOUGH SHE says she's no artist, Joyce McNally also adds to the decorations around the service center with her paper creations. She makes paper figures for all occasions and is especially busy at holidays such as Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter when she turns out hundreds of paper turkeys, elves, Santa Claus and Easter bunnies.

Rounding out the artistic talent in the service center is Jim Mullens, who's in charge of the district's print shop and warehouse.

A onetime carpenter, Mullens is part of a vanishing breed of American craftsmen — a plasterer. His most outstanding work is a freehand carving from plaster of about 200 rosettes, decorative ornaments used on the high ceilings of elegant buildings.

Mullens can't display any of his work in the service center — since they're all on the ceiling of the Continental Bank in Chicago.

Randhurst art show slated this weekend

More than 135 artists and sculptors will participate in an art show this weekend at the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect.

The artists, who come from the Chicago area and four Midwest states, will be setting up their work from 3 to 9:30 p.m. Friday in the mall. The work will remain on display from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

School referendum won't hike Schaumburg taxes

Lower school taxes for the next few years, in spite of the necessity for a $15 million building referendum, are forecast by Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 administrators.

Marvin Lapicola, assistant superintendent for finance, said voter approval of the proposed February referendum "will not raise taxes." It is planned to provide funds to renovate eight older schools and take care of the district's building needs until 1980.

He pointed to a steady increase in assessed valuation that he thinks will more than double by 1978.

"This continued increase valuation helps pay past debts and makes new bills lighter," he added.

LAPICOLA SAID the present $2.77 tax rate for each $100 of assessed valuation should drop by at least a nickel in next year's tax bills.

The rate will continue to drop pennies lower each year even if the referendum is approved and will drop even more if the referendum is not approved by voters, said Lapicola.

"However a 'no' vote on the referendum means we have no place for the 8,630 more students we expect by 1980," he added. The district estimates it will need 220 more classrooms by 1980.

Lapicola said the five-year building plan has several unknowns, such as the exact number of students coming into areas, when and where land development will take place and future site locations.

"Right now all we know for a fact is that we have about 30 developments under construction," he added.

"We also anticipate an increase from the present 15,511 students to 24,150," he said.

S. GUY FISHMAN, architect for several district schools based construction costs on past experience, the present inflationary period and took into account the rise that should result in the coming years, said Lapicola.

About $3 million of the referendum is earmarked for renovation of older schools.

Improvements are proposed for Blackhawk, Fairview, Hillcrest, Hoffman, Lakeview and Twinbrook, all in Hoffman Estates. Schools in Schaumburg include Campanelli, and Schaumburg elementary school.

Sites available for construction are:

- An 8-acre site in the Multicon development on Hassell Road in Hoffman Estates.

- Village In The Park, a 12.8-acre site north of Golf Road and west of Roselle Road in Schaumburg.

- Two 8-acre sites, in the Moon Lake development between Golf and Higgins Roads, east of Barrington Road in Hoffman Estates.

- Eight acres in the Hoffman Rosner development south of Golf Road in Schaumburg.

- The Levitt and Sons site, 10 acres in Schaumburg in the Sheffield Towne development north of Bode Road and east of Barrington Road. Also a 22-acre junior high school site.

- Two 7-acre sites, one north of Wise and one north of Schaumburg Road in Campanelli developments. Also a 5-acre site at the northeast corner of Wise and Roselle roads.

- A 10-acre site between Bode and Schaumburg roads in Schaumburg.

- An 8-acre site east of the Twinbrook School between Golf and Higgins roads near Roselle Road.

- A 4-acre site near Irving Park Road in Hanover Park, and a 9-acre site on Nerger Road in Roselle.

- Centex Builders in Elk Grove Village have offered a site as it is required, Lapicola said before the referendum package is presented to the board for action the building and sites committee must meet to finalize the plan.

"Data collected over the past months shows a need for the referendum," he said.

Morrissey may join tough Dem race

by NANCY COWGER

A Schaumburg man may be in a March primary battle for the 12th Congressional District seat on the Illinois Democratic Central Committee.

John F. Morrissey, 1310 N. Valley Lake Dr., yesterday confirmed he may run for the state central committee post when he seeks reelection as Schaumburg Township Democratic Committeeman. Morrissey expects to make a decision on the state party race after he assesses Cook County Democratic Party support during November.

IF HE RUNS for the state committee, Morrissey may face opposition from State Rep. Daniel Pierce, Highland Park, who was elected to that slot from the old 13th Congressional Dist. before it was reapportioned two years ago.

Pierce said yesterday he is undecided on whether he will seek reelection to the state central committee.

"I really haven't made up my mind. We will have to call a meeting of the Congressional District Committee pretty shortly, about the first week of November, to discuss the situation," said Pierce. He will make his decision at about that time, he said.

IF MORRISSEY runs for the state level party office, residency and representation is the issue on which he will base his campaign, he said. Pierce lives in Lake County, while the 12th District includes both Cook County and Lake County townships, Morrissey pointed out. The townships are Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Hanover, Barrington, Palatine, Wheeling, Elia, Vernon, West Deerfield, Libertyville and part of Deerfield.

"I do believe that based upon population, a person from Cook County would probably be more appropriate in that spot for a person from this congressional district," he said.

The basic question is "who can best represent" the area, said Morrissey.

Morrissey said he does not see the state central committee as a taxing job,

"in terms of time." It "seldom meets, except in slate making for state and federal offices," he said. The committee also determines state party platforms.

IT IS TRADITIONAL, said Morrissey, for state committee members to be members of the county central committee from their home area, which in Cook County means either township or Chicago ward committeemen.

Morrissey is a private attorney, with the Cook County Forest Preserve District among his clients. He was appointed township committeeman five years ago to fill an unexpired term and won election in a contested race four years ago. He ran in 1969 for Hoffman Estates village president and in 1968 for state representative from the Third District, but lost both elections. He is a former justice of the peace and police magistrate, and was instrumental in legal aspects of incorporating Hoffman Estates.

Armed robber, 19, sentenced

A Des Plaines youth was given a 2½ to 7½ year prison sentence after pleading guilty to criminal information charging him with armed robberies of convenience-type grocery stores in Des Plaines, Mount Prospect and unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

The youth, John Johler, 19, of 1024 Marshall Dr., entered the plea Tuesday before Judge Anton Smigiel in Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

In handing down the sentence, Judge Smigiel said he would also recommend Johler be treated for a heroin habit while in prison.

Police said Johler admitted a heroin habit after his arrest saying he needed money to pay off narcotics debts.

HE HAD BEEN charged with eight armed holdups which netted some $800 cash but state's attorneys did not proceed on four of the counts after Johler entered his plea.

Johler was arrested by Des Plaines police Sept. 16, a few days before he was to appear in court on seven other knife-point armed robbery counts.

Police said he took $60 from the Open Pantry store, 1950 Touhy Ave., after threatening a store clerk with a knife.

The other charges were brought against Johler after a series of similar robberies over a nine-day period in late July.

POLICE TOOK Johler into custody July 31 near his home after becoming suspicious of the youth when the robbery victims identified him as the holdup man through photographs.

It's slim pickin's for area apple producers

by BETTY LEE
It's slim pickin's this year for apples — mackintosh, jonathan, red and golden delicious.
Last year the Midwest harvest provided tons of apples for people to take home from markets. Families drove out to orchards for a day of plucking apples from trees. Roadside stands bulged with bushel baskets of the fruit and there was plenty of cider, apple butter and other apple products.
But due to the poorest season in years, there is an apple shortage and prices have zoomed as much as 25 per cent.
BILL WEBBE owns the Mossley Hill

Farms Inc. in Lake Zurich. This year he managed to harvest 30 to 35 per cent of the crop for his retail business, compared to last year's 90 per cent.
"There are a number of reasons why we have the shortage," said Webbe. "The mild frost we had in spring killed some of the blossoms. The frost sterilizes the pollen.
"And with the rain and cool weather, the bees don't come out and pollinate the trees. This year we had only one or two good days."
Webbe added that poor pollination and a continuous damp spring caused a fungus growth called "scab" which affects the leaves and the fruit of the tree. The fruit may eventually rot or fall from branches before maturity.

LIKE OTHER neighboring orchards, Mossley Hill Farms was open to the public for apple picking in mid-September. Thousands of people from the city as well as from the suburbs came to spend an afternoon picking their own apples for $5 a bushel. Last season it cost $4.25.
But this year something different happened at the Webbe farm. The rolling hills of the orchard were littered with thousands of fallen apples and debris left by people who came. Most of the fruit was picked early last week and what remained were rows of barren trees. There will be no more apple picking this season.

"It's the shortage," said Lee Logan, manager. "With the shortage and crowds that size, people get out of control. They left a mess and destroyed tree limbs."
Theft increased this year with the larger crowd of pickers. People would hide apples in their cars, golf bags, bowling bags and baby buggies, said Webbe.
WEBBE ESTIMATED the apple supply will last until mid to late November. Usually there are enough to put in cold storage and to sell until June or July.
"What am I going to do?" said Webbe.

"I'm not sure what to do." This week he plans to ship in loads of apples from another orchard he owns in Michigan. He indicated that other fruits like peaches and pears suffered a poor season also.
Bell's Apple Orchard is in Barrington, near routes 12 and 22. A dusty road leads to its massive shop. Inside there are hundreds of sacks of apples on giant roll-away carts and on tables.
A long line by the cash register includes people buying apples and children buying caramel apples and cider. The phone rings and a saleslady answers. Someone wants to know about pick-your-

Garbagemen, scavenger firms continue talks

Negotiations continued yesterday between garbagemen and area scavenger companies over a new three-year contract.
"Nothing definite" was agreed upon, according to Frank Grady, an official of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, which represents the drivers.
The 1,200 Chicago area drivers on Monday night rejected a contract offer that would have raised their wages from $5.05 an hour to $5.80 this year, $6.30 the second year of the contract, and $6.80 the third year.
Drivers from Garden City Disposal Co., Rosemont, meanwhile, returned to work at O'Hare Airport. They went out on a wildcat strike Tuesday but were back on the job yesterday.
No walkouts were reported among Northwest suburban scavenger services.

Crusade of Mercy launches business phase of campaign

The Palatine Crusade of Mercy began the business phase of its fund-raising campaign yesterday with a luncheon for 30 Palatine business leaders.
A goal of $4,000, nearly double the amount collected last year, has been set for the business community this year. The $4,000 represents more than 25 per cent of the total goal of $15,000.
Personal contacts will be made to more than 400 local businesses within the next two or three weeks to solicit funds, said Dr. Edward S. Laskowski, Palatine dentist and chairman of the fund-raising campaign.

EMPHASIS THIS year is being placed on business because this is the area where past Crusade of Mercy drives have fallen short, said Dr. Laskowski.
"If the response is as good in general as it was today we are a long ways toward meeting our goal," he said, after yesterday's luncheon. He reported a pledge of $2,000 had been received yesterday from H. B. Fuller Co., 315 S. Hicks, Palatine.

"The idea is people helping people help themselves. As people help themselves they become better customers. Under the leadership of business, with the help of residents, we hope to make this a better community to live in," he said.
YESTERDAY'S BUSINESS kickoff of the Crusade of Mercy drive is scheduled to become an annual event. Dr. Laskowski said he hopes it can be expanded to get more business involvement.
The fund-raising campaign with the theme "People Helping People," officially got underway on Oct. 1. Response from residents has been very good and is surpassing last year, according to Dr. Laskowski.
The campaign was originally scheduled to end Oct. 31 but will go on until the end of November or until Christmas if need be to meet the goal, said Dr. Laskowski.
For every $1 raised locally approximately $2 are contributed by the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy. The Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy makes up the difference between the local goal of $15,000 and the $45,000 needs of the 13 local organizations that share the funds.
Organizations receiving Crusade of Mercy funds are: Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Countryside Center, United Servicemen's Organization, Salvation Army welfare fund and community service, Homemakers, Santa Teresita Church day care center, Northwest Mental Health Center, Clearbrook Center and Camp Reinberg.

Proposed budget motel gets unfavorable response

A plan to build a budget motel on Hicks Road north of Euclid Avenue in Rolling Meadows received an unfavorable response last night from both a special zoning commission and a city alderman.
The proposal by the Royal Scotsman Inn Corp. of Greenville, S.C. to build a two-story, 120-unit motel was at one point in the public hearing voted down by a vote of 5-1 of the special commission, with only Commissioner Mrs. Pat Jacobsen voting against the recommendation to disapprove.
But the commission subsequently amended its decision by postponing the hearing until Oct. 30.
THE MOVE WAS made after Commissioner Robert Byrnes told Richard Ferris, a real estate agent for Quintan and Tyson Realtors, Inc. and the representative for the motel chain, he had failed to give a proper presentation of the plan and to show proof of ownership or a correct description of the three-acre land site proposed for the motel.
"This is a public hearing and some kind of presentation should have been prepared," Byrnes said. His statement came after Ferris briefly described the type of motel the company would build, describing it as a "Spartan" type motel in the upper range of budget-priced motels.

He said average rates charged per night would be between $12 to $16.
But before Ferris made his presentation, Ald. Thomas Scanlan (1st), in whose ward the motel would be built, challenged Ferris' credentials and right to represent the owners of the property.
The motel company will only buy the land site subject to its rezoning.
"COULD I COME in here and say I was representing a company?" Scanlan told commission chairman Richard Schar. The alderman told Ferris he had to prove he had been empowered to represent the owners of the land in order to seek the rezoning.
In a curt statement, Scanlan then said he was opposed to the motel plan "because one, I think we should stop polluting the air with neon signs; two, we should keep this area a suburban community and stop turning it into a State Street like we are doing on Algonquin Road; and three, too many times we interpret the best use of land according to how much money we can get from it to lower taxes."
Scanlan left the meeting after making the statement.
Ferris attempted to justify the proposal, saying it "would fill a need for lower cost motels for people who cannot afford to stay at the Holiday Inn, Howard Johnson's, or the Arlington Park Towers."

PUMPKINS ARE POPULAR at this time of the year farm are stockpiling their supplies. The first frost, dicted this week for residents of the Northwest and growers like the owner of this Long Grove signaling a definite change of seasons, was pre- suburbs.

Junior high walk work to begin soon

Work on a sidewalk along Smith Road, south of Palatine Hills Junior High School can begin as soon as Palatine Township receives a construction permit from Cook County.

Unless unforeseen difficulties appear, the permit request can be processed in about 7 to 10 days, said Angelo Lazzara, engineering assistant for the Cook County Highway Department. He said yesterday that the county had not received any written request.

The request will be mailed sometime after the next township board meeting next Monday, said township supervisor Howard Olsen.

THE VILLAGE of Palatine, the township and Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15 agreed last week to split the cost of the sidewalk, in response to parent pressure. Parents whose children attend the junior high insist that walking to the school is dangerous because the road is hilly, there are virtually no shoulders and the speed limit is 45 m.p.h. most of the time.

They have been meeting with representatives of virtually every governmental body since late summer in an effort to have a safe walkway built.

THE BREAKTHROUGH came two weeks ago, when representatives of the village, the township and the school district met for the first time to discuss working together to build a walkway.

Then, the township board agreed to contribute up to $8,000. The school district board agreed to contribute $8,000, but no more than $10,000. The village agreed to contribute all the labor and equipment needed.

Early estimates put the total cost of construction, including labor and equipment rental, somewhere between $10,000 and $18,000.

The walkway, for the most part, will be on the west side of the street. An eight-foot-wide stretch of asphalt will start at the school and move approximately one-half mile south.

This brings the walkway to the park district bike path crossing. A crosswalk will be painted at that point and the children will have to cross to the east side of the road.

On the east side, the three governmental agencies and Charles Neal of Neal Realty, have agreed to split the $1,300 cost of building almost 300 feet of sidewalk.

NEAL SAID he was planning to build on that property, which he owns, sometime in the future and would need a sidewalk. He said he would not have agreed to letting the school district put in an eight foot stretch of asphalt.

The 300 feet will end at the beginning of the Eagle Store sidewalk. The Eagle Store walk continues on to the intersection Northwest Highway and Smith Street.

In a related move toward safety, the village of Palatine will open bids at 10:30 a.m. Monday for a temporary traffic control signal to be installed at the intersection of Smith Street and Northwest Highway.

12 watches stolen at Ace

A dozen Timex watches were stolen during business hours at the Palatine Ace Hardware, 239 E. Northwest Hwy., Tuesday evening.

The watches, valued at $30 and $35 each, were taken from a counter-top display case at approximately 6:30 p.m. Store employees gave police a description of a possible suspect, and fingerprints were taken from the display case. No arrests have been made.

3 public works employees among those subpoenaed

by LYNN ASINOF

Three members of the Wheeling Public Works Department are among eight village employees who received subpoenas this week to testify before a federal grand jury investigating alleged shake-downs of contractors and developers.

The Herald disclosed yesterday that four building inspectors and an ordinance control officer were called Monday to testify. According to village sources, the subpoenas were delivered late Monday at the municipal building by a federal agent.

Public Works Director Larry Oppenheimer refused to confirm that either he or anyone in his department had been subpoenaed. "It's something that should not be discussed because it's secret," he said. Oppenheimer said any comment would have to come from either the village manager or the U. S. attorney's office.

THE VILLAGE employees are expected to be asked what they know about instances of pressure applied by local officials or others as part of alleged attempts to extort payoffs from builders and developers.

Federal investigators are known to be seeking information about village building and zoning procedures. The employees are also expected to be questioned about how they got their jobs and which village officials or others are in a position to give them orders.

The latest batch of subpoenas brings to at least 16 the number of present or former village officials and employees called to testify before the grand jury. Among those subpoenaed are Village Mgr. George Passolt, Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon, Trustee William Hein, and former trustees Michael Valenza, William Hart and Ira Bird.

In addition, the grand jury has subpoenaed building and zoning records, as well as the past five years of village board records.

Morrissey may run for Dem committee seat

by NANCY COWGER

A Schaumburg man may be in a March primary battle for the 12th Congressional District seat on the Illinois Democratic Central Committee.

John F. Morrissey, 1310 N. Valley Lake Dr., yesterday confirmed he may run for the state central committee post when he seeks reelection as Schaumburg Township Democratic Committeeman. Morrissey expects to make a decision on the state party race after he assesses Cook County Democratic Party support during November.

IF HE RUNS for the state committee, Morrissey may face opposition from State Rep. Daniel Pierce, Highland Park, who was elected to that slot from the old 13th Congressional Dist. before it was reapportioned two years ago.

Pierce said yesterday he is undecided on whether he will seek reelection to the state central committee.

"I really haven't made up my mind. We will have to call a meeting of the Congressional District Committee pretty shortly, about the first week of November, to discuss the situation," said Pierce. He will make his decision at about that time, he said.

IF MORRISSEY runs for the state level party office, residency and representation is the issue on which he will base his campaign, he said. Pierce lives in Lake County, while the 12th District includes both Cook County and Lake County townships. Morrissey pointed out. The townships are Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Hanover, Barrington, Palatine, Wheeling, Elmhurst, Vernon, West Deerfield, Libertyville and part of Deerfield.

"I do believe that based upon population, a person from Cook County would probably be more appropriate in that spot for a person from this congressional district," he said.

The basic question is "who can best represent" the area, said Morrissey.

Morrissey said he does not see the state central committee as a taxing job, "in terms of time." It "seldom meets, except in state making for state and federal offices," he said. The committee also determines state party platforms.

IT IS TRADITIONAL, said Morrissey, for state committee members to be members of the county central committee from their home area, which in Cook County means either township or Chicago ward committeemen.

Morrissey is a private attorney, with the Cook County Forest Preserve District among his clients. He was appointed township committeeman five years ago to fill an unexpired term and won election in a contested race four years ago. He ran in 1969 for Hoffman Estates village president and in 1968 for state representative from the Third District, but lost both elections. He is a former justice of the peace and police magistrate, and was instrumental in legal aspects of incorporating Hoffman Estates.

State's attorney probing 'schemes' of sheriff's police in Niles division

by JOHN MAES
Several "wide-ranging investigations" of illegal schemes involving members of the Niles division of the Cook County Sheriff's Police are being conducted by State's Attorney Bernard Carey.

The investigations have been spurred by information supplied by a Mount Prospect woman, convicted last June of killing her husband, a lieutenant in the county police department thought to be a member of the ring.

A spokesman for Carey said yesterday that indictments for theft and forgery are expected to be returned "in a few days" against at least three sheriff's officers who bilked the J. C. Penneys department store in Golf Mill Shopping Center out of about $900.

THE HERALD has also learned that sheriff's policemen were involved in a kickback scheme several years ago with at least two Northwest suburban auto towing firms. According to one source, the policemen would receive a $10 payoff for calling a towing operator when an accident occurred.

One source in Carey's office indicated that investigators there are aware of the towing scheme but at this point were not pursuing the matter.

The Mount Prospect woman, Ruth Carbona, is reportedly providing information in hopes of reducing the 20-60 year sentence she received in the murder conviction. Her slain husband, Lt. Joseph Carbona, reportedly was part of a forgery-theft scheme, which also involved a captain, sergeant and patrolmen from the Niles office. The Penneys theft allegedly took place about three years ago and has been under investigation since that time.

According to Edmund Dobbs, chief of the Sheriff's police, the probe started in December, 1970, when Sheriff Richard Elrod took office. Dobbs said the investigation had been stymied on occasion because of Carbona's death and lack of information.

AT LEAST one of the policemen under investigation was moonlighting for the Penneys store as a security guard. The cash was apparently taken from the store's daily receipts and replaced with forged checks made out for the stolen amounts.

Several Village of Niles policemen may also be involved in the scheme, according to sources. The Niles officers were reportedly trying to cover up the theft by returning cash to the store as restitution.

One employee at Penneys said he knew of the theft "some time ago" and thought the "whole thing had been dropped." Penneys spokesman would not comment on the investigation or involvement of the store.

Carey spokesmen would not comment on other areas of the investigation into wrongdoing in the Niles division office.

NILES Police Chief Clarence Emrickson said he has been aware of the forgery-theft scheme for some time, adding some of his men are under grand jury investigation.

Slim pickin's for apples

own-apples. "There's no picking," said the woman. "There's a shortage this year."

PRICES OF APPLES have increased by 20 to 25 per cent here too. "But this doesn't stop the people from buying," said Louise Beel. However, the management is limiting customers to buy pecks instead of the usual half and full bushel. Each peck is equivalent to 10 to 12 pounds of fruit.

"We're way short of last year's harvest," she said, adding that they had harvested about half of the crop. "This has been the shortest in years."

Caramel apples, pies, doughnuts, cider are staple selling items. To bolster sales, they also sell nuts, cheeses, syrups and jams.

"Some customers get irate and they don't understand about the shortage," she said. "They drive out from the city and find they can only buy a peck. It puts us in a bad limelight."

THE PRICE of apples has been stable at Wauconda Orchard near Bonner and Fairfield roads. But it'll go up as soon as the supply diminishes and apples from other sections of the country are shipped in to be sold, said a spokesman.

The orchard consists of 9,000 trees and only 40 per cent of the crop was harvested this year.

"We feel badly," said the spokesman. "We can't tell people about the shortage unless we take out a full page ad."

Customers can buy as much as they want and the business also makes fruit gift packs.

The apples you see in the grocery stores are usually from the northwest portion of the country, according to Bill Newby, director of public relations of the Jewel Tea Co., Melrose Park.

MOST OF THE Midwest-grown apples are used for processing, that is, for secondary apple products like applesauce, canned sliced apples and juice, said Newby. But since there is a shortage in process-type apples, apples from other regions of the country would have to go to make up for the shortage. In turn there is a general overall apple shortage, said Newby.

However, consumers can assume there will be an adequate supply in the stores. "The higher prices regulate the demands," said Newby. "It will informally allocate the supply."

The last major calamity for the apple grower occurred in the late 1940s, according to Logan of the Mossley Hill Farms.

"We were wiped out in a frost," he said. "It killed the whole crop except for a couple of bushels near the top (of the tree). We went fishing that year."

It's a gamble each year with the weather, growers say. "The bud formation of the branches looks good," said Logan. "So we hope to fire back next year."

It's slim pickin's for area apple producers

by BETTY LEE.
It's slim pickin's this year for apples — mackintosh, jonathan, red and golden delicious.
Last year the Midwest harvest provided tons of apples for people to take home from markets. Families drove out to orchards for a day of plucking apples from trees. Roadside stands bulged with bushel baskets of the fruit and there was plenty of elder, apple butter and other apple products.
But due to the poorest season in years, there is an apple shortage and prices have zoomed as much as 25 per cent.
BILL WEBBE owns the Mossley Hill

Farms Inc. in Lake Zurich. This year he managed to harvest 30 to 35 per cent of the crop for his retail business, compared to last year's 90 per cent.
"There are a number of reasons why we have the shortage," said Webbe. "The mild frost we had in spring killed some of the blossoms. The frost sterilizes the pollen.
"And with the rain and cool weather, the bees don't come out and pollinate the trees. This year we had only one or two good days."
Webbe added that poor pollination and a continuous damp spring caused a fungus growth called "scab" which affects the leaves and the fruit of the tree. The fruit may eventually rot or fall from branches before maturity.

LIKE OTHER neighboring orchards, Mossley Hill Farms was open to the public for apple picking in mid-September. Thousands of people from the city as well as from the suburbs came to spend an afternoon picking their own apples for $5 a bushel. Last season it cost $4.25.
But this year something different happened at the Webbe farm. The rolling hills of the orchard were littered with thousands of fallen apples and debris left by people who came. Most of the fruit was picked early last week and what remained were rows of barren trees. There will be no more apple picking this season.

"It's the shortage," said Lee Logan, manager. "With the shortage and crowds that size, people get out of control. They left a mess and destroyed tree limbs."
Theft increased this year with the larger crowd of pickers. People would hide apples in their cars, golf bags, bowling bags and baby buggies, said Webbe.
WEBBE ESTIMATED the apple supply will last until mid to late November. Usually there are enough to put in cold storage and to sell until June or July.
"What am I going to do?" said Webbe.

"I'm not sure what to do." This week he plans to ship in loads of apples from another orchard he owns in Michigan. He indicated that other fruits like peaches and pears suffered a poor season also.
Bell's Apple Orchard is in Barrington, near routes 12 and 22. A dusty road leads to its massive shop. Inside there are hundreds of sacks of apples on giant roll-away carts and on tables.
A long line by the cash register includes people buying apples and children buying caramel apples and cider. The phone rings and a saleslady answers. Someone wants to know about pick-your-

7% commuter rate hike for C&NW wins approval

by STEVE FORSYTH
After 11 months of delay, Chicago and North Western Ry. commuters can expect to pay 7 per cent more for tickets next month.
The Illinois Commerce Commission delayed the request made last November because of the federal price freeze, and continued the delay until this month. The commission, which met late yesterday and is scheduled to meet again today, was expected to discuss the rate-hike request at one of the sessions.
The across-the-board increase is expected to bring in an additional $1.5 million in commuter fares, but a spokesman for the railroad said much of that has, in effect, been lost because of the delay of almost a year. Profits for the successful commuter line have dropped from a peak of $2.4 million in 1968 to an esti-

Station	Present	New
Dec Road	$29.55	$31.65
Des Plaines	$31.70	$33.90
Cumberland	$32.75	$35.05
Mount Prospect	$34.00	$37.20
Arlington Heights	$36.20	$38.70
Arlington Park	$37.60	$40.20
Palatine	$39.00	$41.70
Barrington	$43.20	$46.20

mated $500,000 this year, company spokesmen say.
THERE REPORTEDLY is a provision for automatic approval of the increase if the commission does not rule soon. If approved this week or early next week, the railroad would put the increases in effect beginning Nov. 1.

The hike would be the sixth in six years for the C&NW. Commuters could face a further increase a spokesman said because of pay raises and higher pension fund costs scheduled to become effective soon.
The commission was expected to consider the rate hike last May, but did not take action then. At that time, a C&NW spokesman said the company was losing an additional $133,000 a month without the increase.
Early this year the spokesman said the C&NW was faced with the $1.5 million deficit and had to decide whether to seek an increase or ask for permission to curtail services. If the fare hike had been approved immediately, it would have forestalled another hike further on, he said.

Response to budget motel unfavorable

A plan to build a budget motel on Hicks Road north of Euclid Avenue in Rolling Meadows received an unfavorable response last night from both a special zoning commission and a city alderman.
The proposal by the Royal Scotsman Inn Corp. of Greenville, S.C. to build a two-story, 120-unit motel was at one point in the public hearing voted down by a vote of 5-1 of the special commission, with only Commissioner Mrs. Pat Jacobson voting against the recommendation to disapprove.
But the commission subsequently amended its decision by postponing the hearing until Oct. 30.
THE MOVE WAS made after Commissioner Robert Byrnes told Richard Ferris, a real estate agent for Quinlan and Tyson Realtors, Inc. and the representative for the motel chain, he had failed to give a proper presentation of the plan and to show proof of ownership or a correct description of the three-acre land site proposed for the motel.

"This is a public hearing and some kind of presentation should have been prepared," Byrnes said. His statement came after Ferris briefly described the type of motel the company would build, describing it as a "Spartan" type motel in the upper range of budget-priced motels.
He said average rates charged per night would be between $12 to $16.
But before Ferris made his presentation, Ald. Thomas Scanlan (1st), in whose ward the motel would be built, challenged Ferris' credentials and right to represent the owners of the property.
The motel company will only buy the land site subject to its rezoning.
"COULD I COME in here and say I was representing a company?" Scanlan told commission chairman Richard Schar. The alderman told Ferris he had to prove he had been empowered to represent the owners of the land in order to seek the rezoning.

In a curt statement, Scanlan then said he was opposed to the motel plan "because one, I think we should stop polluting the air with neon signs; two, we should keep this area a suburban community and stop turning it into a State Street like we are doing on Algonquin Road; and three, too many times we interpret the best use of land according to how much money we can get from it to lower taxes."
Scanlan left the meeting after making the statement.
Ferris attempted to justify the proposal, saying it "would fill a need for lower cost motels for people who cannot afford to stay at the Holiday Inn, Howard Johnson's, or the Arlington Park Towers."

City to discuss legal steps Balcony repair action seen

Legal action may be sought by the City of Rolling Meadows against apartment building owners and managers who fail to perform required balcony repairs.
A meeting has been scheduled Friday between City Mgr. James Watson and City Atty. Donald Rose to discuss the legal options open to the city to penalize the apartment violators. Those options could include eviction of tenants at the owners' expense until the repairs are performed, according to Rose.
"There is a very drastic action that could be taken as far as a cease-and-desist order on occupancy, but that is at the very far extreme of what could be done," Rose said. He said other options will be discussed at the meeting.
THE DECISION to investigate possible court action against the city's apartment owners came from aldermen Monday at a meeting of the public works, building and zoning committee.
Prompting the decision was another balcony incident last week in which a second floor balcony at the Algonquin Park Apartments partially gave way as a woman tenant walked along it. The incident was the third in the last five months involving the collapse of an apartment balcony and the second at the Algonquin Park Apartments.

In May a two-year-old boy fell 10 feet to the ground after the balcony on which he was playing gave way at the Algonquin Park Apartments. Two weeks before that incident, two balconies fell off a building at the Three Fountains complex.
No one has been seriously injured in any of the incidents.
BUILDING AND Zoning Officer Sverre Haug told the committee that fire and building code inspections of all balconies in the city had been completed before the latest incident occurred and that letters had been sent to apartment owners giving them ten days to begin the necessary repairs.
When questioned by aldermen, however, Haug said the city has in some cases already sent three letters ordering repairs which have gone unheeded.
"It doesn't do us any good to threaten if we have no teeth in our ordinance," Ald. Daniel Weber (4th) said. "Is there anything we can do to shut these (balconies) down?"

Haug said the city cannot condemn the Algonquin Park Apartment balconies as it did the Three Fountains balconies in May because the structures are the Algonquin Park tenants' second fire exit.
BUT ALD. STEPHEN Eberhard (3rd) countered that faulty balconies will be of little good to a tenant who, in attempting to flee a fire, was killed in a fall from the balcony.
"There must be something legally that can be done," Eberhard said. "We want to be in a position where we can go into a place after 10 days and do something legally."
Watson told the committee the city's building ordinance regulating the condition of balconies does not carry stiff fines or penalties. He said before heavy penalties can be imposed, the city must show a threat to life exists and then must start legal action on the basis of the balconies being declared "a dangerous nuisance."

GOING UP IN THE WORLD is the Hubert Tietz family of 2917 Cardinal Dr., Rolling Meadows. The family's home was lifted about five feet off the ground last week to add a basement-like addition. The home originally was a ranch-style, one-story structure.

State's attorney probing 'schemes' of sheriff's police in Niles division

by JOHN MAES
Several "wide-ranging investigations" of illegal schemes involving members of the Niles division of the Cook County Sheriff's Police are being conducted by State Attorney Bernard Carey.

The investigations have been spurred by information supplied by a Mount Prospect woman, convicted last June of killing her husband, a lieutenant in the county police department thought to be a member of the ring.

A spokesman for Carey said yesterday that indictments for theft and forgery are expected to be returned "in a few days" against at least three sheriff's officers who bailed the J. C. Penneys department store in Golf Mill Shopping Center out of about $900.

THE HERALD has also learned that sheriff's policemen were involved in a kickback scheme several years ago with at least two Northwest suburban auto towing firms. According to one source, the policemen would receive a $10 payoff for calling a towing operator when an accident occurred.

One source in Carey's office indicated that investigators there are aware of the towing scheme but at this point were not pursuing the matter.

The Mount Prospect woman, Ruthe Carbona, is reportedly providing information in hopes of reducing the 20-40 year sentence she received in the murder conviction. Her slain husband, Lt. Joseph Carbona, reportedly was part of a forgery-theft scheme, which also involved a captain, sergeant and patrolmen from the Niles office. The Penneys theft allegedly took place about three years ago and has been under investigation since that time.

Investigation was moonlighting for the Penneys store as a security guard. The cash was apparently taken from the store's daily receipts and replaced with forged checks made out for the stolen amounts.

Several Village of Niles policemen may also be involved in the scheme, according to sources. The Niles officers were reportedly trying to cover up the theft by returning cash to the store as restitution.

One employee at Penneys said he knew of the theft "some time ago" and thought the "whole thing had been dropped." Penneys spokesman would not comment on the investigation or involvement of the store.

According to Edmond Dobbs, chief of the Sheriff's police, the probe started in December, 1970, when Sheriff Richard Elrod took office. Dobbs said the investigation had been stymied on occasion because of Carbona's death and lack of information.

AT LEAST one of the policemen under

Carey spokesmen would not comment on other areas of the investigation into wrongdoing in the Niles division office.

NILES Police Chief Clarence Enrickson said he has been aware of the forgery-theft scheme for some time, adding some of his men are under grand jury investigation.

own-apples. "There's no picking," said the woman. "There's a shortage this year."

PRICES OF APPLES have increased by 20 to 25 per cent here too. "But this doesn't stop the people from buying," said Louise Beel. However, the management is limiting customers to buy pecks instead of the usual half and full bushel. Each peck is equivalent to 10 to 12 pounds of fruit.

"We're way short of last year's harvest," she said, adding that they had harvested about half of the crop. "This has been the shortest in years."

Caramel apples, pies, doughnuts, cider are staple selling items. To bolster sales, they also sell nuts, cheeses, syrups and jams.

ondary apple products like applesauce, canned sliced apples and juice, said Newby. But since there is a shortage in process-type apples, apples from other regions of the country would have to go to make up for the shortage. In turn there is a general overall apple shortage, said Newby.

However, consumers can assume there will be an adequate supply in the stores. "The higher prices regulate the demands," said Newby. "It will informally allocate the supply."

The last major calamity for the apple grower occurred in the late 1940s, according to Logan of the Mossley Hill Farms.

"We were wiped out in a frost," he said. "It killed the whole crop except for a couple of bushels near the top of the tree. We went fishing that year."

It's a gamble each year with the weather, growers say. "The bud formation of the branches looks good," said Logan. "So we hope to fire back next year."

THE PRICE OF apples has been stable at Wauconda Orchard near Bonner and Fairfield roads. But it'll go up as soon as the supply diminishes and apples from other sections of the country are shipped in to be sold, said a spokesman.

The orchard consists of 9,000 trees and only 40 per cent of the crop was harvested this year.

"We feel badly," said the spokesman. "We can't tell people about the shortage unless we take out a full page ad."

Customers can buy as much as they want and the business also makes fruit gift packs.

The apples you see in the grocery stores are usually from the northwest portion of the country, according to Bill Newby, director of public relations of the Jewel Tea Co., Melrose Park.

MOST OF THE Midwest grown apples are used for processing, that is, for sec-

Morrissey may run for Dem committee seat

by NANCY COWGER

A Schaumburg man may be in a March primary battle for the 12th Congressional District seat on the Illinois Democratic Central Committee.

John F. Morrissey, 1310 N. Valley Lake Dr., yesterday confirmed he may run for the state central committee post when he seeks reelection as Schaumburg Township Democratic Committeeman. Morrissey expects to make a decision on the state party race after he assesses Cook County Democratic Party support during November.

IF HE RUNS for the state committee, Morrissey may face opposition from State Rep. Daniel Pierce, Highland Park, who was elected to that slot from the old 13th Congressional Dist. before it was reapportioned two years ago.

Pierce said yesterday he is undecided on whether he will seek reelection to the state central committee.

"I really haven't made up my mind. We will have to call a meeting of the Congressional District Committee pretty shortly, about the first week of November, to discuss the situation," said Pierce. He will make his decision at about that time, he said.

IF MORRISSEY runs for the state level party office, residency and representation is the issue on which he will base his campaign, he said. Pierce lives in Lake County, while the 12th District includes both Cook County and Lake County townships, Morrissey pointed out. The townships are Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Hanover, Barrington, Palatine, Wheeling, Elmhurst, Vernon, West Deerfield, Libertyville and part of Deerfield.

"I do believe that based upon population, a person from Cook County would probably be more appropriate in that spot for a person from this congressional district," he said.

The basic question is "who can best represent" the area, said Morrissey. Morrissey said he does not see the state central committee as a taxing job, "in terms of time." It "seldom meets, except in state making for state and federal offices," he said. The committee also determines state party platforms.

IT IS TRADITIONAL, said Morrissey, for state committee members to be members of the county central committee from their home area, which in Cook County means either township or Chicago ward committeemen.

Morrissey is a private attorney, with the Cook County Forest Preserve District among his clients. He was appointed township committeeman five years ago to fill an unexpired term and won election in a contested race four years ago. He ran in 1969 for Hoffman Estates village president and in 1969 for state representative from the Third District, but lost both elections. He is a former justice of the peace and police magistrate, and was instrumental in legal aspects of incorporating Hoffman Estates.

Mutual-aid fire plan would mean water line hookup to other suburbs

Rolling Meadows may initiate a mutual-aid fire plan that would tie the city's water supply into surrounding suburban systems.

The system would supply supplemental water to fight severe blazes by tapping water from surrounding suburbs. The water would be tapped only in emergencies and would be gauged on a sealed meter installed at the tap-on location.

Surrounding suburbs participating in the plan would in turn be able to tap onto the city's water supply to combat fires in their towns.

The city currently participates in a mutual fire aid program with surrounding suburbs to provide manpower in the event of fires.

THE WATER PLAN was explained by City Engineer James Muldowney during a meeting Monday of the public works, building and zoning committee. Muldowney said he had discussed the plan this summer with Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty but has not proceeded further on it since Fogarty suffered a heart attack Aug. 16.

Muldowney said it would be possible for the city to tap onto the water systems of Arlington Heights, Palatine, and Schaumburg at water mains on the borders of the municipalities if the plan were agreed to by the towns.

The system could become further linked with other communities if the three towns tapped onto municipal water systems on each of their surrounding borders, Muldowney added.

THE SYSTEM WOULD be sought to increase the city's water-pumping capacity at fires. The city currently has a pumping capacity of 3,000 gallons of water per minute, the engineer said. An agreement with the three towns could double the city's capacity to 6,000 gallons per minute, he said.

The only way to augment supplemental manpower aid on a fire is to do the same with water aid, Muldowney said in justifying the plan. "It seems a bit risky to commit manpower to fight a fire and not give them the water they need to fight it," he added.

The plan was deferred for consideration to the city council's fire committee.

Theft suspect caught, charged again

An Evanston woman who has failed to appear in court three times on numerous theft and false credit card charges in the Northwest suburbs has been found and charged again by Rolling Meadows police.

Evanston police found Nancy Jensen, 34, in the suburb where she lives at 1566 Oak and arrested her Tuesday on a warrant issued from the Rolling Meadows police department. Mrs. Jensen appeared in Arlington Heights Circuit Court yesterday where a judge ordered her bond set at $10,000 for year-old theft charges in Rolling Meadows and at $25,000 for thefts in Mount Prospect.

She has been charged with the July, 1972 theft of a Mount Prospect Holiday Inn maid's purse as well as allegedly using credit cards from the purse to stay at hotels in a three-state area, including at the Holiday Inn of Rolling Meadows.

12 watches stolen at Ace

A dozen Timex watches were stolen during business hours at the Palatine Ace Hardware, 239 E. Northwest Hwy., Tuesday evening.

The watches, valued at $30 and $35 each, were taken from a counter-top display case at approximately 6:30 p.m. Store employees gave police a description of a possible suspect, and fingerprints were taken from the display case. No arrests have been made.

MRS. JENSEN had left the state to flee the charges, forfeiting bonds on three different occasions, according to police. A federal warrant is also outstanding on her for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution, police said.

She will not be freed on bond until a federal judge rules on the continuance of the federal detainer, which requires her to be held in Cook County Jail while under prosecution.

Mrs. Jensen is scheduled to appear before a federal judge today in connection with the warrant.

She is then to appear in Arlington Heights Circuit Court Friday for a hearing on the charge brought by Rolling Meadows police.

Police said Mrs. Jensen will first be prosecuted by Rolling Meadows police, then by Mount Prospect police, and finally by federal authorities on the unlawful flight charge.

Figures show Rolling Meadows lost 90,325,000 gallons of water from April 30, 1972 to April 30, 1973.

The figures come from a computerized study being done of city water records by the Volpe and Company accounting firm of Wheaton. Earlier reports had estimated the city lost about 60 million gallons of water.

Golf Road work done soon, but Algonquin snags

by PAT GERLACH

Widening and reconstruction of Golf Road is proceeding nearly "on target" with completion possible by mid-November but the Algonquin Road project has run into problems.

Paving of Golf Road, between Meacham and Roselle roads, has been completed and concrete is now in the process of curing, said Al Sifer, Illinois Department of Transportation project group engineer.

"We hope within the next seven days to finish curbs, gutters, curb returns and driveways in that area and to complete the paving between Roselle and Higgins roads by about Oct. 26," Sifer said yesterday.

A $1.9 million contract with Greco Contractors, Inc., Rosemont, specified 170 working days for the project which began last November.

BUT SIFER pointed out that an "actual completion date" cannot be determined because of weather conditions. "I say this because we have experienced 12 rain days in the last two weeks alone," he added.

Algonquin Road has fallen behind due to the discovery of "an amount of unsuitable material," under the road bed, Sifer reported.

"That project is being done by Palumbo Construction which is also involved with work on Army Trail Road and things have generally slowed down," he explained.

He indicated, however, that IDOT is still hoping for completion of the Algonquin Road by late December.

Reconstruction and widening to four lanes is also being planned for Meacham Road between Higgins and Algonquin roads with contracts to be awarded for the project by IDOT within three years.

On completion of that project Meacham Road will be turned over to the Village of Schaumburg with the municipality assuming responsibility for its maintenance and jurisdiction.

CONSTRUCTION ON ALGONQUIN ROAD will, continue to be a menace, with state officials hoping for a completion by year's end of the stretch between Meacham and Roselle roads. Golf Road work is moving more smoothly. The Meacham-to-Roselle road stretch should be done by the end of the month. The extension to Higgins Road will take until mid-November.

He'll assess party support in November

Morrissey may seek Democratic committee seat

by NANCY COWGER

John F. Morrissey

John F. Morrissey, 1310 N. Valley Lake Dr., yesterday confirmed he may run for the state central committee post when he seeks reelection as Schaumburg Township Democratic Committeeman. Morrissey expects to make a decision on the state party race after he assesses Cook County Democratic Party support during November.

IF HE RUNS for the state committee, Morrissey may face opposition from State Rep. Daniel Pierce, Highland Park, who was elected to that slot from the old 13th Congressional Dist. before it was reapportioned two years ago.

Pierce said yesterday he is undecided on whether he will seek reelection to the state central committee.

"I really haven't made up my mind. We will have to call a meeting of the Congressional District Committee pretty shortly, about the first week of November, to discuss the situation," said Pierce. He will make his decision at about that time, he said.

IF MORRISSEY runs for the state level party office, residency and representation is the issue on which he will base his campaign, he said. Pierce lives in Lake County, while the 12th District includes both Cook County and Lake County townships, Morrissey pointed out. The townships are Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Hanover, Barrington, Palatine, Wheeling, Elia, Vernon, West Deerfield, Libertyville and part of Deerfield.

"I do believe that based upon population, a person from Cook County would probably be more appropriate in that spot for a person from this congressional district," he said.

The basic question is "who can best represent" the area, said Morrissey.

Morrissey said he does not see the state central committee as a taxing job, "in terms of time." It "seldom meets, except in state making for state and federal offices," he said. The committee also determines state party platforms.

Carsello secures petitions for race

John J. Carsello, 108 Darfield Ln., Schaumburg, has picked up petitions to file for candidacy for Schaumburg Township Democratic Committeeman.

Carsello confirmed yesterday he may be a candidate, although he still has not yet decided whether he will file his petitions. If he does, he will oppose incumbent committeeman John F. Morrissey, who may seek a state Democratic Central Committee post in addition to the township chief position.

Carsello said he feels the township party needs revitalization and reorganization. There are many Democrats in the township who have not been encouraged to participate in local political activities, he said.

Carey probes county police Niles branch

by JOHN MAES

Several "wide-ranging investigations" of illegal schemes involving members of the Niles division of the Cook County Sheriff's Police are being conducted by State Attorney Bernard Carey.

The investigations have been spurred by information supplied by a Mount Prospect woman, convicted last June of killing her husband, a lieutenant in the county police department thought to be a member of the ring.

A spokesman for Carey said yesterday that indictments for theft and forgery are expected to be returned "in a few days" against at least three sheriff's officers who bilked the J. C. Penneys department store in Golf Mill Shopping Center out of about $800.

THE HERALD has also learned that sheriff's policemen were involved in a kickback scheme several years ago with at least two Northwest suburban auto towing firms. According to one source, the policemen would receive a $10 payoff for calling a towing operator when an accident occurred.

One source in Carey's office indicated that investigators there are aware of the towing scheme but at this point were not pursuing the matter.

The Mount Prospect woman, Ruth Carbone, is reportedly providing information in hopes of reducing the 20-60 year sentence she received in the murder conviction. Her slain husband, Lt. Joseph Carbone, reportedly was part of a forgery-theft scheme, which also involved a captain, sergeant and patrolmen from the Niles office. The Penneys theft allegedly took place about three years ago and has been under investigation since that time.

According to Edmond Dobbs, chief of the Sheriff's police, the probe started in December, 1970, when Sheriff Richard Elrod took office. Dobbs said the investigation had been stymied on occasion because of Carbone's death and lack of information.

AT LEAST one of the policemen under investigation was moonlighting for the Penneys store as a security guard. The cash was apparently taken from the store's daily receipts and replaced with forged checks made out for the stolen amounts.

Several Village of Niles policemen may also be involved in the scheme, according to sources. The Niles officers were reportedly trying to cover up the theft by returning cash to the store as restitution.

One employee at Penneys said he knew of the theft "some time ago" and thought the "whole thing had been dropped." Penneys spokesman would not comment on the investigation or involvement of the store.

Carey spokesmen would not comment on other areas of the investigation into wrongdoing in the Niles division office.

NILES Police Chief Clarence Emrickson said he has been aware of the forgery-theft scheme for some time, adding some of his men are under grand jury investigation.

The jury is trying to determine whether Niles police attempted to cover up the scheme by obtaining money from ring members and returning it to the store.

Reportedly, Emrickson, and several Sheriff's and Niles policemen have testified before the jury. The jury has also screened numerous checks and handwriting samples in its investigation.

Teachers look to American Education Week

"Get Involved" is the message and theme of American Education Week Oct. 21 to 27.

The Schaumburg Education Association, representing about 600 Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 teachers plans an observance of education week that means a concentrated teacher effort to inform residents.

SEA representative Bill Ellasek said teachers have placed information distributed by the International and National Education Association at several spots in the area.

The booklets that range from a check list to determine how a school district rates nationally to explanations on the importance of various programs, are available free at the following places:

The Schaumburg Township Public Library, 32 Library Lane, Schaumburg; Dist. 54 administrative offices, 804 W. Bode Rd., Schaumburg, and the Hoffman Estates Municipal Building, 1200 Gannon Dr.

Also available is the annual Dist. 54 report for 1972-73.

7% commuter rate hike for C&NW wins approval

by STEVE FORSYTH

After 11 months of delay, Chicago and North Western Ry. commuters can expect to pay 7 per cent more for tickets next month.

The Illinois Commerce Commission delayed the request made last November because of the federal price freeze, and continued the delay until this month. The commission, which met late yesterday and is scheduled to meet again today, was expected to discuss the rate-hike request at one of the sessions.

The across-the-board increase is expected to bring in an additional $1.5 million in commuter fares, but a spokesman for the railroad said much of that has, in effect, been lost because of the delay of almost a year. Profits for the successful commuter line have dropped from a peak of $2.4 million in 1968 to an estimated $500,000 this year, company spokesmen say.

THERE REPORTEDLY is a provision for automatic approval of the increase if the commission does not rule soon. If approved this week or early next week, the railroad would put the increases in effect beginning Nov. 1.

The hike would be the sixth in six years for the C&NW. Commuters could face a further increase a spokesman said because of pay raises and higher pension fund costs scheduled to become effective soon.

The commission was expected to consider the rate hike last May, but did not take action then. At that time, a C&NW spokesman said the company was losing an additional $133,000 a month without the increase.

Early this year the spokesman said the C&NW was faced with the $1.5 million deficit and had to decide whether to seek an increase or ask for permission to curtail services. If the fare hike had been approved immediately, it would have forestalled another hike further on, he said.

Liquor laws drive 'licensees' to drink

by PAT GERLACH

Changes in Illinois law that this month permit 19- and 20-year-olds to go to the corner tap and buy a glass of beer or wine are causing headaches not only for the "new drinkers" but for liquor license holders also.

Faced with the necessity to amend its liquor control ordinance to conform with state law, the Village of Schaumburg called liquor licensees together this week to thrash out mutual problems.

LICENSEES, FOR the most part, admit they are bogged down in the complexities of the new law. They are confused about their legal right to attempt segregating the 19 and 20 year old from other patrons to avoid possible switching of drinks to provide hard liquor to the under-21 set.

Nick Tselos and Perry Kapos, of Lancer Restaurant, favor measures requiring strict identification and said they favor a card or other document with a photo to insure that patrons served hard liquor are at least 21.

Most of the 25 business people represented at this week's meeting contend that much of their labor force comes from the 18-20 year old group. Can we employ people this age to serve hard liquor when they are not allowed to drink those beverages, they asked.

THE CONSENSUS of those present, including Mayor Robert O. Atcher, Village Atty, Jack M. Siegel and Police Chief Martin Conroy, was they can.

But business people generally favor limiting the age of bartenders to 21 years of age.

"Does that mean someone who draws beer for me has to be 21," asked Karen Zygowicz of Hippo's Restaurant.

"Whoever pulls a tap is considered a bartender," Atcher replied.

UNDER THE home-rule authority of the village, local ordinances can be stronger than state statutes which would outlaw leaving the Schaumburg law as is and could result in a court test.

Operators of local package stores thought they were home free in the sale of beer and wine to the older teens. Siegel disagreed, interpreting the law to mean packaged goods can't be sold to 19 and 20 year olds, the beer and wine can only be sold a drink at a time.

Siegel agreed, though, he would review the state statute and authorized sale of package goods to this age group until the matter is clarified.

Siegel will now prepare an amendment to the existing local law which will enable liquor licensees to serve 19 and 20 year olds, permit people this age to serve hard liquor but limit pouring of any alcoholic beverage to 21 years of age.

SEIGEL EXPECTS to present an ordinance to the village board Nov. 13 for first reading. The village will ask for feedback from licensees to accomplish changes in the law amenable to local business people.

Atcher said final passage of an amendment will be delayed until accord is reached among licensees on changes.

"All you have ever had to pay in Schaumburg was your license fee and not a penny more would have gotten that license for you," the mayor commented.

He and Conroy thanked the licensees for continued cooperation with the village and police department.

"A liquor license is not a right but a privilege that can be taken from you. We want to serve the best interests of the people and not jeopardize your license but we are asking you to think in terms of people, not yourselves or your cash registers in this matter," Atcher told the group.

He reminded them that the community could still vote to "go dry" but said he doubted that this would happen "in the best interests of anyone."

NURSERY SCHOOL IN THE FALL

At Fleeting Farm the Canadian geese are preparing to go south and leave the white ducks alone to feed on the tidbits from the children. The woods were beautiful for the fall festival, and the children have already had a pony ride or two. The hayrides are planned for the next week or so, but don't fret if your child misses something, it will all be repeated when the geese return.

See Fleeting, then decide.

Library changes policy on room use

by JERRY THOMAS

Political and religious groups no longer will be banned from using the Schaumburg Township Public Library meeting rooms, except on Sundays.

The change in policy was decided Tuesday by members of the room-use committee. With four of the six library trustees holding seats on that committee, library board approval is ensured.

Another major change in the policy denies library-sponsored groups or programs the right to "bump" other groups scheduled to meet and take that meeting night for library-sponsored programs.

REVIEW AND changes in the meeting room use policy came as a result of a recent challenge by a local minister, that the room was being used by a religious group and as a normal updating of policy, said Mrs. Deborah Miller, library board president, and committee chairman.

The library is accepting requests for reservations now and will by Nov. 15, make and announce bookings for the first six months of 1974. Groups will be booked in order of priority and then by date application is filed.

Mrs. Miller said Rev. Frank Bumpus of the Bethel Baptist Church questioned the use of meeting rooms by the International Meditation Society.

"Rev. Bumpus was prepared to argue that it was in fact a religious group. Rather than involve this library in arguments on what is or is not a religion we decided to look again at our policy," she said.

REV. BUMPUS told The Herald if the library changes its policy he will offer no objections. "I still think the transcendental meditation group faked the board members right out of their socks and are in my opinion a religion. But as long as all religious groups have the same privilege to use the rooms I will not object," he said.

"My original objection was based on the fact that present policy says no political or religious group use and I demand consistency as a taxpayer," he added.

The IMS maintains it is not a religion but is incorporated as an educational group.

The library will not allow use of its rooms to hold worship services and will depend on religious groups definition of what constitutes a sermon or religious service.

Except for library sponsored meetings no group or organization meeting in the library will be allowed to hold more than one meeting a week.

THE ONLY exception to this is for performance programs. Additional meetings can be scheduled in the week before and between programs.

Board members expressed some concern that a completely uncensored use of the meeting rooms could bring some further complaint.

"We must be sure, especially when political groups use the rooms, that people understand the library does not by allowing use, endorse the views of any group," stressed member Ruth Tressalt.

"The pickets won't care whether you endorse or don't endorse," said member Robert Lyons.

"Then let's be ready to withstand the slack," said Mrs. Tressalt.

LIBRARIAN MICHAEL Madden told the committee he does not anticipate any problems with the new policy.

"It makes sense to follow our book philosophy," he said.

"We provide materials on differing views and should also carry this philosophy of non-censorship over into our meeting room use policy," he said.

Park projects nearly done; weather holds the key

Hoffman Estates Park District officials are praying for good weather.

Favorable weather could allow contractors to finish development on most of the projects authorized last year in a $875,000 referendum.

"Some parks are done about 90 per cent," said Al Binder, director of the park district. "I, the board and the architect plan to go out in about 30 days to inspect the parks for approval."

Wet ground at High Point Park has prevented Rock Road Construction Co. from bringing in clay fill for the planned tennis courts and 80-car parking lot, Binder said.

The park district has a deadline to meet. The Village of Hoffman Estates plans to patch and repave Glen Lake Road, one of the key access roads to the park site, within 14 days.

GLEN LAKE ROAD WAS torn up by trucks hauling dirt into the park for alleviation of flood problems. The park district and the dirt-hauling contractor agreed to split up to $5,000 in repair costs for repaving.

Binder estimated the earliest trucks could get into the park would be tomorrow and that hauling the fill and compacting it would take about seven days. Any rainy weather would set back the planned development.

John Hossack, director of public works for the village, said the patching and repaving must be done within two or three weeks, before cold weather sets in.

He added that the park district has overshot its August deadline for hauling.

"When the road is repaved, they're going to have to bring it in smaller trucks — which is costly," Hossack said. "The pavement is not strong enough for dirt hauling."

MUCH OF THE delays in the park improvements have been attributed to miserable weather earlier this year. The improvements had been promised to be completed by June, a year after the referendum was approved.

Binder said "good strands of grass" have come up at the park in Winston Knolls subdivision and at the park-school site at Nell Armstrong School, 155 N. Kingsdale Rd.

7% commuter rate hike for C&NW wins approval

The hike would be the sixth in six years for the C&NW. Commuters could face a further increase a spokesman said because of pay raises and higher pension fund costs scheduled to become effective soon.

The commission was expected to consider the rate hike last May, but did not take action then. At that time, a C&NW spokesman said the company was losing an additional $133,000 a month without the increase.

Early this year the spokesman said the C&NW was faced with the $1.5 million deficit and had to decide whether to seek an increase or ask for permission to curtail services. If the fare hike had been approved immediately, it would have forestalled another hike further on, he said.

Village cracking down on auto stickers

The Village of Mount Prospect has initiated a crackdown on as many as 1,000 residents who haven't purchased local vehicle stickers for their cars.

More than 300 residents already have been cited for not purchasing a $10 village sticker for their autos, and as many as 700 others are believed to be driving cars without stickers.

An additional 75 residents apparently are the victims of a clerical error; they received notices of failure to have a sticker when they actually have one.

Finance Director Richard L. Jesse said anyone who has a sticker and receives a notice should contact his office with the number of the vehicle sticker.

Those who have not obtained stickers but who have had their car since before July 1 must pay the full $10 fee. If the car was obtained after July 1, the cost is $5.

In any case, motorists who do not have a sticker and are stopped by police are subject to a $5 fine.

SO FAR THIS year, 21,105 vehicle stickers have been issued by the village. State records show some 23,000 license plates have been registered to Mount Prospect addresses, but Jesse pointed out that many of these are for unincorporated areas with a Mount Prospect mailing address.

He estimated 1,000 Mount Prospect motorists are driving cars without vehicle stickers.

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said in many cases residents purchase a sticker for one family car but not for another.

Stickers are required to be displayed on every vehicle. The funds raised through the sale of vehicle stickers are to be used exclusively for road repairs.

The stickers are available in the finance office on the second floor of village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy., or at the switchboard in the clerk's office on the first floor. Both offices are open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Parks seeking federal grant

The Prospect Heights Park District has applied for a $35,000 federal grant to purchase the 26-acre Hillcrest Slough. Part of the money would be used to develop the wetland as a wildlife nature center.

The grant is being sought from the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, with the state deciding who gets the federal funds.

Park Comr. Max Lyle, planning the land acquisition committee chairman, did not want to comment extensively about the grant because it involves land acquisition. He did say the district hopes to use part of the money for development and that the slough property is appraised "for nowhere near" the requested grant total.

CURRENTLY, THE park district has filed to start condemnation proceedings to acquire the so-called south slough, south of Hillcrest Drive. Lyle said a court hearing on the condemnation suit cannot be set until the district hears from the state about the grant application.

He said the park district would "love to have" the north part of the slough. Reportedly, the park district has offered $20,000 to the Hillcrest Lake Homeowners Association for the property, but the homeowner group has demanded $130,000.

As for negotiations between the two groups, Lyle said, "Nothing is happening right now."

Supreme Court refuses school land case

The U.S. Supreme Court has refused to hear an appeal by Gerald Schroeder to dispute condemnation of a 13-acre parcel at Gregory School, 400 E. Gregory St., Mount Prospect.

Mount Prospect School Dist. 67 had the Schroeder's property condemned in 1959 to build a new school. Schroeder has been disputing condemnation ever since.

School district board secretary J. C. Busenhardt said the high court's action should mean an end to the suit. The district should be reimbursed for some $13,000 in legal fees.

Last year the school board indicated it would like to sell about eight unneeded acres of the Gregory school property to the Mount Prospect Park District. The park board has indicated interest in buying part of the site to preserve it as open space.

He'll assess party support in November

Morrissey may seek Democratic committee seat

by NANCY COWGER

A Schaumburg man may be in a March primary battle for the 12th Congressional District seat on the Illinois Democratic Central Committee.

John F. Morrissey, 1310 N. Valley Lake Dr., yesterday confirmed he may run for the state central committee post when he seeks reelection as Schaumburg Township Democratic Committeeman. Morrissey expects to make a decision on the state party race after he assesses Cook County Democratic Party support during November.

IF HE RUNS for the state committee, Morrissey may face opposition from State Rep. Daniel Pierce, Highland Park, who was elected to that slot from the old 13th Congressional Dist. before it was reapportioned two years ago.

Pierce said yesterday he is undecided on whether he will seek reelection to the state central committee.

John F. Morrissey

"I really haven't made up my mind. We will have to call a meeting of the Congressional District Committee pretty shortly, about the first week of November, to discuss the situation," said Pierce. He will make his decision at about that time, he said.

IF MORRISSEY runs for the state level party office, residency and representation is the issue on which he will base his campaign, he said. Pierce lives in Lake County, while the 12th District includes both Cook County and Lake County townships, Morrissey pointed out. The townships are Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Hanover, Barrington, Palatine, Wheeling, Elia, Vernon, West Deerfield, Libertyville and part of Deerfield.

Named to VFW job

Harold "Scotty" Mitchell of Mount Prospect has been named a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars' national community activities committee.

Mitchell, of 280 N. Westgate Rd., belongs to Mount Prospect Post No. 1337.

MARY LYNN WENDLANDT and Randy Zwik. will be among the performers this weekend in the Forest View High School production "Black Comedy." The play will be presented tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday at 8 p.m. at the school. Tickets are $1.

Housing study group asked

A housing authority comprised of representatives elected from each Mount Prospect homeowners association was proposed yesterday to study low and moderate-income housing needs in the village.

Michael Minton, defeated candidate for mayor in last spring's election, suggested that a housing authority be set up to help advise the village board on subsidized housing in the community. He further proposed that a referendum precode approval of any low-cost housing project to be built in the village.

Minton took issue with a statement issued Tuesday night by Mayor Robert D.

Telchert in which he referred to "irresponsible persons making irresponsible statements" about low-cost housing during the last election.

Minton in turn said Telchert was being "irresponsible in not answering the questions that were put to him in the last campaign by refusing to tell us what he thought about low-income housing."

Referring to the mayor's call for "investigation, analysis and debate" about subsidized housing, Minton said "he refused to allow investigation, analysis and debate during the last election."

Telchert was not available for comment.

Carey probes county police Niles branch

by JOHN MAES

Several "wide-ranging investigations" of illegal schemes involving members of the Niles division of the Cook County Sheriff's Police are being conducted by States Attorney Bernard Carey.

The investigations have been spurred by information supplied by a Mount Prospect woman, convicted last June of killing her husband, a lieutenant in the county police department thought to be a member of the ring.

A spokesman for Carey said yesterday that indictments for theft and forgery are expected to be returned "in a few days" against at least three sheriff's officers who bliked the J. C. Penneys department store in Golf Mill Shopping Center out of about $900.

THE HERALD has also learned that sheriff's policemen were involved in a kickback scheme several years ago with at least two Northwest suburban auto towing firms. According to one source, the policemen would receive a $10 payoff for calling a towing operator when an accident occurred.

One source in Carey's office indicated that investigators there are aware of the towing scheme but at this point were not pursuing the matter.

The Mount Prospect woman, Ruthe Carbona, is reportedly providing information in hopes of reducing the 20-60 year sentence she received in the murder conviction. Her slain husband, Lt. Joseph Carbona, reportedly was part of a forgery-theft scheme, which also involved a captain, sergeant and patrolmen from the Niles office. The Penneys theft allegedly took place about three years ago and has been under investigation since that time.

According to Edmond Dobbs, chief of the Sheriff's police, the probe started in December, 1970, when Sheriff Richard Elrod took office. Dobbs said the investigation had been stymied on occasion because of Carbona's death and lack of information.

AT LEAST one of the policemen under investigation was moonlighting for the Penneys store as a security guard. The cash was apparently taken from the store's daily receipts and replaced with forged checks made out for the stolen amounts.

Several Village of Niles policemen may also be involved in the scheme, according to sources. The Niles officers were reportedly trying to cover up the theft by returning cash to the store as restitution.

One employee at Penneys said he knew of the theft "some time ago" and thought the "whole thing had been dropped." Penneys spokesman would not comment on the investigation or involvement of the store.

Carey spokesmen would not comment on other areas of the investigation into wrongdoing in the Niles division office.

NILES Police Chief Clarence Emrickson said he has been aware of the forgery-theft scheme for some time, adding some of his men are under grand jury investigation.

The jury is trying to determine whether Niles police attempted to cover up the scheme by obtaining money from ring members and returning it to the store.

Reportedly, Emrickson, and several Sheriff's and Niles policemen have testified before the jury. The jury has also screened numerous checks and handwriting samples in its investigation.

Village board wrapup

Secret land trusts to be outlawed

Secret land trusts will soon be outlawed in zoning cases in Mount Prospect. Mayor Robert D. Teichert Tuesday night ordered the village attorney to draft an ordinance requiring all owners of a piece of property involved in a rezoning case to be identified. The local ordinance will bring Mount Prospect in line with the new state law requiring identification of land trust beneficiaries.

Badges for meter readers

Meter readers in Mount Prospect will soon be identifiable by badges containing their pictures. Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said the inspectors' photos will be added to their ID badges for the protection of homeowners approached by persons identifying themselves as meter readers. He said no instances of fake meter readers had been reported in the village, but have been prevalent in other communities.

Education week here

Next week has been designated "American Education Week" in Mount Prospect. In issuing the proclamation, Mayor Robert D. Teichert urged citizens to "reaffirm their commitment to improving education on all levels."

Next week also will be "Nordic Week," in commemoration of the opening game of the Chicago Nordics hockey team at the Metro Sports arena north of the Randhurst shopping center. The Nordics have provided two free tickets for each village trustee for their first game next Tuesday, inadvertently putting the trustees on the spot in light of all the talk nowadays of political payoffs. "If this is considered graft and bribery," said Teichert, "so be it. Barring something that keeps me from it, I'm going to attend."

Liquor license weighed

A liquor license is expected to be awarded to Kenessey Gourmets International, a delicatessen and gourmet shop planned to open next month in the Countryside Center on Elmhurst Road, south of Golf Road. Village trustees this week created an additional Class A license, which would permit the sale and dispensing of alcoholic beverages.

A request to issue a new liquor license extending the hours of Danny's Barn, 303 E. Kensington Rd., was deferred. The request was given a favorable recommendation by the finance committee.

Oct. 28 reserved for tricks, treats

Ghosts and goblins will take over Mount Prospect on Oct. 28.

The day has been designated "trick or treat day" in the village by Mayor Robert D. Teichert, and youngsters have been urged to confine their Halloween activities to that day.

No specific hours have been set up for trick or treating, but Teichert suggested that it be limited to afternoon daylight hours.

He also encouraged children to be accompanied by a parent or responsible adult.

These are the three things to consider when you are in the market for a communications system. First there is the equipment. Is it quality? Will it last? Is it the right communications tool for your situation?

Then there is the price. Does it include maintenance and a full guarantee? Are there hidden costs? Do you pay for maintenance whether you need it or not?

Last and most important is service. You are dependent upon your communications equipment. If it fails, who will fix it? How long will you have to wait? What will it cost? Will it be done right the first time?

Your local telephone company, a part of the Centel System, wants you to know what you should be getting for your communications dollar. Once you know the facts, you'll realize Centel is the complete communications company.

Dist. 26 school wrapup

Day, night talks for school parents

To accommodate working parents, conferences on student grade evaluations will be scheduled in the evening as well as during the day in School Dist. 26.

The first student evaluation reports will be issued Friday, Nov. 9. Parent-teacher conferences will be conducted from 6 to 9 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 8 and from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 9.

Curriculum Director Al Levin said evening conferences will probably be scheduled for all evaluation periods throughout the year.

Maryville School delay

Construction of the new Maryville School will be delayed until the Illinois Capital Development Board (ICDB) approves the Gregory Street site and makes soil tests.

In a letter to the administration last week, the ICDB indicated architects will study the site and direct civil engineers to conduct the soil tests in the near future. No date for issuing their report was given.

The Dist. 26 School Board hopes to begin work on the school this fall and have it completed in time for the 1974-75 school year.

The school will replace the River Road School at the Maryville Academy in Des Plaines. It will also be located on Maryville property to be purchased by the school district.

Curriculum to be studied

A complete evaluation of the Dist. 26 curriculum will soon be undertaken by committees of teachers.

Six major subject areas will be studied by the committee members who may recommend revisions or adoption of new teaching materials.

The subjects to be considered are reading and spelling, health and safety, math, science, language arts and career education.

SUE BURNS of Arlington Heights is the 1973 homecoming queen at John Hersey High School. Sue, along with John Brown, homecoming king, were named in ceremonies last week.

PTA notes

A combination art-craft fair, children's art show and book fair will be sponsored by the PTA today and tomorrow from 3:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. at Busse School, 101 N. Owen St., Mount Prospect.

Examples of local artists' work in pottery, stichery, sculpture, leather, copper pictures, painting and enameling will be shown.

Tomorrow, from 5:30 p.m. to 9 p.m., a family fun fair will be at Lions Park School, 300 E. Council Tr., Mount Prospect. Supper will be hot dogs, and entertainment will be booths offering a variety of refreshment, games and prizes.

Children will be able to play "cake walk" and "paint the face" and see a live goldfish bowl. There will be a bake sale for adults. This annual fund-raising event is sponsored by the Lions Park School PTA and proceeds will be used for cultural arts programs, patrol guards and other related school activities.

It's slim pickin's for area apple producers

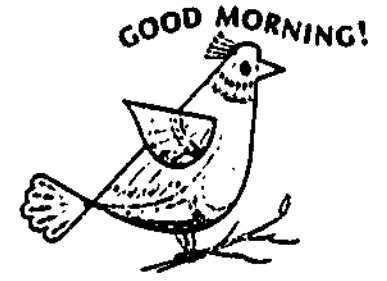

by BETTY LEE
It's slim pickin's this year for apples — mackintosh, jonathan, red and golden delicious.
Last year the Midwest harvest provided tons of apples for people to take home from markets. Families drove out to orchards for a day of plucking apples from trees. Roadside stands bulged with bushel baskets of the fruit and there was plenty of cider, apple butter and other apple products.
But due to the poorest season in years, there is an apple shortage and prices have zoomed as much as 25 per cent.
BILL WEBBE owns the Mossley Hill

Farms Inc. in Lake Zurich. This year he managed to harvest 30 to 35 per cent of the crop for his retail business, compared to last year's 90 per cent.
"There are a number of reasons why we have the shortage," said Webbe. "The mild frost we had in spring killed some of the blossoms. The frost sterilizes the pollen.
"And with the rain and cool weather, the bees don't come out and pollinate the trees. This year we had only one or two good days."
Webbe added that poor pollination and a continuous damp spring caused a fungus growth called "scab" which affects the leaves and the fruit of the tree. The fruit may eventually rot or fall from branches before maturity.

LIKE OTHER neighboring orchards, Mossley Hill Farms was open to the public for apple picking in mid-September. Thousands of people from the city as well as from the suburbs came to spend an afternoon picking their own apples for $5 a bushel. Last season it cost $4.25.
But this year something different happened at the Webbe farm. The rolling hills of the orchard were littered with thousands of fallen apples and debris left by people who came. Most of the fruit was picked early last week and what remained were rows of barren trees. There will be no more apple picking this season.

"It's the shortage," said Lee Logan, manager. "With the shortage and crowds that size, people get out of control. They left a mess and destroyed tree limbs."
Theft increased this year with the larger crowd of pickers. People would hide apples in their cars, golf bags, bowling bags and baby buggies, said Webbe.
WEBBE ESTIMATED the apple supply will last until mid to late November. Usually there are enough to put in cold storage and to sell until June or July.
"What am I going to do?" said Webbe.

"I'm not sure what to do." This week he plans to ship in loads of apples from another orchard he owns in Michigan. He indicated that other fruits like peaches and pears suffered a poor season also.
Bell's Apple Orchard is in Barrington, near routes 12 and 22. A dusty road leads to its massive shop. Inside there are hundreds of sacks of apples on giant roll-away carts and on tables.
A long line by the cash register includes people buying apples and children buying caramel apples and cider. The phone rings and a saleslady answers. Someone wants to know about pick-your-

Effective Nov. 1
7% commuter rate hike for C&NW wins approval

by STEVE FORSYTH
After 11 months of delay, Chicago and North Western Ry. commuters can expect to pay 7 per cent more for tickets next month.
The Illinois Commerce Commission delayed the request made last November because of the federal price freeze, and continued the delay until this month. The commission, which met late yesterday and is scheduled to meet again today, was expected to discuss the rate-hike request at one of the sessions.
The across-the-board increase is expected to bring in an additional $1.5 million in commuter fares, but a spokesman for the railroad said much of that has, in effect, been lost because of the delay of almost a year. Profits for the successful commuter line have dropped from a peak of $2.4 million in 1968 to an esti-

Chicago and North Western Ry. proposed monthly commuter fare increases

Station	Present	New

Des Plaines	$31.70	$33.90
Cumberland	$32.75	$35.05
Mount Prospect	$34.80	$37.20
Arlington Heights	$36.20	$38.70
Arlington Park	$37.60	$40.20
Palatine	$39.00	$41.70
Barrington	$43.20	$46.20

approved this week or early next week, the railroad would put the increases in effect beginning Nov. 1.
The hike would be the sixth in six years for the C&NW. Commuters could face a further increase a spokesman said because of pay raises and higher pension fund costs scheduled to become effective soon.
The commission was expected to consider the rate hike last May, but did not take action then. At that time, a C&NW spokesman said the company was losing an additional $133,000 a month without the increase.
Early this year the spokesman said the C&NW was faced with the $1.5 million deficit and had to decide whether to seek an increase or ask for permission to curtail services. If the fare hike had been approved immediately, it would have forestalled another hike further on, he said.
mated $500,000 this year, company spokesmen say.
THERE REPORTEDLY is a provision for automatic approval of the increase if the commission does not rule soon. If

Willowwood presented to planners

Szczesny Builders presented the Arlington Heights Plan Commission Wednesday night with plans for Willowwood, a $10 million mixed housing development on Willow Road and Waterman Avenue.
The developers are seeking annexation to the village with zoning for multi-family housing. The land is presently zoned for single-family homes in Cook County.
The developers want to build 24 single-family homes, 97 units of clustered townhouses and 88 condominium units. The 11 condominium buildings would have eight units on two stories.
According to Samuel Footlik, architect, the units would range in price from $34,000 for the condominiums to $80,000 for the single-family houses.
WAYNE MUCCI, land developer, said the single-family homes would be along the north and northwest section of the 34-acre site, adjoining existing single-family homes. The condominiums would be next to the John Hersey High School football field to the west. Townhouse units would be in the center of the development.
Two flood-control basins were also suggested for the development by Mucci. One would be in the northwest corner near the single-family homes and the other would be located in the condominium area.
Mucci said the single-family houses would each have three-car garages. The townhouses would have two-car garages with space for two additional cars in the rear. The condominiums would have one garage and one parking lot space each.

Carey probing sheriff's police in Niles

by JOHN MAES
Several "wide-ranging investigations" of illegal schemes involving members of the Niles division of the Cook County Sheriff's Police are being conducted by State Attorney Bernard Carey.
The investigations have been spurred by information supplied by a Mount Prospect woman, convicted last June of killing her husband, a lieutenant in the county police department thought to be a member of the ring.
A spokesman for Carey said yesterday that indictments for theft and forgery are expected to be returned "in a few days" against at least three sheriff's officers who bilked the J. C. Penneys department store in Golf Mill Shopping Center out of about $900.
THE HERALD has also learned that sheriff's policemen were involved in a kickback scheme several years ago with at least two Northwest suburban auto towing firms. According to one source, the policemen would receive a $10 payoff for calling a towing operator when an accident occurred.

One source in Carey's office indicated that investigators there are aware of the towing scheme but at this point were not pursuing the matter.
The Mount Prospect woman, Ruth Carbone, is reportedly providing information in hopes of reducing the 20-40 year sentence she received in the murder conviction. Her slain husband, Lt. Joseph Carbone, reportedly was part of a forgery-theft scheme, which also involved a captain, sergeant and patrolmen from the Niles office. The Penneys theft allegedly took place about three years ago and has been under investigation since that time.

According to Edmond Dobbs, chief of the Sheriff's police, the probe started in December, 1970, when Sheriff Richard Elrod took office. Dobbs said the investigation had been stymied on occasion because of Carbone's death and lack of information.
AT LEAST one of the policemen under investigation was moonlighting for the Penneys store as a security guard. The cash was apparently taken from the store's daily receipts and replaced with forged checks made out for the stolen amounts.
Several Village of Niles policemen may also be involved in the scheme, according to sources. The Niles officers were reportedly trying to cover up the theft by returning cash to the store as restitution.
One employee at Penneys said he knew

Soon-to-be-vacant trustee position a plum for someone

by KURT BAER
There is no obvious heir to the Arlington Heights Village Board seat soon to be vacated by Trustee Graeme George.
But the potential of the office looms large enough to make the appointment a politically intriguing proposition.
George announced this week that he will leave the village board Nov. 5 to accept an engineering assignment in Oran, Algeria.
The year and a half remaining in George's term is long enough to give the person named experience and exposure that could prove invaluable in a 1975 election bid.
The right person could begin to build a political career, not just fill out an unexpired term.
Assuming the board throws out its option of holding a special election, the appointment will be decided jointly by the trustees and the village president behind closed doors.
VILLAGE PRES. Jack Walsh's choice is bound to be in a favored position, as Walsh is the leading office holder for the village's only local political party, the Arlington Heights Caucus.
O. V. Anderson, 701 S. Walnut, currently plan commission chairman and an unsuccessful candidate for trustee last winter, was next in line behind George at the Arlington Heights Caucus' nominating meeting in January.

O. V. Anderson

Norman Breyer

Dwight Walton

George polled 234 Caucus votes to be nominated as the party's fifth and final village board candidate. Anderson, who was not nominated, received 174 votes.
Anderson said yesterday he has not given any thought to becoming a village trustee since the Caucus meetings last winter.
"I wouldn't give a snap decision even if I were offered the job. I'd want to take some time to give it some thought," he said.
Though he plans to retire from his job as a real estate consultant for the Union Oil Co. within a year, Anderson said he will remain a resident of Arlington Heights.

ANOTHER possible candidate for the board position is Robert Miller, 119 W. Pickwick.
A member of the plan commission, which has long been a spawning ground for new village trustees, Miller previously has expressed an interest in the job.
Like George, Miller is a civil engineer, employed by the Illinois Department of Transportation. He is relatively young, 32, but has lived in the village more than nine years.

A third possibility is Norman Breyer, 3307 N. Dryden Pl. An unsuccessful candidate for Caucus nomination, Breyer trailed Anderson by only four votes.
He is a member of the plan commission and serves with George on the Citizens Action Committee Against Flooding.
AN OUTSIDE candidate for the seat is former Arlington Heights trustee Dwight Walton.
Contacted yesterday, Walton said he would like to return to the board he served on for four years up to the last election when he chose not to be a candidate.

"Whether anybody would ask me or whether I would accept — I just don't know," he said.
Walton said he was surprised by George's resignation announcement.
"After I read it, the thought (of returning to the board) passed through my mind and I had to admit that I would like to do it," he said.
Walton announced in January that he would not seek reelection to the village board in April, saying that he wanted to devote more time to his family.
If approached, Walton said he would have to carefully weigh accepting an appointment.
His experience as a trustee and his personal friendships with Walsh and other members of the board would seem to make Walton a likely choice. However his decision not to run for reelection this April may take him out of serious consideration.
THERE IS a large number of possible candidates who could be tapped to fill the board vacancy.
The plan commission, while historically a training ground for village trustees, is only one of many sources.
Each incumbent trustee undoubtedly has his own list of political favorites.

Walsh said he hopes to be able to announce an appointment at the board's meeting Nov. 5, but added that he doesn't consider the date "critical."
He said he was contacting members of the board this week to find out whether they are in favor of an appointed replacement. If so, he said the board would probably meet in executive session Monday night.
Walsh mentioned several general criteria such as expertise, geographic representation, profession and experience that might be used in evaluating candidates.
"ALL OTHER things being equal, for an interim appointment, I'm inclined to look for experience — people who kind of know what the ballgame is about," he said.
He mentioned past village officials, members of boards and commissions and other citizens who have appeared at different meetings as those likely to know how village government operates.
Walsh said that he had not yet given specific consideration to any possible replacement and had had no meetings on the subject with other members of the board.

of the theft "some time ago" and thought the "whole thing had been dropped." Penney's spokesman would not comment on the investigation or involvement of the store.

Carey spokesmen would not comment on other areas of the investigation into wrongdoing in the Niles division office.

NILES Police Chief Clarence Emrickson said he has been aware of the forgery-theft scheme for some time, adding some of his men are under grand jury investigation.

The jury is trying to determine whether Niles police attempted to cover up the scheme by obtaining money from ring members and returning it to the store.

own-apples. "There's no pickin'," said the woman. "There's a shortage this year."

PRICES OF APPLES have increased by 20 to 25 per cent here too. "But this doesn't stop the people from buying," said Louise Beel. However, the management is limiting customers to buy pecks instead of the usual half and full bushel. Each peck is equivalent to 10 to 12 pounds of fruit.

"We're way short of last year's harvest," she said, adding that they had harvested about half of the crop. "This has been the shortest in years."

Caramel apples, pies, doughnuts, cider are staple selling items. To bolster sales, they also sell nuts, cheeses, syrups and jams.

Kidney group seeks help

The Kidney Foundation of Illinois, Inc. is seeking volunteers to sell or buy banks filled with wrapped candy during its 1973 Trick-or-Treat Candy Campaign this month.

So far 60,000 banks have been distributed. A goal of 85,000 banks has been set for this year, according to Mrs. Helen Abney, Arlington Heights, in a recent progress report on the campaign.

Proceeds of the candy sale go to public education of kidney disease and organ donation, support of renal research in the state and maintaining the foundation's drug bank program.

Interested persons may call the Kidney Foundation at 263-2140.

"Some customers get irate and they don't understand about the shortage," she said. "They drive out from the city and find they can only buy a peck. It puts us in a bad limelight."

THE PRICE OF apples has been stable at Wauconda Orchard near Bonner and Fairfield roads. But it'll go up as soon as the supply diminishes and apples from other sections of the country are shipped in to be sold, said a spokesman.

The orchard consists of 9,000 trees and only 40 per cent of the crop was harvested this year.

"We feel badly," said the spokesman. "We can't tell people about the shortage unless we take out a full page ad."

Customers can buy as much as they want and the business also makes fruit gift packs.

The apples you see in the grocery stores are usually from the northwest portion of the country, according to Bill Newby, director of public relations of the Jewel Tea Co., Melrose Park.

MOST OF THE Midwest-grown apples are used for processing, that is, for secondary apple products like applesauce, canned sliced apples and juice, said

Newby. But since there is a shortage in process-type apples, apples from other regions of the country would have to go to make up for the shortage. In turn there is a general overall apple shortage, said Newby.

However, consumers can assume there will be an adequate supply in the stores. "The higher prices regulate the demands," said Newby. "It will informally allocate the supply."

The last major calamity for the apple grower occurred in the late 1940s, according to Logan of the Mossley Hill Farms.

"We were wiped out in a frost," he said. "It killed the whole crop except for a couple of bushels near the top (of the tree). We went fishing that year."

It's a gamble each year with the weather, growers say. "The bud formation of the branches looks good," said Logan. "So we hope to fire back next year."
